Farmers Take Advantage of Nice Weather to Sow Oats and Plow

Farmers in this community started working in the fields early this morning as the fine spring weather of the past several days continued. Oats sowing and spring plowing is under way today. This is the first day the ground has been dry enough this spring to plow or cultivate and farmers are taking advantage of it. Farmers state that it is still early enough to sow oats and if the summer is favorable a good crop should be harvested. The wheat crop is looking exceptionally good at the present and small grass and clover is also in good condition.
