The Movies Are 50 Years Old

By the AP Feature Service

IN August, 1889, George Eastman, an American, began to make a new nitro-cellulose photographic film to meet the problems of "rollier photography." Eastman and a Frenchman, Lumiere, were responsible for the invention of the film.

From that film came the movies. A man named Thomas A. Edison heard of the film, bought 50 feet of it for $250, and created motion pictures with a machine called the kinetoscope.

Moving pictures may be grown up, but they are still young. That is shown by the fact that the first sound film, "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, was released as recently as 1927.

Other "firsts" that were milestones in movie history are shown in these pictures:

FIRST KISS in the movies (1896) was an affair between May Irwin and John C. Rice. It scandalized audiences.

FIRST STORY to be told in the movies (1902) was "The Great Train Robbery." An Edison film, it ran 16 minutes.

FIRST SPECTACLE was David Wark Griffith "The Birth of a Nation" (1915). Lillian Gish was featured in the film.

ORIGRELL WEDDING TOOK PLACE THURSDAY

In the presence of relatives and friends, the marriage of Miss Ruth Josephine Origrell to Leon Francis Myers was celebrated Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Memorial Presbyterian church. The beautiful church edifice was decorated simply but effectively for the occasion, a profusion of greenery and hydrangeas being used.

Mr. W. M. Hatton presided at the noon, playing the beautiful bridal march, that was an essential part of every wedding, and during the interlude, organists, who rendered very nicely appropriate selections.

The first members of the bridal party to enter the church and advance up the main aisle were the two little flower girls, Sybil Hatfield, a sister of the bride, and Lela Stone. Both children were dainty troops of white puffed organdie, with pink sash and hair-ribbons, and carried attractive baskets filled with pink and white roses and lilies. They were followed by the two bridesmaids, Beatrice Jones and Ray Hatfield. Then came the two bridesmaids, Miss Lela Barlee of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Margaret Dorsey of Eudora, Mo., a cousin of the bride. The bridesmaids were attractively dressed in pink Georgette and carried arm bouquets of pink roses. Their becoming hats were of moss-hat and Georgette.

Immediately preceding the bride walked the matron-of-honor, Miss Irmis Hatfield, who wore pink Georgette with large picture hat to match. Her favors were also pink roses.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Russell King Hatfield, who gave her in marriage. Always an attractive girl, the bride was especially pretty and charming in her bridal dress of white Duchesse satin and Georgette. Her train for full of white tulle was arranged around behind under a swath of orange-blossoms, and fell in graceful folds to the end of the long court-ain. She carried an arm bouquet of white brides-roses, with shower of white lilies.

In the chancel, members of the bridal party were met by the groom, Capt. Francis Myers, and his best man, Ralph McFarly of Brunswick, Ga., and the wedding ceremony was the marriage performed by Dr. Barton B. Butler, minister of Memorial Presbyterian church.

Following the service, as the tradition of the days, a simple wedding breakfast, a party of about 200 persons, including the wedding party, had in the church. After the party, they went to the home of the bride's parents on (Cincinnati) avenue, where an informal reception was held for relatives and visiting friends. Refreshments were served by the group of young girls in the wedding party and a really feature of the occasion was the cutting of the elaboratelyiced and decorated bride's cake.

VIRGINIA STATION AN AUGUST BRIDE

Slipping away from their friends, Miss Virginia May Stator of this place, and Clyde A. Angbe, well known young business man of Frankfort, Indiana, were married at Louisville, Ky., on Wednesday, August 4th, and succeeded in keeping their wedding a secret until last evening when the announcement of their marriage was made at a Christmas party given by the bride at the Clifton County Hospital at Frankfort, where she has been employed as a nurse since February, 1924.

The wedding came as a complete surprise to the many friends of the young couple, who have been making guesses as to when the wedding would take place, and none had even guessed they had been married.

Last evening at the party in Frankfort, each of the places at the table were marked with attractive favors and place cards. As a centerpiece, a miniature, snow-covered house, electrically lighted, added to the beauty of the dinner table and held the secret of the occasion. After the dinner was served the favors were opened; concealed in the package of one of the favors, this turns was

Presbyterian Church

"Christmas began with Christ, and we should see that it begins with Christ today, in fact as well as in speaking."

Christmas would be meaningless without the Son of God to fill it with the best affection. We will not gain from the day its best return if we prevent God's love from coursing through our souls and making itself manifest in our gifts of unselfish love. It is such love with which the Christ glorified the day and He asks each of us to make ever brighter the radiant joy of it for hungering hearts. There are shadows in some souls that should be dissolved in the beams of God's grace; there are loads of dreariness in life that can only be lifted by the kindness of the Father, and there is the touch of the loving hand of Christ. Put His in His rightful place this Christmas and through you He will work mightily again amongst the sons of men.

The Bible school is presenting a Christmas program this evening at 7:00 o'clock. You are cordially invited to attend.

Bible school 9:30 a.m.; morning worship 10:30 a.m.; evening worship 7:00 p.m.

Wishing everyone in the community a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

IN CEREMONY. 1919

St. Joseph Church was the scene of a pretty June wedding at nine o'clock Tuesday morning with a Nuptial Mass, when Miss Frances Weist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Weist, and Edward Cahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Cahill of Fowler, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock.

The bride was sweetly attired in a costume of white georgette crepe and veil and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids were Miss Edna Schmidt, Miss Emelia Yast of Fort Wayne, cousin of the bride. Both were beautifully gowned in pink georgette crepe and wore pink chiffon hats and carried pink roses. After the ceremony the wedding party together with sixty-five guests, repaired to the Weist home where a three course wedding breakfast was served by the Misses Margaret Peters, Mary Tally, Carollee Dewling, Theresa Reed, Theresa Cunningham, Bertha Noller, Agnes Segs, Ethel Carbaugh and Nell and Elsie Neary of Goodland. The dining room was beautifully decorated in the bridal colors, pink and white.

The bride is one of the well known and highly esteemed young ladies of this community and a graduate of the Kentland High School of 1918.

The groom is a popular young man of Fowler and has many friends and acquaintances at this place.

The bridal couple left in the evening for Detroit. They will reside on the groom's father's farm two miles northwest of Fowler, and will be at home to their many friends after July first.

The forthcoming marriage of Miss Agnes Segs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Segs, to Mr. Phillip Broadbent of Fowler, and Miss Kathryn Ellingworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ellingworth, to Mr. Edmund G. Ruser of Morris, Ind. were announced at St. Joseph's Church Sunday. Mr. Segs' marriage will take place the 10th of February, and Miss Ellingworth's on the 11th, 1920.

'FLIVVER' WEDDINGS ARE THE LATEST FAD TO DATE
Jan. 7, 31, 1921

Just automobile or "flivver" weddings are the newest thing on the horizon. The groom beyond a doubt Saturday afternoon, January 1, when Miss Agnes Dalton of Kentland, and Mr. Earl Houston of this place, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. J. Evans, pastor of the First Christian church of Sheldon, in a Ford car just in the other side of the state line, and was witnessed by the pastor's wife and V. P. Houston, father of the groom.

Burt obtained the license of the clerk in the court house at Kentland. He explained to the official that he wished to be married in Illinois, and was informed that the certificate would be as legal there as the state in which it was issued. Whether the clerk was trying to pull a joke on Burt or a New Year's greeting has not been ascertained. Of course, the young man thought the clerk knew that he was talking about and took his advice in the matter.

When Mr. Houston tendered the suitable payment to the pastor, he was immediately informed that they would not be married in this state. After long deliberation they decided on the plan mentioned above and were happily married.

The groom is an only son of V. P. Houston and is employed as a mechanic in the Strickler & White garage. He is an ambitious young man and is well and favorably known in the community.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dalton of Kentland. She is a highly respected young lady and has a host of friends and relatives in Kentland who wish her much happiness.

Immediately following the ceremony the happy couple returned to Sheldon. They will make their home with the groom's father.

JEROME BRITTON MARRIED IN CHICAGO IN JULY
Sept. 1919

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Britton, Sr. received a happy surprise Wednesday, in the form of an announcement of the marriage of their eldest son, Thomas Jerome Britton, to Miss Mary E. Saay, of Chicago. The marriage ceremony was solemnized in St. Malachy's Catholic Church, Chicago, on Monday, July 28th, but—as with all really-modern surprise weddings—the fact was cleverly kept a secret from his parents and friends hereabouts until now—a period of six weeks.

Froggy the rejoicing parents of the groom we learn that he and his bride became acquainted in Michigan City about three years ago while Jerome was in the employ of the Michigan Central railroad company, with headquarters in that city; that they kept up correspondence during Jerome's nearly two years' service in the army, with the result of their marriage about ten days after his discharge and return home from service overseas. After a brief honeymoon the bridal couple established their new home in Michigan City, where Jerome has returned to his former railroad work. There is now report that the Michigan Central is to move their yards from Michigan City to Niles, Mich., and in case such is done, Mr. and Mrs. Britton will transfer their residence to Niles. Congratulations and best wishes to them.

CELEBRATE DOUBLE WEDDING FRIDAY
Feb. 1920

MR. AND MRS. JOHN BARR AND
MR. AND MRS. CHARLES ROE ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

Friday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Barr was the scene of a very pleasant and unique surprise, arranged by Mr. Barr. The occasion was in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. This seems to have been a popular date for weddings in years gone by, as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roe gave a dinner the same evening in honor of their thirtieth wedding day, and saw their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Barr.

The guests at the Barr home arrived between seven and eight o'clock, and when the last guest had reported, Miss Irene Barr on instructions from her father, called her parents home as in uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Earl Park, had come to spend the evening. Soon after Mr. and Mrs. Barr's arrival home, the guests, who had assembled in the den, walked out and gave Mrs. Barr a genuine surprise. On their way home Mrs. Barr had suggested that perhaps a surprise party awaited them, but Mr. Barr assured her that nothing of the kind would happen. She learned later, however, that he was the sole perpetrator.

Mr. Barr had not forgotten to provide bridal roses, and after the guests had arrived from the other wedding dinner party, among them being the Rev. Andrews, who suggested to Mrs. Barr that he thought it would be fitting to renew their vow of twenty-five years ago, and she graciously consented. According to arrangements the professional, led by Rev. Andrews, moved to the center of the spacious parlor, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Andrews, and during the ceremony the played "O' Promise Me" and "I Love You". The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Roe. Mrs. Barr carried a bouquet of shower roses, and just before the ceremony the daughter, Miss Irene, stepped forward and placed a rose on her mother's breast, and as a token of his pledge and affection for at least another twenty-five years, Mr. Barr directed from the petals of the rose a beautiful shower and placed it on his bride's finger. This was not only a surprise to Mrs. Barr, but to all present.

After the ceremony, congratulations followed, and the company then retired to the dining room where Mr. Barr had provided oysters, coffee, cream and cake. The guests departed at a late hour, vowing Mr. Barr an adopt stepfather, and wishing he and his good wife many more anniversaries. As a token of esteem of this amiable couple the guests left many beautiful gifts.

There was a company of about fifteen at the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Roe, who returned the kindly hospitality of this fine couple. Mr. and Mrs. Roe and Mr. and Mrs. Barr are among our best people and have the good wishes of all.

The Purple Heart of his day was not as large as the one of this war, but carried the same honor and distinction.

WRECKS AND BURNS

Eastbound Train Monday Morning Ran Into Burning Bridge Near Perkins Switch and Several Aboard Are Badly Injured.

July 1919

The first time for a fully equipped passenger train to be wrecked and totally consumed by fire in this immediate vicinity occurred at about 7:30 o'clock Monday morning when the eastbound train that went forth from the Pennsylvania Lines' depot here, went down through the burned out bridging over a small creek about a quarter of a mile east of "Perkins Spur" (or about four and a quarter miles east of Kentland), with just such results. Besides the loss of the train, five members of the crew and four of the passengers were more or less seriously injured, viz:

William Newpher, age 64, of 1918 E. Broadway, Logansport, engineer; both legs frightfully scalded from shingles to toes, one large toe broken, and two cuts on forehead.

Cyrus C. Clayburn, age 35, Logansport, fireman; seriously bruised about head, two frightful cuts about face, and wrecked back.

R. M. Michaels, age 25, of Effner, express messenger, hip bruised.

Mrs. Fred Klouse, (nee Miss Mary Koenig, daughter of Mrs. R. E. Bartoo, of Kentland) of Goodland, several severe body bruises.

Mary Heistand, age 11, of Brook (sister to H. R. and R. P. Heistand, of Kentland), severe bruise on forehead.

Rev. E. M. Dieems, a minister, of New York City, one leg bruised.

The fatal spot was approached without warning to, or observation by, either the engineer or his fireman, of the fire at the bridge—which was started presumably, by some live coals that had been shaken from the grates of an extra locomotive that had passed that way at about midnight—until they were too close to avoid running into it.

Fireman Clayburn was the first to see the low-burning flames at the trestle bridge, then already partially burned away, and with the exclamation, "My God, the bridge is on!" he sprang from his cab and leaped head foremost in a deep ditch along the right-of-way. He sustained a severe bruise near the top of his head, and ugly cuts on the right side of his face and a painful slash of his back.

truly curled from the heat of the fire around them, and realizing the danger ahead, he instinctively shot the air and set brakes in an effort to save as much as possible of the train from going into the bridge, and then remained bravely at the throttle while the engine crossed the bridging and, after leaving the twisted rails, plunged through ties, rails and roadbed until it finally toppled over, bottom side up, into the ditch on the south side of the track. As the engine turned over, Newpher was thrown from the cab and just clear enough of the locomotive to be caught only by the tips of both his shoes. Fortunately he had, for some reason, not laced the shoes on his left foot very tight that morning and thereby was enabled to pull that foot out of the shoe at the cost of breaking the big toe of that foot, and making his escape but not until he had suffered a frightful scalding of both his legs from the thighs down, from the steam escaping from the engine. So severely were these limbs cooked by this steaming that when he had been taken to the Bert Dickson home and his clothes were removed from him, large pieces of flesh fell away from one of them. Other than this he sustained no injury except two slight bruises on forehead.

The coal-tender and combination baggage-mail car were pulled across the bridge, while the smoker was halted directly over it and the rear passenger coach just to the west of it. By the jar occasioned by the setting on of brakes, Baggage-man Custer, Expressman Michaels, and Mail-clerk Wallace were pitched headlong to the front end of their car. Baggage-man Custer, who has been in the railroad service for eighteen years (and with no baggage in his charge except a crate containing a little dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Klouse, in shipment to Goodland and which Mr. Custer took from the car with him when he made his escape from it) sustained what was at first thought to be a fractured bone but proved only to be a painful bruise on his left arm.

Expressman Michaels escaped with only a severe bruise of one of his hips and will be able to return to work in a few days, but Mail-clerk Wallace sustained much more serious injuries, including a cut over the right eye and another across the left side of his right shoulder elbow and hip, and a sprain of his left wrist.

There was nobody in the smoker when the crash came, except the conductor, Frank Windisch, and brakeman, Samuel Crawford, both of Logansport, but they both escaped unharmed.

The passengers in the rear car, together with many of the seats, were pitched violently to the front end of the car. Miss O'Neill, who was sitting in the seventh seat back badly crushed and she momentarily dazed but was soon brought to her senses by the crying and excited talking by the other passengers. Her attention was first attracted by the cries of the Heistand and Heisteron children who had been thrown and caught under a number of seats, and—not realizing she herself had been injured—helped them out from under the seats. In the meantime the flames were leaping up fiercely on the outside of the glass in the front door and Mr. Klouse tried to open the rear door only to find it locked. Thinking he might be mistaking, Miss O'Neill rushed to the door and tried to open it but found it truly to be locked. Then they all went to the windows next to the two seats which Miss O'Neill had occupied and which windows she had opened to full extent before leaving Kentland. Mr. Klouse climbed out; Miss O'Neill lifted the children out to him, and jumped out the one window herself while Mr. Klouse was assisting Mrs. Klouse out through the other. How Rev. Dieems got out is not known by these passengers, for, knowing him to not have been materially injured they left him to care for himself; and while they were making their escape they all had to make it thru a dense cloud of steam and smoke.

As soon as they were out Conductor Windisch called to them to run to a safe distance eastward in case the engine boiler should explode and this they did without hesitation. When they were but a short distance away and looked back, they saw to their horification that the coach they had just left was almost wholly enveloped in flames. Following them, Conductor Windisch asked Miss O'Neill if she had sustained any injuries and when she replied, "No," he asked her to telephone from the Bert Dickson home for the doctors from Kentland and Goodland to hurry there to care for the injured, which she did—with the result that Drs. O. E. Glick and C. W. Matthews of Kentland, and C. C. Bassett, J. B. Kincaid and F. R. Kennedy, of Goodland were soon at hand.

The point at which the wreck occurred was upon a very high grade, and thereby the noise could be heard and a view had for a mile or two around, and thus the attention of the surrounding farmers was attracted at once, and they brought to the scene, via autos, in a very few moments, and others— notified by telephone, and otherwise—arrived soon after. The accident oc-carried west half way between section roads and with no way of reaching it with conveyances except to drive right up on the track. This was done only by Henry O'Brien who drove his auto that way to haul the injured engineer, Brennan and mail-clerk to the Dickson home where they were met by the doctor and given professional care. A about noon (Monday) Fireman Clayburn was taken to Goodland, with the intention of taking from there on the special train (that had come out from Logansport) to his home in Logansport, but when they reached Goodland he was, on advice of his doctor, placed in the home of Frank Weishaar there until yesterday morning when he was taken home. His wife and daughter were out to see him Tuesday.

Engineer Newpher and mail-clerk Wallace were kept at Dickson's until Tuesday evening when the former was removed to a hospital in Logansport and latter to one in Peoria, Illinois.

Directly from the wreck, baggage-man Custer was brought to Kentland and given attention by Drs. McCain and Glick, and express messenger Michaels was taken to his boarding place at Effner. That evening the former returned to his home in Logansport and the latter went to visit with relatives in Monticello, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Klouse, the little Helstead and Henderson girls and Rev. Deems were taken to Goodland via auto, and Miss O'Neill to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meddie Sego, Jr., and in the afternoon to her home here. Until other help arrived and advised by a physician to seek rest for herself, Miss O'Neill assisted actively in caring for the injured men, at the Dickson home, without noticing her own injury. She, accompanied by her brother, Vincent went to Logansport Wednesday to have an X-ray examination of her injured shoulder made.

The engine was totally demolished and all that was burnable about the wooden coaches and contents (including all the mail) was entirely consumed. By about ten o'clock the wreck-crew and a special train with road's officials arrived and the work of clearing away the debris and replacing the torn-up track was started—and completed in time to permit trains to pass that night. During the day the scene of the accident was visited by thousands of people for 25 miles around, and while the track repairs were being made the westbound train due at Kentland at 9:55 detoured via C. & B. I., from Goodland to Morocco, and C. I. & S., to Kentland, and then westward.

Fortunately, the ill-fated train had started only from Effner (four miles west of here) and when it reached the scene of the catastrophe was carrying only its crew and six passengers, viz: Rev. Deem, who got aboard at Effner; Miss O'Neill, who was employed at Goodland and went to and from her work every morning and evening, via train; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klouse, of Goodland, who were returning home from

COUNTY VISITED BY THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN ITS HISTORY; LOSS $50,000.00

Farm homes in Benton county suffered damage estimated from $50,000 to $25,000 by two of the most destructive wind storms in the county's history that swept across this section of the state and eastern Illinois last Saturday afternoon.

Dance houses were swept away in York township and in Newton county and many barns, cribs and other buildings, windmills, trees, telegraph and electric light poles were wrecked over a path extending in a northeasterly direction across Benton county from the vicinity of Burwell to a point three miles north of Hemington where it continued its destruction for many miles.

There were many narrow escapes at farm homes here and in Newton county but fortunately, no lives were lost and nobody was seriously injured and there was no great loss of livestock in this county where it is reported all will recover.

The tornado or twister, that struck Indiana at a point about three and one-half miles south west of Rash, left a path of destruction in the vicinity of Stockland, Ill., six miles west of Freedom Park, and several persons were injured and removed to the hospital at Watkins where it is reported all will recover.

Sidewall No. 19334

A survey by the Red Cross reveals that 20 families in Newton county suffered losses ten of whom are renters. Seven of these are reported to need assistance. Four head of horses, 32 milks and 1,000 chickens were killed in Newton county, according to the Red Cross. It is believed there will be little need of assistance from the Red Cross in Benton county.

The first storm, a genuine twister, struck York township about 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the cyclone that swept across the central part of the county in a northeasterly direction was about 4 o'clock.

At the Dr. Greenman farm, one mile south west of Rash, tenanted by James Potter, and at the James Cooley house one mile farther to the southwest, every building was completely swept away and the wonder of the thousands who have viewed the ruins is how the occupants of the homes escaped with their lives.

On southwest another mile and one-half to the Charles McEwan farm, tenanted by Lester McEwan, the barn, corn crib, windmill and other buildings were completely demolished but the house weathered the fury of the wind and remained standing although the roof on the south wing was carried away, part of the roof on the main part of the dwelling was demolished and the walls considerably twisted. It is estimated that the house is damaged at least $1,000.

Lester McEwan carried no windstorm insurance but it is said the buildings were insured. A piece of the timber was driven through and killed a hog at this home. The McEwan farm is on the Indiana-Illinois state line.

Across the state line to the southwest a distance of about forty rods from the McEwan farm, the home of Mrs. Nellie Reynolds was almost completely swept away, the only thing left standing was the badly wrecked double corn crib. This family was not at home when the storm struck.

The families at the James Potter, James Cooley and McEwan homes, escaped possible death or serious injury by seeking safety in basements when they saw the storm approaching.

Mr. Potter was in a field operating a tractor and when he reached the house he assisted his wife and 11-year old son into the basement and all three escaped injury when the two-story eight room house was lifted from the foundation and reduced to kindling. Practically every piece of furniture in a complete loss.

This farm was formerly owned by Wm. Shookwiler and the present owner, Dr. Greenman, had recently remodelled the house that was modern in every particular with electric lights, bath room, inside toilet and other conveniences not usually found in a farm home. The barn was almost new as well as the other buildings including a large double corn crib. The only vintage of a building standing after the storm, was the lower half of the barn that is twisted out of shape. Seven pigs in the barn lot and about 300 chickens were killed. Many of the chickens were without feathers.

Every building including a 14-room house, was completely demolished and scattered over a wide territory at the James Cooley home, not a vestige of a building left standing, as will be noted by a picture appearing in this paper.

The Cooley family had a thrilling escape but no member of the family were injured outside of minor bruises. Mr. Cooley was operating a tractor in a field when he saw the storm approaching.

He managed to reach the house and he was in the act of closing the basement door when the storm struck. The door was blown from its hinges and rested against the basement wall with the family gathered under it and it formed a protection from large foundation bricks that were showered into the basement with such force that boards on the door were splintered. A lot of other heavy debris filled the basement here and also at the Porter home. A corn picker and other farm tools in an implement shed, were twisted and damaged beyond repair. Mr. Cooley lost a cow that was charged several rods and killed and about 300 chickens were also lost.

Three rings, one a diamond belonging to Mrs. Cooley, that were in a jewel box on a dresser, were found the following day in some straw and plastering some distance from the house but the jewel box has not been recovered. One of the rings was given to Mr. Cooley by his late mother and was a keepsake.

This particular section of the storm was a menace for thousands of visitors on Sunday and at times there was a congestion of traffic on the highways. Many sight seen were in evidence every day this week.

Although not in the direct path of the tornado, considerable damage occurred at Hans where the top of the elevator was blown off and scores of trees felled. Many window panes in homes at Hans were also broken and it is said there was a wild scramble for basements and places of safety by the populace.

There was some damage at Keeland but the real devastation in Newton county was at Hazeled, the home of George Aze, and two miles south of Brock where the following homes were wrecked: Ray Hitchcock, Frank Dewes, Ernest Martin, Jacob Bower, Willis Gregg, Harry Burley, Bower Lyons, and others. Some narrow escapes are reported but nobody was killed or critically injured. Several of these farms are owned by Mr. Aze.

At Hazeled, trees were uprooted and thrown against the residence. In fact, most of the beautiful trees here were blown down or damaged. Some of these trees had been standing 100 years. The log cabins at Hazeled also suffered some damage.

Several members of the Hazeled Country Club from Fowler were golfing or in the club house when the storm struck and they had a thrilling experience.

August Leonard, Ralph McNeely, L. L. Franklin, C. J. Mulder, Bob Eaton, Jimmy Gilmer and some of the ladies were in the locker building that weaved considerable but weathered the storm. Its occupants expected it to be carried away at any moment. Mr. Franklin's car that was parked in the drive to the west of the locker, was blown out onto the pavement and came to stop in a ditch. The radiator was distorted by a falling limb. A tree fell on the top of Ralph McNeely's car and it was carried in and Stockheim and Fowler were being played and on the south part of the cover and all sought safety in a ditch. They escaped with a good soaking and had scars.

The second wind storm that struck this county around 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and played havoc with buildings and trees across a path from Fowler east to a mile wide, from the vicinity of Roswell to northern Gilboa township, is commonly known as a cyclone and not a tornado or "twister" and consequently, the destruction in its wake was not as pronounced as in York township and Newton county.

The greatest damage from the cyclone was in Gilboa township but no farm homes were completely demolished as was the case of the other storm that struck possibly a half hour earlier in the afternoon.

The tornado traveled at a much lesser speed and its path was not more than thirty rods wide at any point but the destruction in this orbit was almost complete. Lester McEwan, living on the Illinois state line, says he observed the storm approaching while operating a tractor some 50 rods from the house and that he had time to drive the tractor to the barn lot, turn out four horses on the barn and reach the house while it was yet off quite a distance.

Mr. McEwan stood upon a porch and watched the storm approach within forty rods of his home before he sought safety in the cellar. He says the dense, black clouds were an unforgettable sight as they came rolling along the ground and sweeping up everything in its path. He said buildings at the Mrs. Reynolds farm, forty rods to the south west, disappeared in the black cloud and an instant later, he could see the wreckage as it was scattered in all directions.

Eye witnesses to the storm that struck father south in the county, say the foaming clouds were light in color and resembled a dense fog. The wind here at well as in York township, was accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain.

Southwest of Fowler on the Ed Shriver farm, the barn and outbuildings were badly wrecked and a barn and crib at Mark Weber's home were blowed. A large stock barn was demolished at the Elmer Kelly farm four miles southwest of town and other smaller buildings damaged. A machine shed was also wrecked at the Levi Myer farm five miles south of Fowler.

At the Anna Bennett farm, one-half mile east of Barco, trees were damaged and the chimney on the house leveled. There was also damage to trees at Henry Lockhart's farm, the home of Earl Lane and at other places in Center township with many outbuildings reported demolished or damaged.

The home of Earl Thomas, one-half mile south of the Bethany Chapel church in Gilboa township, fell the brunt of the storm and quite a loss occurred. One barn was completely demolished, part of the roof on the house raised, windmill blown down and other buildings damaged. Parts of the sheet iron roofing of the barn and other debris were carried and strewn over fields a distance of almost a mile. Straw and hay from stacks west of the house were blown through broken windows into the house and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who were not at home, were greeted by a very looking sight when they returned. Mr. Thomas lost a hog and one calf.

Trees in the yard at the Bethany Chapel church were broken and twisted and the upper part of the barn at the home of Glenn McCollough, one-half mile farther east, was shorn off at the top-left floor. A garage was lifted from an automobile and completely wrecked without any damage to the car.

At the Burkholder farm, formerly owned by Theodore Johnson and later by the late Harvey Loda, the windmill was blown down, garage demolished, trees damaged and part of the roof of the barn removed. Considerable damage also resulted to trees at the McCollough homestead one-half mile east of the Burkholder farm. Probably the heaviest loss in Gilboa township was at Frank Lambeth's where the upper part of an almost new barn was ripped off at the left floor, wash room demolished, windmill and many trees broken, some of the ground so damaged.

Barns are reported wrecked at the Schini farm, the home of Tomp McCleary and at other places south of the Burkholder farm. Damage is also reported at the Robert Gardner and Guy Fainle homes in Gilboa with a lot of trees down at both places.

DEEP-ROOTED BIG BLOW—The wind that swept over George Ade's home and Hazelton, his country show place, left the Jacob Bowers home 3 miles south of Brook look something like New England after a tidal wave. Note the uprooted trees (foreground stump) turned against house, where although the timbers held true.

HERE TODAY, GONE TOMORROW—So say the women who look over the spot where the foundation is all that is left of the Burley farm home and farm buildings, 3 miles south of Brook. This farm house was blown into bits over a mile course northeast.

HOME, SWEET HOME—Fred McDuffy, lies (or used to) in this fine country home 2 miles northwest of Wolcott. Note in the foreground left, the kitchen stove, the burner-less oil stove, stovepipe, and a shambles of doors, rubble and boards where the girls look on. Hundreds of trees were torn down on Mr. McDuffy's place along route 2, Wolcott.

March 1916
 LAST Friday when the wind went on a rampage in this vicinity some people just didn't care for it as they well remembered the tornado of 1909 when things really were up ended. Damage was done at the Bill Kiffner home near Sheldon and glass from windows cut Mrs. Kiffner about the face. It also took a whirl out in the Mt. Zion neighborhood and took off some roof at Amel Taylors' and struck at the Ray Risley place. There may have been more and Taylor said this week that he had a plenty to suit him.

O-MAN'S LAND—Fred McDuffy's farm at Wolcott route 2 looked like this when folks got around Sunday. Desolation everywhere, with hundreds of trees uprooted and stripped. The barn lot was littered with pieces of what used to be there.

HEAVENLY—George Ade the humorist may laugh, but it will not be for some days. This barn of his friend Del Sharkey 2 miles west of Wolcott looks like this. Thanks to the few tons of hay in the upper left, the ground floor balked when the roof and walls wanted to run away.

THERE WAS A HOUSE—Until Saturday night's wind-storm took things into its own hands and here is the spot of rubble and splinterings that marks the last resting place of Omer Rough's house. There is not enough left now to make a shelter for a small car.

Wedded Bliss With Blood Daisy Hilton Was Too Much Like a Triple Albanian, So Hubby, Harold Estep (Above), Walked Out on the Honeymoon, and Now Daisy's Giving Him the G.A.S.

VIOLET and Daisy Hilton, attractive and vivacious Siamese twins, have been through a lot together.

Being Siamese twins, joined by an indelible bond of flesh and cartilage, they couldn't very well go through it any other way. Perforce, they have shared poverty, wealth, obscurity, fame, grief, happiness; even their bed and bath.

But they ran up against trouble when it came to romance. Under such circumstances, it would appear, two's company, and three's a crowd.

Owing to this sad phenomenon, Daisy has just seen her husband Harold Estep, a nightclub master of convenience, for divorce, charging that he deserted her ten days after their marriage.

Estep, now presiding at an Empire N. Y. nightclub under his professional name of Buddy Sawyer, doesn't deny that he gave up matrimony while the honeymoon was still young.

But, under the circumstances, he does not think he should be blamed.

"Daisy is a lovely girl," he says, "but I guess I just am not the type of fellow that should marry a Siamese twin."

"As a matter of fact, I am not even what you would call real gregarious. When you work in a nightclub, there are times when you get tired of seeing anybody around—let alone twin brides."

"As far as being a bridegroom under such conditions is concerned, I suppose I am what you might call a hermit."

Daisy filed her divorce suit in Pittsburgh, where she and, naturally, Violet, have their home, and where they appear—nervously together—in nightclub shows and theatres.

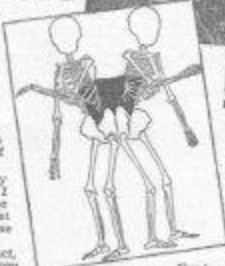

The twins, who have been in the show business since their teens, are accomplished singers and dancers. If they could be separated, they probably would make two first-class vaudeville performers.

They own the hotel in which they live. Good Americans, they appear frequently at various shows, and have even donated blood to the Red Cross bank.

Violet is also married—to James Moore, also in the theatrical business. They have been wedded for eight years now, and seem to have found a "three-in-a-row" problem less formidable than Daisy and her Buddy. Anyway, they're still Mr. and Mrs.

Generally speaking, though, the twins can't be said to have experienced a calm romantic life.

Back in 1930, Mrs. Mildred Oliver demanded a divorce from her husband, who had been the twins' manager, accusing them—both of them—of being his sweetheart.

Ten years ago Violet was planning to marry Harry Mason, English weight boxer. In 1933, Jack Lewis, Chicago orchestra leader, hoped to wed Daisy.

Then Violet became engaged to Maurice Lambert, band leader. They wanted to marry. But twenty-one States refused the license on the ground that their marriage would be "contrary to morals and public policy."

However, Violet is a determined soul and as soon as she was able to obtain a marriage license she married Mr. Moore. The romance with Mr. Lambert died of frustration.

Many have asked how the bride—and the bridegroom—could enjoy a

When Marguerite Moore, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Deart N. Lewis, of Dallas, Tex., both vaudeville performers, decided to get married between acts in Portland, Ore., they chose their friends, Daisy and Violet Hilton, Siamese twins, appearing on the same bill, to act as witnesses. New Circuit Judge James F. Stapleton is wondering whether he should have allowed the twins to sign as two individual witnesses, making a legal point. The twins and the bridal couple are shown following the ceremony.

happy honeymoon, to say nothing of that marital bliss with a sister who always is present.

"We get rid of each other—mentally," says Violet. "It is a matter of psychology." To which Daisy adds: "When Maurice was courting Violet, I quit paying attention and didn't know what was going on. Sometimes I read and sometimes I took a nap."
"And when Jimmy — that's Mr. Moore—kisses me good night, as he always does, it's really good night—I just go to sleep."
The twins have to be models of consideration, tolerance and sympathy. For since birth they have had to adjust themselves to each other. They have special chairs, for they are joined at the spines and must sit almost back to back. They sleep in a large double bed. And if one wants to turn over she must awaken the other and execute an acrobatic "barrel roll," as it is called in wrestling circles.
But frequently one will lie awake for hours, motionless, for fear of disturbing her sleeping sister.
"We never quarrel, except for a few words," they both insist. "We just talk things over until we come to a happy agreement."
The Hilton sisters are by no means the only Siamese twins who have wanted marriage and even made a success of it.

The original Siamese twins, Cheng and Eng, both married American girls, sisters and daughters of a clergyman. They lived in North Carolina and brought up between them 22 normal children, the descendants of whom are still living.
But the wives of Cheng and Eng, though sisters, could not get on together. The twins placed them in separate houses and visited each in turn.
And as they were inimitably joined in life, so they died together. They quarrelled violently because Cheng drank heavily and Eng feared it would undermine their health. They did not speak for years. But it was Eng who died first at the age of 67. And the poison from his disease entered the healthy and tubercular veins of his twin and killed him an hour later.
The Hilton sisters, though they have many tastes in common, are quite distinct personalities. Violet is gay, Daisy is grave.
Maybe that explains why Violet's marriage has lasted—and Daisy's is nearing its end.

of thoughts raced through his head—that "I don't wish to seem improperly inquisi-your romance must have been rather try-

"Well, yes, it was," said Rosa (Mrs.

and tactful that we got along better than you would imagine."
"Would you mind telling me about it?"
perched the writer.
"Not at all," said Rosa, without a moment's hesitation. "But before I start, let me tell you that Jose, too, had a sweet heart, a lovely fellow."
"Jose nodded her head reminiscently.
"Did you marry him, too?" asked the writer.
"No," Rosa continued. "Jose's sweetheart died of appendicitis last July."
"It must be rather embarrassing to have

The Earliest Photograph of Little Rosa and Josefa.

FOR forty years the scientific world has awaited patiently but anxiously for the death of one of the famous "Siamese Twins," Rosa and Josefa Buzak.

These two remarkable women died the other day in Chicago, and sentimental considerations intervened to rob scientists of their long-looked-for opportunity to perform an experiment which would have been studied by scientists all over the civilized world.

Nowhere in the world were there two human beings inseparably joined together like these two interesting women. From one common spine nature had chosen to grow two human beings. Wherever they travelled throughout the Old and the New worlds they were eagerly studied by scientists, and were again the subject of lectures before medical societies and medical schools.

The problem which presented itself to the scientists was whether it would be possible to cut apart nature's bony shackles and save the life of one of the twins if the other one should die or be threatened with a fatal ailment.

"One terrible thought forever haunts me—the day my sister Rosa dies, that day I must die also," said Miss Josefa Buzak in an article printed some months ago on this topic.

But the medical men and the surgeons in America and abroad reassured the twins and begged for an opportunity to test their skill, in the hope that at the moment of death the life of one might be saved. For forty years all over the world, wherever those women travelled, they had always been under observation, and the best surgeons of Germany, Russia, England, France and America stood ready at a moment's call to perform the operation so eagerly anticipated.

For several months the women appeared on the stage in New York, and New York surgeons kept in touch with them. Several weeks ago the twins went to Chicago and immediately the surgeons of Chicago made examinations and stood in readiness in case serious illness threatened either of the twins. Dr. Beakston's Breckston and his staff of consulting surgeons made a careful examination of the twins, and when Miss Josefa was stricken with jaundice recently preparations were made for the operation in case the woman died. The patient developed complications and died.

But in spite of every suggestion on the part of the doctors the sister Rosa refused to have the operation performed, and Rosa's son declined to assist the doctors, declaring that he preferred to have his mother's wishes respected, even at the cost of her life. Thus the sentimentality of one of the twins and the blind obedience of her own son cheated the doctors out of an operation which had been looked forward to by the whole medical world for nearly half a century. Fifteen minutes

The Twins in Girlhood.

After dinner was all in a bodily organ of a human woman, except that their intestines were joined at the end.

Rosa was a trifle taller and thinner than Jose, her height being 4 feet 5 inches. Jose was one inch shorter.

The twins weighed 215 pounds. Each twin's foot were not in line with their bodies, making them walk with crab-like motion when they advanced both outer feet, then both inner feet together. They had no trouble in walking up or down stairs, and when they were children used to climb trees.

Jose's left leg was two inches shorter than her right, giving her the appearance when walking of having had hip disease.

"Well," said the writer playfully, after finishing reading the report of the German scientists, "this seems to reveal everything about you except your love affairs."

"We have had a romance in our lives—that is to say, sister Rosa has," said Jose. "Well, why didn't she marry the man?"

"She did."

"What?" asked the writer. "You really mean that one of you is a married woman—why, how on earth?"

"Yes, Rosa is really Mrs. Franz Dvorkak. Her husband was killed in the war—poor Franz. Rosa is a widow and there is little Franz to comfort her."

"Little Franz? Who is little Franz?"

"Little Franz is our boy; Rosa's boy, I mean. But he is just as dear to me as if he was my own." Raising her voice and calling "Franz," the door of the adjoining room opened and in came a fine, erect, manly little chap of eleven. It was "our boy."

after Josefa died her sister Rosa died also, and science was robbed of the opportunity of demonstrating whether it could sever the shackles of nature and save the life of the woman who otherwise was doomed.

Dr. Brakston's plan was similar to the plans of the German and English and New York surgeons. An incision in the flesh was to be made at the point where the twins were joined together. The bony growth was then to be sawed through and the wound sewed up. It was agreed by the surgeons that no vital organ and no important artery would be interfered with and that there was every prospect of saving the life of the separated twins.

But sister Rosa had lived in such intimate association with sister Jose, as she was called, from the moment of their birth, that the thought of existing without her companion was unbearable. Rosa preferred to go into the grave with Josefa rather than endure the intolerable loneliness of a precarious existence, even though it meant the making an orphan of her own son.

Discussing their case recently, sister Rosa said:

"We are vitally tied together, as the famous Siamese twins were. Chang caught pneumonia, but Eng was not affected. But when Chang grew worse and died then Eng died, too—but not of pneumonia. Their blood circulation was connected because their arteries were joined together. The disease blood of Chang crept into the arteries of Eng and poisoned his blood, and brought his heart to a standstill."

"We are even more helplessly linked together than Chang and Eng. Would you like to read what the German scientists reported after a long examination of us?"

Josefa, dear, you jump up and run over to the desk there and get that German scientific paper."

This little joke brought a smile to the faces of both sisters, and with perfect harmony of motion the four legs stretched, the two bodies rose, and with a sidelong motion like a crab the twins glided across the room to the desk. From the published report of the painstaking medical examination it appears that:

The twins had separate spinal columns in a joint in which became a little below their armpits. At the seventh or eighth vertebra,—counting from the first, the spine joined in a rigid bridge of flesh and bone, which was thirty-seven inches in circumference.

When you pinched any spot in this bridge within two inches either side of the center, both Jose and Rosa felt the pinch. But pinch the bridge outside of that zone and on Jose's side and Jose alone perceived the sensation. If you pinched the bridge on Jose's side, only Jose got the sensation.

Their bodies were turned away from each other at an angle of about 45 degrees. They could easily look into each other's eyes, and by severely twisting their necks train themselves to kiss each other. Their outer shoulders were twenty-eight inches apart.

As independence it does not bother me. There is, however, a portion of each of our bodies which is joined or stuck a bit in my sister. I feel the pain just as much as she does. But this organ of neural nerve connection is perfectly well limited to the flesh in the neighborhood of where we are joined together.

"It used to bother us at first always to have to sleep in one position all night long, without ever moving over a little bit for fear of waking up the other twin. As children we were annoyed in lots of ways which we have learned to overcome. If one of us wanted to get up from a chair she would ferretly make a sign to rise and then find she was firmly anchored to the other twin. Whichever one of us wanted to walk toward the other one had to walk backward, and our heads used to bump each other.

"Of course, in the hospital," the twin explained, "we had to have turns—what I mean is, that we are both in the bathroom together, but only one can wash at a time," said Rosa, who she turned sideways toward Rosa and began to arrange some extra locks that she used through the window had been flying. "And besides washing each other's back, we can also dry it without tearing the bath towel all to pieces.

"We pull our stockings on the same way," she explained. "Our undersuits are separate garments, except they are sewed together over our bridge. We don't wear corsets. The stanch hurt our backs. And the corsets hamper us when we want to bend away to turn around. Our undershirts are sewed together, too, about the waist. Our dress, like all our clothes, has to be made for us. The one we use the water are the same as any woman's. The waist has to be joined, though it and our street shoes have two openings to each garment."

"Did you always get along together as well as you do now?" asked the writer.

"Oh, no," said Rosa, as both twins smiled in recollection. "When we were little girls growing up together we quarrel over our dolls. Rosa always used to want my dolls as well as her own. Then we used to quarrel over the way we should walk. I was always very proud. We used to walk natural just like other people. It took years of practice for us to walk as we do now. Still, I think it was worth it, as it gives us a better appearance to people."

"And when the time comes for one of you to pass to the great Beyond—ventured the writer.

The faces of the twins took on a sad, reflective look. Finally Rosa said:

"Well, of course, we have thought of that—though, a great deal about it. The doctor assure us that the life of the living one can be saved. But would life be worth while without Jose? I shall never be able to decide until the moment comes."

And when the present came Rosa chose to share Jose's grave—and she doctors pushed up their instruments and went away, lashed and disappointed.

But with the death of these interesting twins, the last chapter has not been written. Indeed, while their death closed the door to the interest of science in an effort to separate them and save the life of one of the twins, yet their death instantly opened the door to legal complications which are without parallel in the records of any courts in any part of the world.

For many years the Black sisters had owned the great cities here and abroad and had accumulated a considerable little fortune estimated at $200,000 or more. When the twins died in Chicago the other day they left two surviving relatives, Frank, the twelve-year-old son of Rosa, and Frank, the brother of the twins.

"Who inherits the large little fortune left by the twins?"

No lawyer will undertake to answer this question with any degree of certainty. The answer revolves about the question as to whether Rosa and Joseph Black were one individual in the eyes of the law. Frank is the son of both of the twins and he will inherit the money.

But if the twins were legally two individuals, then the estate will be divided and the boy will receive Rosa's half and the brother Frank, with whatever realty may still be in the lot, will receive among them Joseph's half.

And here the testimony of the doctors will decide the ruling of the courts. In convincing facts in regard to the physical peculiarities of the twins which seem to be about evenly divided in favor of the contention that the two were really one, and the contrary contention that the two were quite distinct individuals, except for the heavy ridge and other physical peculiarities which they shared in common.

The attorneys who will insist that the twins were separate individuals will rely and insist on the claim that personality and individuality depended upon the abundant mental reactions. Here, there is strong mental evidence that in those two heads there were separate individuality of taste and temperament.

But, on the other hand, it will be insisted that while there were two heads and two temperaments, yet Nature had so joined them together that neither one could have existed separately and apart. If the doctors had been permitted to try the experiment of sawing that heavy ridge they would have settled the question as to whether Jose and Rosa were in fact two individuals.

Youthful Fighter Revealed as 15

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Because he's due to receive his medical discharge on Jan. 22, wounded Signalman George Glascock figures the navy may as well let him on the secret—he's only 15 years old.

The youth, who wears Atlantic American and European campaign ribbons, told a reporter he married to enlist in the navy in November, 1942, at the age of 14 1/2, after being turned down by the coast guard and marine corps because of color blindness.

He got a shrapnel wound in the knee when he volunteered to go ashore on Morde with a machine pistol assigned to be used in the top of hill 505 and look around.

On the way back, he said, the party was trapped for 36 hours in a hole five feet square and six feet deep by about 45 Japs. The patrol finally managed to snare back to American lines through all trenches.

ANNIE M. CRAY
DIED MONDAY NIGHT

BEAUTIFUL LIFE CLOSSES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS. BURIAL MADE YESTERDAY.

May - 1914

The people of Kentland were deeply grieved Tuesday morning by the announcement of the death of Miss Annie McCray during the night. Miss McCray had been seriously ill for about ten days, and passed away Monday night at 10:30. The cause of death probably traces back to last fall when she suffered an attack of influenza, that was then sweeping the country, and which left her in a run-down condition and with a weak heart, thus seriously complicating her last sickness.

Funeral services were conducted from the family home yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, and an immense gathering of friends were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect. The services were very impressive and were conducted by the Rev. Chester W. Wharton of Crawfordsville, a former pastor of the Kentland Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. N. V. Andrews. Burial was made in the family lot in Fairlawn cemetery.

Miss Annie McCray was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Greenberry McCray, and was born on a farm near Brook, October 29th, 1866. She moved to Kentland with her parents in October, 1870, and spent the remainder of her life here, was educated in the public schools, and participated actively in the church, club and social life of the town. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and devoted herself zealously to the Sunday school, missionary society, and other work pertaining to the church. She was also a member of the Kentland chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, and took an active interest in this society, attending the national meeting in Washington, D. C. a few weeks ago.

Miss McCray suffered an injury in childhood which rendered her a cripple the remainder of her life, but this seemed to sweeten rather than to taint her disposition. She possessed a very lovable and pleasing personality, and not being privileged to lead the life of a normal woman in all things, she gave herself over heartily to art, and books, and flowers, to the close companionship of friends and to religious thought and labors. And out of this environment thier grew and developed a life of childlike beauty, not crowned by the graces of womanhood. As the rose blossomed and blossomed to give its beauty and fragrance to the world, likewise was the life of Miss McCray. Her pain and sorrows were hidden behind a smile—a smile reflected from a gracious, loving, beneficent soul. She was loved by all for her goodness, and death will not efface the memory of her sweet life.

She is survived by one brother, Warren T. McCray, and one sister, Mrs. Fannie Compant. Her mother died December 12, 1912, and her father on December 21, 1913.

Mrs. Fannie Compant Passed Away Early Wednesday Morning

P. 35

Mrs. Fannie Compant, 79, widow of the late Frank A. Compant and one of the eldest and most beloved women in Kentland, passed away in her home on north Third street at four o'clock Wednesday morning, following an illness of about a month's duration. Funeral services, with the Rev. Earl Short, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, officiating, will be held at the residence at two o'clock tomorrow (Friday) afternoon; interment in Fairlawn cemetery.

Fannie McCoy, daughter of Greenberry and Martha McCray, was born January 5, 1863, on a farm near Brook, and with her parents, moved to Kentland in 1870, and resided here continuously thereafter until her death. She graduated from the Kentland public school in 1879, and was married here on February 25, 1884, to Frank A. Compant, who preceded her in death in the year 1905. She was the mother of one son, Donald, who died in 1906. She was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church; of the Kentland Chapter of D. A. R., and the Kentland Woman's Club. Her parents were of the very early settlers of Newton county, coming here from Crawfordsville, Ind., by covered wagon, in 1862 and settled on a farm northeast of Brook—which farm later became her property and was still so at the time of her death.

GOODLAND MAN'S DEVICE, NOW UNDER TEST, MAY CUT ARMY PILOT CASUALTIES

March, 1942.

Inventor Enlisted In Air Corps As Private

By NEELIE C. MCCRERY

GOODLAND, March 28.—When Private Joseph Rufing Crowden, a high school pupil in Goodland high school and about 16, was yanking everything about him to get a radio set up, he was surprised to find that the invention which he had just conceived would be of great importance to the army. He had a radio robot control device which can send an airplane into a deadly bombing mission, and which can return to its base—all this without the necessity of a pilot.

Here in his home town everybody knows Private Crowden as "Joe". When Joe conceived the idea of a radio control robot, America was at peace, and his original idea was to make a robot for commercial use. He worked on this invention for 17 years.

World conditions changed. War came. Crowden was then on an even more gigantic scale when the World War broke out. He decided that he would be done to strengthen America's defense was needed. Joe, therefore, returned to his government's service in 1931, and was sent to Fort Ford, Pa., where, using the facilities of Scott Field, he made a radio robot. He performed the very delicate job of setting up the radio robot in the Washington department in Washington, D. C. He considered it a valuable contribution.

Private Crowden at his desk in army camp.

to defensive and offensive action. Almost 17 years ago, for Private Crowden's contribution to the war, the government has been, in his opinion, a valuable contribution to the war effort.

UNALTERING FAITH

That it will work and save lives and money is the firm belief of the man whose brain creation is experimenting with the device; but it is under serious consideration for use in the U. S. Army air corps.

The boy who experimented with radio and made the first home-made radio set in Goodland did not mind broadcasting on his being a return of private work.

Crowden Is 'Joe' In Own Home Town

lured his dream into reality, a now Uncle Sam's soldier in North Carolina, O.D.R.D., in North Carolina, S. C. He is 35 years old.

His father, Fred Eagan Crowden, is a retired rural care-taker who is engaged in the bottle gas business here. Crowden, in president of the Women's Society of Christian Service, is a member of the Methodist church. He is a member of the Methodist church and is a member of the organization popular in clubs and organizations here.

He has two brothers, Harold and Thomas, both of Goodland, one of whom is a member of the organization of a daughter, Juan Crowden, of Knoxville, Ill.

Since probably he has given the invention, Private Crowden has had many offers from various firms which are interested in his device, but it is not in the hands of the government. He has also had many expressions of interest from many people, some appearing. "Cranks in the town" have come to him. His mail has been full of letters from all over the country. One of the letters was from a gentleman in New Jersey both of whom said: "Why not send me copies and attempt to get your invention?"

But Joe-Private Crowden—analyzes the situation. He says that his invention has helped him in his return of private work.

Home With Honorable Discharge

War Dog, Tuffy, Preston Brand 6 J 2, with one of his trainers, Corporal W. J. Schneider of Wapakoneta, Ohio.

War Dog Tuffy, Preston Brand 6 J 2 has returned home to his owner, Wilbur L. Olsen of Keokuk, Indiana, with an Honorable Discharge from the Quartermaster K-9 Corps.

Tuffy entered the service March 7, 1943 and was sent to the War Dog Reception and Training Center, Front Royal, Virginia for his basic training. During this period Tuffy received all of his shots, the physical examinations and all of the special attention which any member of the Armed Forces receives upon entering the service.

Upon completion of basic training, Tuffy being particularly fitted for advanced work was given specialized training which fitted him for Sentry Duty.

When training was completed at Front Royal, Tuffy was assigned to Sentry Duty at Dow Field AAB, Bangor, Maine. For twenty-one months Tuffy performed his duties faithfully as a Sentry Dog. Finally the day came when his services were no longer needed at Dow Field and Tuffy was sent to the War Dog Reception and Training Center, Fort Robinson, Nebraska.

Quartermaster dog trainers again put Tuffy through school, but this time it was a course in rehabilitation, fitting him for return to civilian life.

Tuffy in time demonstrated that he was ready to go home. Tests were passed and as far as his handlers were able to tell he could return to civilian life.

The great day at last arrived, a final check-up by the K-9 Veterinary Staff proved Tuffy physically fit for a discharge. Tuffy has come home for good.

DOCTOR REPORTS BIRTH OF A BOY TO INDIAN GIRL OF 5

LIMA, Peru, May 15. (AP) Dr. 26-pello Larrañaga, chief surgeon and director of the Lima maternity hospital, said a 5.95 pound boy was born yesterday to an Indian girl 5 years old.

Dr. Larrañaga said the case was witnessed by sixty doctors when Dr.
Geraldo Lameda and Dr. Alejandro Rusillan performed a Caesarian operation to deliver the child. The child was declared to be in perfect condition. The child mother also was said to be doing well.

"The birth certificate of the child mother, Lisa Medina, shows she was born in September, 1934. There is a discrepancy in the civil and church records," Dr. Larrañaga said. "Her age also is corroborated by the fact the girl has her first teeth and is not more than three feet, one inch tall."

Dr. Lameda discovered the case a few weeks ago when the child's mother brought her to the hospital.
Examination, Dr. Larrañaga said, proved the girl had been raped. She had shown signs of sexual maturity when only three months old, he added.

Chicago Expert Credits Story.
The possibility of a girl becoming pregnant at 5 years of age, as reported Sunday from Lima, Peru, was upheld yesterday by Dr. Joseph E.
De Lee, obstetrics authority of Chicago Lying-in hospital.

A discussion of precocious and pregnancies is his book, "The Principles and Practice of Obstetrics." Dr. De Lee cited the case of a girl who became pregnant

TUESDAY, MAY 16

at 6½. According to the physician who reported the case in a German medical journal, Dr. De Lee said, the mother had the physical development of a girl of 10 to 12 years old.

Unlike the case of the Peruvian Indian girl, whose baby was delivered alive by Caesarian operation, the Russian girl's baby died at birth.

Dr. De Lee said that he had read of another case in which a girl of 7 gave birth to a child in India.

"While precocious pregnancy is rare, he said, "premature sexual development may occur, sometimes at the ages of 1 or 2."

SPINDLER CO. PURCHASES OLD HUBERTZ HOUSE FROM EMMETT JONES

June 1938
 Sale Contracted Friday; Modern Addition to Replace Present Structure Soon

Finally, the long and generally desired transaction involving the purchase of the old Hubertz House premises, on the west side of Third Street (directly across from The Democrat office) for purpose of immediately tearing same down and replacing it with an imposing new structure, modern in every respect, has happily come to pass.

The deal was made last Friday when The Spindler Company, Inc., local selling representatives for the Sears Roebuck Company, purchased the property from Emmett Jones in whose name the title has recently rested. The new owners are to receive possession on July 10 and immediately thereafter will begin the work of razing the building and clearing the grounds for the new edifice. The plans for the new structure have not yet been drawn but they will, we understand, provide for a brick building, fire-proof throughout; with an attractive front, possibly much the same as the company's present quarters, and a floor space of approximately 50x90 feet.

The Spindler Company has also procured a long-time lease on their present store, which, with the new addition, when completed, will give them a floor space of about 120x150— one of the largest and most substantial stores in Newton and several of the adjacent counties. The Democrat joins the citizenry of the community generally in rejoicing over the promised new enhancement for our business district and extending to The Spindler Company none but the best of wishes for unbounded success in their new investment.

The Hubertz House is one of the oldest landmarks in Kentland's business section. The south portion of it was built there in 1881 (57 years ago) immediately after that half-block had been destroyed by a fire, and the north part was added a very few years later. Under its capable management by the John Hubertz family, the "Hubertz House", as it was always known, was for many years one of the best conducted and most popular hotels in this territory. But in the later years the property has been permitted to deteriorate in appearance until it has become outdated if not to say unsightly, and for years there has been a general kindly local hope for the time when it would be purchased, removed and replaced by a modern structure as is now in the near offing.

Krulls And Linns Resume Management

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dixon, who have operated the Kentland cafe for the past year, did not exercise their option to buy and the business is again in charge of Mr. and Mrs. John Krull and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Linn, the owners. The change in management was made on Tuesday of this week.

The Dixons who came here in November of 1947 with a lease and option to buy the business within one year, didn't exercise their option on December 1, and the owners took charge again.

The former owners will again run the business as they did in the past and after Mr. and Mrs. Dixon spend some time in California with their son, they expect to return to Kentland. Their plans for the future are not yet announced, they reported today.

LARGE WHITE-FACED EAGLE KILLED ON ROBT. BOYLES FARM

Saturday afternoon a large white faced eagle was killed on the Robert Boyles farm one mile northeast of Goodland. It measured ten feet from tip of wing to the end of other wing, (readers naturally believing that the eagle had two wings). Same was brought to town and placed on exhibition at Gagoon's market. This eagle has been seen by many of our people and supposed to be a large hawk. The young man who killed the eagle took advantage. The eagle was at the top of an old dead tree, busily defending itself from four or five crows that were trying to drive it away, when the young man slipped up— using a fence for a leverage? He got within 50 feet of it, took good aim with a No. 12 gauge and brought it down. The eagle is a fine specimen, being gifted with a fine plumage. It will be sent to a taxidermist in Chicago to be mounted after which it will be placed in the Goodland museum.—Fowler Review.

Charles Leonard, Senseless to Pain, Feels
No Cold in Winter and Can't Tell When He Cuts Himself Until He Sees Blood

Charles Leonard, 18, of Indianapolis, has baffled hospital physicians for two years because he cannot distinguish between hot and cold, nor identify anything by touching it. He is shown holding two test tubes, one containing very hot, the other very cold, water which feel the same to him.

By HANLEN WELLS
Central Press Correspondent
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 12.—City hospital physicians are baffled by the strange case of Charles Leonard, 18 years old, who is senseless to pain, can not distinguish between hot and cold articles and is unable to identify anything by touching it. In a period extending over the past two years, physicians have made examination after examination of the youth. But just what it is or what treatment might assist them, they do not yet know.

RESULT OF SHOCK

The physicians theorize that an electric shock Leonard received several years ago may be the cause of the loss of sensitivity. He was jolted by the shock of a live wire carrying 250 volts when he happened to touch the line while examining the results of a fire in a garage.

Leonard discovered he had lost his sense of feeling sometime after the fire when his school teacher pinched him one day. The teacher asked him if he were "wailing around dead."

The tests revealed that he had not been aware that his instructor had pinched him. Since then Leonard has been making visits once each week to the city hospital while guarded physicians have sought definite cause and treatment.

Giving the men of medicine assured Leonard. That is his ailment probably is not dangerous. Similar cases have been caused by paralytic anemia and a spinal ailment but exhaustive tests have proved he is not afflicted with either.

Leonard suffers no discomfort when he cuts himself, he does not become aware of it until he notices blood running. A short time ago he fell against a wire fence, inflicting a deep gash on one arm, but he did not know he had injured himself until it began bleeding.

Time and again at the city hospital, physicians have given the youth two test tubes—one filled with very hot water, the other one extremely cold. None of the times was he able to decide which was the cold one nor which was hot.

Pin pricks, pinches and even solid blows do not affect him.

"IT DIDN'T HURT"

One day while he and other newspaper carriers were waiting for the papers, Leonard was struck by one of the boys. The blow knocked his head backward and he had to step backward to regain his balance.

"I knew I had been hit," Leonard said, "but I had an idea how hard it didn't hurt."

There's only one time of year Leonard likes his rare ailment. That's in winter.

"I never feel cold in winter and run around most of the time without an overcoat," he said.

Last fire saved for Lady Kelly

P. 40

Two dozen veterans firemen stood around a tiny grave in the rear of Engine Company No. 96 at 429 Waller av., yesterday, and bowed their heads in prayer as a little flower-covered casket was lowered into the ground. Lady Kelly had answered her last alarm.

It was just nineteen years ago that Lady Kelly's mother came to the fire house, the gift of a man whose daughter had been saved by Fireman George F.

Kelly. Six years later Kelly was born in the backyard of the fire hall and her mother gave up her life at the same time.

Lady Kelly was a fire dog, by instinct as well as by birth. She learned the meaning of alarms before her bark was well developed and was soon allowed to leap aboard the truck and accompany the men to the scene of action.

Finding that the lease provided a quicker means of descent to the lower floor than the stairway, Lady Kelly learned this trick as well and six years was first on the job.

When the two-plateau system was established, Lady Kelly took her regular day off along with her pal and master, George Kelly. On these days she would spend the day playing with the six Kelly children.

Two years ago it was noticed that Lady Kelly, then 12 years old, was becoming slow of foot and fear was expressed that she might be ground under the wheels of the auto trucks which had come into vogue. So Lady Kelly had to stay at the fire house and she would whine restlessly as Kelly and the other firemen were wheeled out the doors.

Yesterday she was marked absent. "She's answered her last alarm," explained Kelly to his fellow firemen.

Among those attending the final rites were Capt. Patrick Brown, Lieut. John Gamble and Pipestem Alvey, Michael and James Lyons of Engine Co. No. 94; Capt. Dennis Laughlin of Truck 85, and others.

FOR 32 years some member of the Sharpe family has been active in the retail business in Kentland. And the family has been one that has taken a keen interest in the well-being of the community. A. H. Sharpe who started the Sharpe department store died in 1940 and since the business has been operated by Mrs. Sharpe and her son. And during 27 years of the store's operation Anne Rheude has been a faithful employee and has almost become a part of the organization. So this week Miss Rheude became the owner of the place she has worked so long. No doubt the store will look a bit different to her now that she must shoulder all the responsibilities that businesses have. But we think that the community will be glad to know that Miss Rheude is its new owner and all wish Mrs. Sharpe and her son, Norman well in future years.

SHERIFF PUTS OWN BROTHER INTO THE KENNELS

Something new in imprisonment transpired here Monday when Sheriff Robert O. Detcher, of Newton county, was placed in the unfortunate position of having to bring his own brother to the jail here for confinement. The brother, James Detcher, 25, and William Keown, 21, were arrested at Morocco early Sunday morning on a charge of being hilariously drunk. They were taken before a justice of the peace Sunday and their bond was affixed at $300 each. The same was furnished and the two men were released.

Paul Ott, son of George Ott of this city, also was arrested Sunday morning on complaint of James Haldeman, of Brook, who charged the youth with leaving him a fraudulent check in the sum of $3,000. Ott was arrested at his home here. At a preliminary hearing he pleaded guilty to the charge. His bond was set at $1,000. It has not been provided by noon today.—Tuesday's Kennesaw Republican.

Strikes Accelerator Instead of Brake and Crashes Through Side of Brick Building

A one and one-half ton truck from the Levy & Sons trucking company of Gary, crashed through the side of the building which houses the Kenbird Cafe last Thursday afternoon about 1:30 p. m.

The truck was driven by a Mr. Levy, who had parked in front of the Cafe. The machine evidently started to roll backwards and when a passing car sounded its horn the operator became confused and stepped on the accelerator thinking he was pressing the brake pedal. The truck pulled up to the sidewalk and on into the building. The force of the powerful engine broke the large plate glass window, demolished the brick wall, scratched tables inside, and broke venetian blinds. Fortunately there were no persons in the booths where the crash struck or they would have been injured. Mrs. Krull, wife of the Cafe owner, was sitting in the first booth a few feet north of where the truck struck but was not injured. Two customers were eating at a table in the north part of the Cafe at the time and were badly frightened as well as waitresses on duty at the time.

Workmen were summoned and the debris was cleared and the space boarded over. This week other workmen are busy replacing the brick and glass and will complete the task within a few days. Business is being transacted as usual at the Cafe. Pictures of the building will be printed at a later date.

As was heralded in the last issue, Santa Claus "did" come to Kentland, and a mighty busy Santa he was. Upward of 800 "kids" were on hand to see and to talk to Santa, and where they all came from is hard to say. The little ones not only appeared at the court house square for a gift, they and their parents in goodly number visited the airport to watch Santa in landing.

Birth of Octuplets Reported in China; Seven Still Living

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—(UP)—The birth of octuplets, seven of whom lived, was reported today by Chang Shu Ping, director of the tax bureau at Tsinan, 120 miles from Shanghai.

Chang told a correspondent for the newspaper Shun that his niece, Mrs. Chang Ping Wei, gave birth to eight boys July 3. One died shortly after birth, he said, but the others, as well as the mother, are "sound and hale."

The births took place, he said, in Communist-held Yang Fung Chen, northeast of Tientsin, where the Reds ordered special rations for the family. Previously it had been reported from Tientsin that septuplets had been born to the family, the Communists furnishing four nurses.

George pulled up to the house and when the bus stopped he felt like he and the other children were in an elevator when it started to sink in quick sand. And it went down to about one foot on the body too. There were four tractors at the rescue which George was happy to see and road men were unable to get within 15 yards of the soft spot. The children were taken to school by cars and it was the first time this year that "Goldie" has been late, but he thought his excuse was good.

Ade To Get New Grain Elevator

Farm Bureau Plans For 40,000 Bushel Storage

William F. Unger, chairman of Farm Bureau Co-op of Newton county announces plans for constructing a new, modern grain elevator at Ade. This has been a badly needed facility in that section for quite some time.

Present plans are for a 40,000 bushel storage house equipped with high-speed, stream-lined machinery throughout. Permanent, a-proof all concrete and steel construction from basement to roof will insure many years of care free service. Shellers, grain conveyers and motors will all be of oversize construction to permit the handling unlimited amounts of all kinds local grains.

Mr. Unger says they are sparing no time or material to push construction through and expect to be in position to handle soy beans and corn by fall of 1948.

255 WHLER GIRL NOW
AR ON BROADWAY

Mrs. Almena Taylor, the wonderful old mother of this community, observed her 100th birthday at her country home three and one-fourth miles southeast of here Wednesday, July 15. She was born in Detroit, Michigan, in 1842, and moved with her parents to Naperville, Ill., when a small girl.

The day was observed quietly with members of her family being present for the occasion. Many friends called during the day to extend their congratulations.

She is the mother of seven children, Addie and Mattie at home; Mrs. Thad Littlejohn, of near here; Mrs. Fred McGill, Watazka, Ill., deceased; Jay, who died in 1938 at the age of 69; Bert, who died in 1935 was 71; Charles, passed away in 1920, at 58. Mrs. Taylor has been unable to leave her bed for the past three years because of her advanced years and a weak left knee. She is cared for by her daughter, Addie, who also looks after her sister, Mattie, who is ill with heart trouble.

Mrs. Taylor lives on the same farm which she and her late husband occupied about 1868. Mr. Taylor died in 1918, and E. K. Murphy is her farm foreman. The major part of her fertile 150 acre farm is rented to people of the neighborhood.

Enjoys Good Health For Age

It is remarkable how well she feels for her advanced years, and can tell or listen to a joke the same as one many years her junior. She sleeps well and can eat most any food, but would enjoy to get out of her bed and go about the farm. At meal time she is able to sit up in bed and eat her food. Until recent years she could sit in a chair on the porch and enjoy the warm summer breezes.

Started Out in Two Room House

When she and Mr. Taylor came to Newton county from Naperville, they established their home on the present farm in a two room shack. There were no trees, nothing but swamp land. Indians were numerous and many stones and relics have been found in the vicinity. She remarked, when asked by an Enterprise reporter about conditions of that day, "that it was nine years before Mr. Taylor made enough money to send me back to Naperville to see my parents. I was glad to get back to my little shack and see my little children after a short visit."

Sweet Corn on Dinner Menu

When asked what she was going to have for her birthday dinner, she said, "Sweet corn—and I am going to eat an entire ear, too." She told a reporter to, that she didn't care for chickens. Those to attend the century dinner, included her daughter, Mrs. Thad Littlejohn and husband, Addie and Mattie, along with Mr. Murphy and some friends from Peoria, Ill.

Many Friends Call During Day

MRS. ALMENA TAYLOR

Many friends called during the day and early Wednesday she had received more than 100 cards. Several baskets of beautiful flowers decorated her room, which had been sent by Kentland organizations and friends.

Her Recipe for a Long Life

Mrs. Taylor has a very simple formula for a long and useful life, "hard work and living clean."

MIKE REED COMES NEAR INFLICTING FATAL WOUNDS ON

WIFE TUESDAY.

July 12, 1924

Mike Reed and his wife had a little family jar Tuesday morning that might easily have proven fatal. They were quarreling over some matters probably of more interest to themselves than the public, and Mike lost his temper and struck his wife on the head and in the face a number of times with a small hammer, inflicting some bad scalp wounds and fracturing the nasal bone.

Neighbors stood by and watched the fight but offered no resistance. Sheriff Gardner answered a hurried call to the home and placed Mike under arrest, and he was later given a hearing in Justice Mock's court on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, and was bound over to the Circuit Court under a $500 cash bond. He has been in poor health for some time and in no condition to stand proofs, and was probably easily led to offer a provoker.

Wednesday evening of this week, Miss Long made her first appearance as vocal soloist with the famous Phil Spitalny orchestra at the Paramount theatre on Broadway, New York City and the opening was a grand success.

Miss Long has signed a year contract with this orchestra and besides being featured as a soloist, she will make screen shorts and recordings.

Miss Long, whose stage name is "Gypsy Farmer" was featured as a vocal soloist with the National Broadcasting Company before signing the contract with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra of sixty pieces. This orchestra plays in the larger city theatres only and during the summer months, their programs are not broadcasted.

The Review joins with Miss Long's most of friends in extending congratulations to the "home town girl" who has made good in a big way.

FIRST "SEEING EYE" DOG IN THIS COUNTY

MASTER IS ROY PONTO OF EARL PARK WHOSE SIGHT IS IMPROVING FAST 1924

Roy Ponto of Earl Park received Monday what is believed to be the first "seeing eye" dog in Benton county. Roy had just returned from six weeks at the "Seeing Eye" institution in Morristown, New Jersey and the dog followed him by express.

His sight began failing about two years ago and specialists advised him there was no help for him and he would eventually be entirely blind. He went to Morristown about six weeks ago and spent five weeks in getting acquainted with a dog and learning how to handle it.

The first dog became so attached to him it wanted to attack anybody coming near and he had to take another dog. The dog's evident pleasure when Roy released him from the crate at the Big Four station indicated that he also had acquired a great deal of affection for his master after only six days of training.

LIDA WILSON TELEPHONE COMPANY MANAGER

Most businesses have their troubles and it is equally true of the telephone business, Miss Lida Wilson, will quickly tell you. Just help her to take in the cash on pay day is but one of the many duties of Miss Wilson. She must know something about each phase of the business from numbers up to how the current is generated. She or her corps of helpers are frequently asked, "what is the number of assistant's house in Des Moines?" and the caller thinks she should know. Miss Wilson began her work as a switchboard operator with the T. H. Dixon Telephone company in 1916 and has been in that kind of work continuously excepting a few years when she served as county attendance officer, cashier for the Interstate Public Service company and a collector in the W. E. Towers Insurance office. The title of operator and collector was given her in 1927 by the Winona Telephone company and was made local manager of the United Telephone company in 1932. For nine years she was also manager of Western Union when that office was located in the telephone building. Miss Wilson is a member of the Eastern Star lodge and the White Shrine as well as an active member of the local Presbyterian church. She knows many people in the vicinity.

Robert Norman Heuser, 22 years old, Goodland, said he took $1,000 on two occasions because he couldn't live on his G.I. student subsistence. Harvey G. Foster, special agent in charge of the Indiana FBI, said.

Heuser's mother-in-law, Mrs. Leona Hamilton, is assistant cashier of the Hamilton County Bank. Heuser hadn't been employed at the bank since summer although the thefts were on last Oct. 25 and Feb. 15, authorities said. A student of business administration at the Rosemeier college, Heuser is married and the father of a 4-months old baby. The thefts were detected during a check of shortages.

Heuser was released on $2,000 bond by United States Commissioner Wilbur Glendon at Hammond. The case was referred to a Federal Grand Jury.

Ernest Roberts Badly Injured In Car Tractor Crash Monday

Brook, Ind. (Sp) — Ernest "Shorty" Roberts, of Brook, was seriously injured on highway 16 near the Earl Sell farm about two miles west of Brook Monday afternoon about 5:15 p.m. Roberts was driving a tractor and pulling a trailer when a Dodge automobile driven by Phyllis Fowler, 16, of Brook crashed into the back of the trailer completely demolishing it as well as the tractor. Riding in the Fowler car were three other Brook high school girls, Patricia Fowler, 16, Janet Laffoon, 16 and Luella Devo, 17. The car was traveling about 50 to 55 miles an hour. BRIDGE COLLAPSES AT MONTICELLO

IT'S STILL ALL THERE, but in the wrong place. This bridge spanned the Tippecanoe river at Monticello, carrying U.S. road 24 traffic and providing the most convenient access to the White county seat for persons living east of the city. A sudden early spring melt may account for the structure's steel supports to buckle, and one side of the bridge dropped 22 to 24 inches. Plans were under way to repair the structure when it collapsed and dropped into the water, as pictured here. Now the state highway commission has announced plans to replace the structure with a new one. Meanwhile a footbridge is to be thrown across the river a short way to the north, or to the left of the scene pictured here. The East Monticello end of the bridge is to be seen on the far side. Long detours are necessary to get around the collapsed bridge.

JOHN W. RYAN ANSWERS FINAL CALL AT AN EARLY HOUR TUESDAY MORNING

PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN PASSED AWAY FOLLOWING A TWO-YEAR ILLNESS. SOLEMN REQUIEM HIGH MASS AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH TOMORROW MORNING.

A sorrowing and sympathetic community learned of the death Tuesday morning of one of its most respected citizens. John W. Ryan, merchant in Kentland for more than thirty years, yielded to the call of the Great Reaper and passed to another world.

Mr. Ryan was born in falling health for two years or more, and gradually his physical being wasted away until he had lost the strength to fight his infirmities. John W. Ryan was the son of William and Bridget Ryan, and he was born in Lafayette Ooster 31st, 1852. The family came to Kentland when the deceased was about one year of age. William Ryan died when John was but a boy and at an early age he had to assume the responsibilities of caring for his mother and sister, Mary. For a number of years he was in the employ of Alexander J. Kent, who conducted a store in Kentland at that period. Later he became a salesman following this profession for eight years. While engaged in this profession Mr. Ryan formed some very definite ideas and ideals which he carried with him to the end of his life. The writer of this sketch cannot refrain from commenting on Mr. Ryan's courteous and kind reception of every stranger that entered his place of business. Words of praise, encouragement, and advice he was never too busy to give. Any movement for civic improvement of the town or any faction proposed for the welfare of the town, found in him a hearty proponent. He was proud of his chosen profession and worked zealously to make his place of business attractive and worthy of the patronage of his customers.

In 1898 he entered the merchandising field as a partner of the late Patrick Keefe. In 1904 Mr. Keefe met his death in a railway accident and at that time C. C. Kent took over Mr. Keefe's interest in the business, and was associated with Mr. Ryan until 1919 when Mr. Ryan became sole owner of the clothing and grocery business which he conducted until his death. As stated earlier in this article, the deceased lived for many years with his widowed mother and his sister Mary. All of the older residents of the town know how kind and thoughtful Mr. Ryan was to his mother and sister. Naturally of a home-loving disposition, the little attentions and courtesies which he extended to them were particularly touching and were often commented upon by neighbors and friends.

In 1908 Mr. Ryan was united in marriage to Mrs. Natalie Coone of Chicago, who, with an adopted daughter, Helen, survive. Through the "widower" period of his illness they have ministered to him with the loving attentions which he himself enjoyed as much to bestow. His mother died in 1909 and his sister passed away about two years ago. There is no brother. James, who died in infancy, was the only child of his mother. He was celebrated tomorrow morning at a requiem at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Father William Keefe of Indianapolis, a close friend of the deceased, will be the Celebrant. Funeral will be made at St. Joseph's Cemetery. As a mark of the respect and esteem in which Mr. Ryan was held practically every business or professional man in town has dignified their intention of closing their respective places of business during the funeral services.

YOUNG MOTHER IS CALLED IN DEATH

Feb. 1934

EMBOLISM FATAL TO MRS. MEO. DIE SEGO, JR. LAST THURSDAY EVENING

Feb. 1934

A cloud of universal sadness fell over Kentland and surrounding countryside last Thursday when it was learned that Mrs. Ramona Sego, 28, had died quite suddenly at six o'clock that evening, at the family home three miles east of Kentland.

The untimely passing of Mrs. Sego is a tragedy. In the extreme illness passing resources from the home the maternal influence and tender devotion, and places upon the father the responsibility of rearing nine surviving children. Mrs. Sego's entire married life has been devoted to rearing a large family. She was a lover of children, and every thought was centered in her home and family. Kindness, self-sacrifice and patience marked her daily ministrations in the home. These facts make her passing doubly severe for the bereaved husband and children; yet, in this knowledge, they may feel proud of a heritage laden with mother love—because she gave her life to give life to her baby.

Ramona Cunningham Sego, was born here to Winship and Catherine Cunningham, February 11, 1895. She attended the St. Joseph's parochial school and following her graduation from that institution in 1919, entered the Kentland High School and was graduating in 1918. After completing her education she entered the post office here. The same year, and continued there as deputy postmaster until 1919, when she was married to Meville Sego, Jr. on February 20, in her six years of dealing with the public Mrs. Sego made and held many friends, who at this time feel keenly the sting of her death.

Surviving are the husband; also children, Mary Kathryn, 14; Arthur, 12; Theresa Ann, 11; Janet, 9; Thomas, 7; Ramona, 6; Lorraine, 4; Alice, 2; Martha, born January 18, 1934; her mother, Mrs. W. J. Cunningham, and a sister, Mrs. Theresa Ester of Kentland; also two brothers, Paul and Joseph Cunningham of Chicago.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, of which she was a devout member. Interment was made in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Out of town relatives who attended the funeral services were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cunningham, and Miss Loreta Sego, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cunningham, R. E. Cunningham and son Robert, and daughters Miss Vera Cunningham and Mrs. Vivian Kline of Brock; Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kirk and Helen Kirk, Fowler; R. G. MARTIN F. MASTER PASSED AWAY SATURDAY EVENING

This community was given a severe shock Saturday night by the announcement of the death of Martin F. Master, in the St. Elizabeth's hospital, Lafayette, at 6:45 o'clock that evening, following an illness of only a few days' duration. Mr. Master was yet a comparatively young man, being only 37 years of age, and until less than three weeks before his death was apparently in perfect health, but then he contracted a cold, from which developed influenza followed by acute dilatation of the heart brought on by edema of the lungs, which, from the beginning developed so rapidly and so resistant to treatment as to lead to his death in an almost unbelievable short space of time. On Sunday of last week he was with relatives and friends in town and attended church where he became ill and was obliged to, for the time, seek medical attention and thereafter repair to his home and bed. His illness grew rapidly and within three days later it was found necessary to remove him to the hospital where he passed away.

Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphas Master, and was born November 28, 1899, on a farm near Monterey, Indiana. On February 7, 1917, he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Sego, who, with four young children—two sons and two daughters—survives. For seven years following their marriage the family resided on a farm near Oxford, and for the past two years on the Carton farm three miles south of Kentland. Mr. Master was a man of exemplary habits; honest, industrious, unassuming—for which admirable traits he was known and esteemed by all who knew him. He leaves besides his widow and children, his mother, three brothers, two sisters, and many other relatives.

Funeral services, attended by a congregation of relatives and friends that taxed to the utmost the seating capacity of that spacious edifice, were held in St. Joseph's Church at nine o'clock Tuesday morning. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Charles V. Stetter, and the pallbearers were: Arthur and Raymond O'Donnell, of Martinton, Ill.; Francis Maness, Kankakee, Ill.; Leal Meyers, Kewanee, Ind.; Cletus Schauer, Collegeville, Ind.; and Victor Sego, Remington; honorary—Frank Fank, George Illingworth, John Greter, Edward Dye, Robert Robinson, Clarence Molter.

Relatives and friends from out-of-town in attendance at the funeral were: Peter Schauer and Mrs. Nicholas Schauer, of DeLong, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. William Myers and son, Leal, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Busman, of Kewanee, Ind.; Lin Master, Miss Pola Master and Ladd Overmeyer, of Bruce Lake, Ind.; Brother Cletus Schauer, of Collegeville, Ind.; Charles Sego and family, Mrs. Moses Sego, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sego, and

Mr. and Mrs. George Sego, Joseph Kolhoff of Bensenville, and Mrs. Tony O'Donnell, Sr. and Mrs. Tony O'Donnell, Jr. and son, of Martinton, Ill.; Mrs. Maness, Mrs. John Maness and Francis Maness, of Kankakee, Ill.; Mrs. John O'Donnell and three children, of St. Ann, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. John Schauer of Chicago, Miss Loreta Sego, Mishawaka, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Brouillette and children, of Fowler.

TAPS SOUNDED FOR CHARLES A. PHELPS

EXPIRED SUDDENLY SUNDAY MORNING WITH PULMONARY HEMORRHAGE

April 10, 1931

Charles A. Phelps, a young man in the employ of the New York Central Railroad at this place, died suddenly about eleven o'clock Sunday morning death resulting from a pulmonary hemorrhage. Mr. Phelps was rooming in the freight house, and on his way to the tower for a bucket of coal suffered the hemorrhage and lived but a few minutes.

The body was taken to the Herberman & Washburn undertaking parlors and prepared for burial. In the evening, on direction of his mother who resides at Hilldale, Mich., the body was turned over to the Ora Hedrick Post, American Legion, and removed to the Post headquarters where it laid in state until Monday evening. Commander Gardner had the flag in Court Park suspended at half mast, and designated guards to keep watch over their deceased brother until the body was shipped to Hilldale Monday evening for burial. The Post provided a suitable floral piece and gave a full military escort from the Court House to the depot. W. B. Schuch and James Whiteaker, representing the Post, and O. L. Crane and Will Cole, representing the I. O. O. F. Lodge, of which the deceased was a member, accompanied John Phelps, a brother, to Hilldale, with the remains.

Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Phelps, and was born at Hilldale, Feb. 12, 1885. He came to Kentland about four or five years ago in the employ of the railroad, but by reason of his retiring disposition, did not make a very extended acquaintance. He enlisted from this place in the spring of 1915, and saw eighteen months service overseas. After his discharge he returned to Kentland, took up his old employment, and affiliated with the two orders named above. His friends speak of him in the highest terms, and give praise to him for supporting his widowed mother and her five minor children.

The relatives and home friends may know that every service and attention was given him here by the Legion. The casket was draped with the American flag and reposed in a curtain of flags while it rested in Post headquarters, and a number of people called Sunday night and Monday to pay their debt of respect.

WORD RECEIVED MONDAY THAT
D. K. FRUSH HAD PASSED AWAY AT GREAT LAKES.

Sept. 22-1918

The people were again thrown into deep sorrow Monday morning by the receipt of a telegram from Great Lakes announcing the death of D. K. Frush, former Superintendent of the Kentland schools.

Death occurred Sunday evening resulting from pneumonia, which has been the cause of a large number of deaths recently at the Great Lakes station. Mr. Frush, in common with hundreds of others at the Great Lakes suffered an attack of Spanish influenza, and then pneumonia developed.

Mr. Frush enlisted in the navy last spring as soon as school adjourned. He had been connected with the Kentland schools for four years as principal and superintendent, and had worked his way strongly into the affections of the town. And as evidence of the high esteem in which he was held the High School was adjourned yesterday that the students might attend his funeral in a body, and many beautiful floral pieces were sent to the family home in Logansport by the school, the teachers, the alumni, the Liberty Guard, and by individuals.

Mr. Frush came from Kentland and his death places another gold star in our service flag. He will be remembered here as a high class man, a gentleman, and a student whose future held bright prospects.

The funeral was held at the family home in Logansport yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended by friends from Logansport, Kentland and elsewhere. The body was taken to Galveston for burial.

Funeral Services Will Be Held From M. E. Church At 2:00 P. M. Today

A pair of saddest fell over the community Monday when word reached Kentland announcing the death of Mrs. Martha Conklin, age 83, at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. Mrs. Conklin had gone to Indianapolis to spend the winter with her son and wife. Mrs. Conklin had the misfortune to fall to the floor in her bedroom Sunday morning, sustaining a broken hip. She was taken immediately to the Methodist hospital but the shock from the fall was too great for her advanced age, and she expired Monday afternoon. The remains were prepared for burial in Indianapolis by Flansser & Stuchman and the body returned to her late home here Wednesday by C. J. Hassett & Son, local undertakers.

Martha Ellen Conklin, the daughter of Alfred and Ellen Glenn, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 25, 1834. She was married to James D. Conklin in March, 1875, and immediately following their marriage they came to Kentland for residence. Mr. Conklin preceded her in death in June, 1904. Four children were born to them, Anna, deceased; Alfred of Indianapolis; Samuel of Florida; and Alma, Leola Rider of Kansas City, Missouri.

Mrs. Conklin had been a devout Christian all her life. She was a member of the Kentland Methodist Church and had always been active in church affairs. Her home was always open to her friends, and hardly a week passed when she did not entertain a group of friends at dinner. She enjoyed her friends and her work in the church, in fact it was her life. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Trinity Methodist Church this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. John E. McCloud and Rev. V. B. Servey, in charge. Interment in charge of C. J. Hassett & Son, will be made in Fairview Cemetery beside the remains of her late husband.

W. C. Logan, Editor of the Herald, received the sad message Saturday afternoon that his mother, Mrs. Beale P. Logan, 75 years old, had passed away at the home of a son, Herbert Logan, 955 Middle Drive, Woodruff Place, Indianapolis. Mrs. Logan had come from her home at Bloomington, Indiana, for a visit with her son in Indianapolis, and on Wednesday morning was found unconscious, in bed, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy during the early morning hours.

We lost our father on April 11th of this year and last Saturday, our mother passed away and was laid to rest Tuesday afternoon. It's in times such as this that your friend's kind words count the most.—The Editor.

DEATH AND BURIAL OF MRS. F. M. OSWALT

Feb. 18, 1918

RESIDENT OF KENTLAND FOR HALF CENTURY NOW SLEEPS IN EARLAWN

Feb. 18, 1918

A brief mention of the death of Mrs. F. M. Oswalt was made in The Enterprise last Thursday. The passing away of the quiet, reserved, following a several weeks' illness, and her going abroad the life of an unobtainable woman. Though childhood she was generally regarded as one of the good mothers of the community, having given her best efforts during half a century to those things that build the good.

Funeral services were conducted from Trinity Church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. C. Martin, a former pastor, preaching the sermon. Interment followed in Fairview cemetery beside the grave of her late husband. A large concourse of sorrowing friends were in attendance at the funeral to pay their last tribute of respect to this good woman.

Margaret Jane Carney, eldest daughter of Edward and Jane Wilson Carney, was born at Hamilton, Ohio, May 24, 1845, and married with her parents in Machias Main at the age of one year. Five years later the family moved to Wabash, Indiana, where the continued residence until she was married, with the exception of two years, when she attended school at Brooklyn, New York. At the age of six years she united with the Methodist Church and lived a loyal Christian until called to her heavenly home February 21, 1918, at the age of 72 years, 3 months and 26 days.

On March 27, 1864, she was united in marriage to Frances Marcell Oswalt, at Wabash, living there until July, 1885, when they came here and where they continued to reside until death called. There were no children born in this union, but they raise one niece, one nephew, and one grandchild. The mother of this noble woman could not have demonstrated more father had she been blessed with children of her own, than was shown in the raising and care of these niece and nephew.

It is fitting and proper at this time to call attention to the church life of Mrs. Oswalt during her fifty years residence in Kentland. She was numbered among the first members of the Methodist church after its organization here, and always gave it her fullest support. She was a teacher in the Sunday School all these years, and affiliated herself with every work of the church.

Mrs. Oswalt was well educated, and her counsel and advice were sound and helpful as was the influence of her life.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ella King of Marion, and two brothers, J. E. Carney of Los Angeles and R. W. Carney of Decatur, Ind., besides the niece mentioned above, Mrs. E. F. Reed, and family.

Those from a distance present at the funeral were Mrs. Martha Cutler of South Wabash, Mrs. Ella King of Marion, R. W. Carney of Decatur, Mrs. LeNore McCaskey of Michigan, City, C. W. Chappell of Indianapolis, Mrs. J. W. Oswalt, of Goodland, and Mrs. Elizabeth Morton of St. Louis.

During these later years when health prevented her from attending church services she became a persistent reader of the bible.

Mrs. Will was a kind and loving wife and mother, sacredly devoted to her charge, and was self sacrificing in all things. She was a good neighbor, and was loved and respected by all who knew her. Mrs. Will was a patient sufferer through a long illness, and ready when the call came to a higher life.

MRS. A. O. MONTGOMERY

FUNERAL SERVICES WERE CONDUCTED FROM MT. ZION CHURCH AT TWO O'CLOCK.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. A. O. Montgomery, whose death was briefly noted in our last issue, was conducted from the Mt. Zion Church Friday afternoon at two o'clock, by the pastor, Rev. William L. Eiler, and interment was made in the nearby cemetery.

Mrs. Montgomery's death followed a protracted illness that afflicted the sympathy and concern of her large circle of friends. Having spent her entire life in this immediate community she was widely known, and highly respected for her many good worldly qualities. She made a heroic fight to regain health, and her untiring calling brought sorrow not only to the family circle but to the community at large.

The following obituary was read at the conclusion of the funeral service:

Mary Emma, daughter of Aaron and Adina Kenner, was born in Newton County, Indiana, March 1, 1878, and passed on at this time from her home she died at 11:30 a. m. on Feb. 14, 1888, at Alto D. Montz, Indiana, and to this union were born three children, Guy, Abbie, and a son who lived but a few hours.

She was a loyal wife, a devoted mother, a kind friend and a splendid neighbor. From the very beginning of her sickness, in the spring of 1918, she was the recipient of most devoted care from her husband and family, enjoying the almost constant companionship and care of her husband. The best of medical attention was given her, but all efforts proved unavailing, and at six o'clock Wednesday evening, July 7, her spirit took its flight from the frail (trough) of clay to the eternal city on the hills of God.

She leaves to mourn her going, her husband, son, Guy, who with his wife and family live on the home farm north of Kentland; daughter, Mrs. Rose Padgett, who lives with her family on the old Kenner farm along the Iroquois river, northwest of Kentland; and six grandchildren, John and Charles Montgomery, and Geneva Alvira, Meta, and Robert Padgett. Surviving her also are three sisters, Mrs. Katherine Flood, Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Eva Morgan, Marathon, Iowa, and Mrs. Josephine Timmons, Kentland, Ind., and one brother, Fred Kenner, Indianapolis, Ind. Her many friends and neighbors also cherish the memory of friendly ministrations and neighborly kindnesses.

November 3, 1918, she publicly confessed her faith in Christ and united with the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, at Mt. Zion. Her Christian experience was bright with joy and hope, spending her moments in constant fellowship with the Savior of men, and died triumphant in the faith of her risen Lord.

Attending the funeral from a distance were Mrs. Frances Hayward, T. L. Hayward, Mrs. Lela Hayward-Bredling, and Mr. and Mrs. James Winkler, of Lafayette; Charles Hayward of New Richmond, Ind.; Mrs. Katherine Floyd and Mrs. Mae Heck, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Eva Morgan of Marathon, Iowa; Walter Piper of Lenoir, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wurd of Hoople.

In early life she expressed her faith in God, and it was this faith that helped her to bear her affliction with courage and without complaint. She was very appreciative of the little kindnesses extended to her.

Besides a heart-broken husband, she leaves to mourn, her widowed mother, three sisters and four brothers, Mrs. Bora Henderson and Mrs. Goldie Henderson, of Goodland, Mrs. Henschard Childress, of Rush; Howard, Robert, Edward and Joseph, of Kentland. YOUNG WIFE DIED LATE LAST NIGHT

MRS. ROBERT HIESTAND PASSED AWAY AT WATSKA HOSPITAL

June 29, 1924

The sympathetic heart of Kentland was touched this morning when the announcement came of the death of Mrs. Robert P. Hiestand. The end came at 11:30 o'clock, and resulted from poisons from a recent operation finding way to the heart.

Mrs. Hiestand was taken to the hospital and operated on Monday, June 29th, for the relief of an internal trouble. It was a major operation and she was watched closely for several days and appeared to be making steady gains. Tuesday her condition was regarded as very much improved and friends were greatly encouraged. That night, however, a relapse came, and the husband and near relatives were summoned. Yesterday some slight improvement was shown, but from noon she sank gradually until death came. Burial will be made at Watska where the deceased's parents reside, but at this time the hour of the funeral has not been announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiestand were married December 29, 1923, but the same was not announced until January of the present year, at which time she came to Kentland to reside. She was not in good health and in the early spring passed through quite a serious sick spell.

Her death is a heart breaking blow to the young husband, who has a new babe nearly completed in which he hoped to establish their home in a few weeks, and to him goes the deepest sympathy of all.

Following their marriage, Mrs. Hiestand remained at her desk in Watska for over a year and during her six months residence here was unable to single publicity to any great degree, and therefore had not established a very extended acquaintance in Kentland. But those who enjoyed this privilege found her a most lovable person, refined and talented, and her untimely passing brings sorrow to the entire community.

LIEUT. PAT O'BRIEN COMMITS SUICIDE

MOMENCE WAR HERO, ESTRANGED FROM MOVIE ACTRESS WIFE, USES GUN.

Dec 1920

Lieutenant Pat O'Brien, possessing a world reputation for heroism and during during the world war, committed suicide Saturday at a fashionable hotel in Los Angeles, California, firing a bullet through his brain. The cause for the rash act is said to have been an estrangement with his movie actress wife, Virginia Dare.

O'Brien's career during the war was most spectacular. While a member of the Canadian Flying forces which he joined before America entered the war, he was shot down behind the German lines and captured. He was in a German hospital for many weeks and after his partial recovery was confined to a prison camp. While en route to the camp he leaped from the window of a moving train and made his way across the whole of Germany to the Dutch frontier, burrowing his way under the famous German wire entanglement excited along the border and more dead than alive. His health shattered he returned to America.

Since the war he has written a book reciting his war experiences and has been in considerable demand as a lecturer on war topics.

The money realized from the sale of his book and from lectures was largely invested in land, and he owns a large farm in Colfax township, this county, on which his brother resides.

The following signed note was found near his dead body following the suicide:

"Only a coward would do what I am doing. But I guess I am one. With all my war record, I am just like the rest of the people—a little bit of cifer.
"And to you, my sweet little wife, I go, thinking of you and my dear, sweet mother, my sisters and brothers, and asking the just God that answered my prayers in those 72 days I spent in making my escape from Germany, once more answer them.
"And brief trouble, sickness, finance and more bad luck than anyone in this world has ever had, and worse forever that awful woman, Sarah Otis, that has broken our home and has taken you from me.
"She caused this life of mine, that just a few minutes ago was so happy, to go on that sweet adventure and death.
"Please send what you find back to my dear mother in Momence, Ill.
"To the five armies I have been in, the birds, the animals, I loved so well, to my friends, to all the world and to adventure, I say good-bye."

SAD DEATH OF YOUNG MOTHER AND BABE

Dec 11, 1920

MRS. FRED MORSE AND NEW-BORN SON PASSED AWAY SATUR- DAY EVENING.

Mon 11, 1920

The community was grieved Saturday evening to hear of the death of Mrs. Fred Morse and her week old baby. Especially sad was this case because of the fact that the young mother's life had hung in the balance since the birth of the baby on the Monday evening previous, and the threat of agony she passed through.

The baby, a son, passed away about five o'clock Saturday evening, and the mother three hours later.

Funeral services were conducted from the Christian Church Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Howard Kauffman, conducted the services, and burial followed in Fairview cemetery. Both were placed in one casket, the babe embraced in its mother's arms, a privilege that life could not give them.

Mrs. Morse was the adopted and only child of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, Sr. and Mrs. Clark took her when a child six years of age and gave her the love and care of an only child. She knew no other parents and they, having no children of their own, centered their affection in the child by adoption. Her sad and untimely death is a great sorrow to them.

Mary Lesta Clark spent her girlhood days in Kentland, attending the public schools and devoting her time to the home and the church. She became a member of the Christian Church about nine years ago. She was married to Fred Morse, and they were happy in the contemplation of establishing a new home when the cold blast of death crushed their hopes and left the sorrowing husband to mourn alone.

Mrs. Morse was the daughter of Mrs. Frank Featherland of Indianapolis, who arrived in Kentland a few hours before death. She is also survived by three brothers and two sisters. Two of the brothers and the two sisters with their husbands, and a niece, were present at the funeral.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank our friends for the kindness and help extended during the sickness and death of our daughter and wife.

VEET LITTLE GIRL DIES FROM KICK BY A HORSE

Dec 24, 1920

Little Glendora Skiver, age five years, ten months and eleven days, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Skiver, passed away in the Froquois County Hospital, Watseka, Ill., last Friday evening, from meningitis, which developed from injuries sustained from being kicked by a horse, eleven days previous. Her remains were brought to the family home, southwest of Kentland, on Christmas day; her funeral services, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Howard A. Kauffman, and attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends, were held at the Christian Church at ten o'clock Thursday morning and interment was made in Fairview cemetery.

Little Glendora was born February 13, 1915, in the home where the family now resides and there grew in child innocence and happiness, the chief joy to her parents and three elder sisters, until the 14th inst., when, while out in the barn yard she met with the terrible misfortune of being kicked in the head and seriously injured by one of the father's horses that had just been turned out of the stable for exercise. For a time following, first professional care, she seemed to improve satisfactorily, but later unfavorable symptoms appeared and she was taken to the hospital where the terrible affliction of meningitis soon developed and terminated in her death as above stated. Glendora was a genuinely lovable child, possessed of a sweet and happy disposition, and, therefore, was truly loved and admired by all who knew her. From her infancy she was like a ray of sunshine in the family and had a sweet child-like smile for all. She is survived by the grief-stricken parents and three sisters, Lyndall, Cornelia and Pauline, who have the profound sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

DEATH AND BURIAL OF CARL J. HASSETT
Aug. 13, 1920
ELECTROCUTED AT LOGANSPOORT
THURSDAY MORNING OF LAST WEEK.

August 13, 1920

Carl J. Hasset, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hasset, met instant death Thursday morning of last week by coming in contact with an electric wire. The accident occurred at Loganspoort where he was employed as an electrician, and the wires fastened to Kestland brought sorrow to all who had known Carl from childhood.

He was in the employ of the Loganspoort city light plant, and was working with Roy D. Rodman, also formerly of this place, when the accident occurred, and Mr. Rodman in speaking of the accident said:

"This morning after placing two cross-arms of steel, I took Hasset with me to the north end of the Clear street bridge, to discover if possible the cause for the failure of the bridge lights to burn. They had been out for the last two nights. When we reached the bridge Hasset put on his life belt and climbed the pole. I directed his work from the ground and told him to withdraw all pins holding the current before beginning an examination. He did this."

"He had just walked around to the rear to get a wrench, when I heard a noise and looking up, saw Carl, his body thrown back in his life belt and arms outstretched. He was about eight feet from the ground."

All effort was made to resuscitate Mr. H. but to no avail. Following an official report the body was prepared for burial and taken to Calver cemetery home of Mrs. Hasset, and laid to rest Saturday morning.

Carl J. Hasset was born in Kent, Ohio, May 29, 1886, and received his education in the parochial and public schools. When but a mere boy he took his work as an electrician and continued in this work until his untimely death, accepting the time he was in service, and a large part of the time he was in France was occupied as an electrician at Bordeaux. He answered the first call for volunteers and on May 7, 1917, enlisted in Ambulance Co. No. 1, Indiana, reporting for duty on June 7, 1917. He went from the company rendezvous to the gas disinfecting camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison and was mustered in the Federal service at the United States on June 12, 1917. He was transferred from Fort Benjamin Harrison to Camp Shelby, Miss., arriving there Aug. 27, 1917, and remained there until he was sent overseas where he served eighteen months. He was honorably discharged July 24, 1918, being in the service two years and five months.

He was married to Hattie Margaret, August 8, 1918, to Miss Ruth Albert. Funeral services were held at the late home on North Sixth street, Loganspoort, at 11 o'clock Saturday, Aug. 14, conducted by Rev. P. J. Quinn, and burial was made in Calver cemetery, by request of his wife.

He leaves a wife, father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hasset, two brothers, Bernard and James Hasset, and sister Mrs. Marie Cassidy, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

Carl was an "average" subscription man and had made the largest on his home in Loganspoort week before his death. P. 73

DEATH AND BURIAL OF MRS. LEWIS KENOYER
Sept. 1920
WAS A RESIDENT OF THIS COMMUNITY FOR OVER HALF A CENTURY.

Sept. 1920

Mrs. Lewis Kenoyer, one of our oldest citizens in point of continuous residence, passed away Saturday at the family home northwest of Kestland, following three week's illness.

Mrs. Kenoyer was one of the good and highly esteemed women of this community and the announcement of her death brought sorrow to her large circle of friends. The following obituary was read at the funeral services:

Melissa Webber was born to George and Amanda Webber October 18, 1844. Her girlhood was spent in Newton county, where on March 16, 1866, she gave herself in marriage to Lewis Kenoyer. This couple established a home on the banks of the Ingonzo river in the northwestern part of Jefferson township and there raised their family of three sons and four daughters. Three were still children here in this union, but three, Duffler, Ladrelet and Faith, died in early life, while Frank, a stepson, DeForest, Mrs. Merle Chapman, Mrs. Charles Chapman, Otha, Doris and Dorothy, live at or near the home farm.

In 1889 she united with the Methodist church at Morris Chapel, but transferred her membership in the Mt. Zion Church of the United Brethren in Christ, during the pastorate of Rev. W. B. Taylor. Her christian life was one of joy and faith and hope. The presence of the Master was realized, and she walked with a consciousness of abiding under the shadow of the Almighty. Her life was full of good deeds and kindly ministrations to neighbors and friends; but it was in the home where her love and thoughtfulness were manifested. Her every thought was for the welfare of her family, and her last words were concerning the spiritual life of her children. Beside her own immediate family she gave her life in service to her stepson and to a sister of her husband. Truly may it be said of her that she walked in faith and died in hope.

Her last sickness was one of unusual severity, and lasted almost three weeks; her suffering was intense, but at 8:30 on the morning of September 11, 1920, the death angel kissed away the marks of pain, and with gentle hands closed the tired eyes, stilled the restless form, and the soul of the mother in farewell went to enjoy the rest promised to the people of God.

Her friends, who see many single tearful tears with those of her husband and children, two sons, Mrs. Etta Redwood, Weldon, Montana, Mrs. Emma Williams, Morocco, Indiana; and two brothers, Harvey of Kestland, and George of Hancock, but look forward to a reunion in that land where pain is unknown, where sorrow is banished, where sorrow never counts, where death is unknown, and where the loving hand of God has Passed away, as was held in the Mt. Zion church, Monday, at 10:30 a. m. in charge of the pastor, assisted by Rev. M. Kenoyer. Burial was in the Pleasant Grove cemetery.

LOUIS S. DODSON DIED TUESDAY AFTERNOON
Oct. 12, 1920
FUNERAL WILL BE CONDUCTED AT THE FAMILY HOME TOMORROW AT TEN O'CLOCK.

Oct. 12, 1920

Louis S. Dodson passed away at the family home on Carroll street Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock, of heart failure. The announcement of his death came as a surprise to the community as he had not been reported ill, and but few knew that he was seriously afflicted with heart trouble.

Mr. Dodson was out Sunday taking a drive to Shelby, but later in the afternoon had an attack and a physician was called. He was around the house Monday, feeling slightly indisposed but not enough to excite alarm. Tuesday he was feeling about the same and was up during the forenoon. He ate a good dinner and laid down for a while to rest, and at 4 o'clock without warning of a struggle, breathed his last.

Funeral services will be conducted from the family home tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and burial will be made in Fairview cemetery.

Louis S. Dodson was the son of James and Rebecca Dodson, pioneers of this township. He was born in McLean county, Illinois, March 26, 1848, and came with his parents to this county a year later, settling on a farm southwest of where the town of Kestland now stands, there being the only habitation for miles around. Louis grew to manhood on this farm, and witnessed the transformation of the vast prairie into the fine country of today. In the early 60's he and his brother came to Kestland and embarked in business, and have been continuous residents here since, associating themselves kindly with many of the enterprisers of the town. As a business man Mr. Dodson was known for his sterling honesty.

He was a member of the Methodist church for over forty years, and throughout his life he enjoyed the services of the church and was a regular attendant. He was also a great lover of music, and might his pleasures largely along those lines. In some things he seemed to be rather eccentric, but under the surface beat a true heart—loving, tender and kind. He instantaneously confided the sorrowing, contributed to the needy and lent a kind word to all. Mr. Dodson was particularly known for his strong friendships, and the older the friendship, the more closely he cultivated it. The writer has been associated with Mr. Dodson in business for a number of years, and never heard him utter an unkind word of anyone, nor countenance a selfish word or dishonest act.

Mr. Dodson was never married. He leaves to survive him one brother, J. V. Dodson, now confined in a hospital in Chicago, one nephew, H. A. Strohm, three nieces, Miss Jeanie Dodson, Mrs. Mary Rhodes and Mrs. Alice Beckelhammer, and a host of distant relatives and friends.

YOUNG LADY IS KILLED BY TRAIN AT MILFORD

Aug. 19 1943

The Wood-Holland Players drama company, who played a three days' engagement here this week Thursday afternoon of last week met with the shocking misfortune of losing one of the ladies of their company, Miss Eva Rand, their clever song and dance specialty girl, in the tragic form of being struck and instantly killed by a fast through passenger train on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad at Milford, Illinois.

The company had that day transferred from Hoopston to Watsco via autos, but Miss Rand who had during their engagement at Milford a week before, ordered a dress made, instead went to Milford to get the new dress and was to go to Watsco via railway. She had gotten her dress, also a book from the Milford public library, and gone to the railway station considerably before train-time, secured her ticket and engaged in reading while waiting for the train. The local train was marked eighteen minutes late—which was also about the time for the passing of the fast train, No 92 of which Miss Rand, being a passenger, knew not. When the file of an approaching train was seen, Miss Rand and several others thinking it to be the local train, went upon the station platform to wait. At the Milford station are several tracks, and the platform from which passengers get on off the trains is across these from the depot. Miss Rand (carrying a parasol, box containing her dress, handbag, and library book) and others thinking the coming train to be the one they were waiting for, started to cross to the platform—all counting on the train slowing down and their thereby having ample time to get across. Instead, however, it was the fast train, which does not stop there but goes through at a very high rate of speed. As it came dangerously close, someone cried "look out," to the people crossing the tracks, whereupon all rushed to safety on either side of the tracks, except Miss Rand. She was, doubtless, frightened either by the shouted warning on a sudden warning or a sudden realization of the fact of her danger from the close onrushing train, and in apparent confusion as to which to go she stopped to look to the track the train was on, and intended precaution proved a fatal one to her fatality, for, unfortunately she was standing so close to the track she was seeking escape that when the train which an instant's time was upon either struck her a glancing blow on one of her shoulders or her by force of suction from is speedily passing, so as to her neck and cause instant death. Aside from this injury and a mark of injury. A diamond from a finger ring she was wearing was knocked from its socket and her handbag was drawn under the train and cut to shreds, but the parasol, book and new dress she was carrying were simply knocked to one side and neither damaged.

Miss Rand was a young lady of but seventeen years and her home was in New York City. She was a charming singer and unusually clever stage dancer. She was of tiny stature and when in her specialties on the stage appeared to be a mere child of only 12 to 14 years old. She had been with the Wood-Holland company since May 13th when they began their summer playlog season. When her body was prepared for shipment home for burial she was attired in the new dress that was the first contributory to her death. The body, which was sent to her father, Stan Rand, in New York City, was started from Milford Friday evening and was due to arrive in her home city Sunday.

DEATHS OF MRS. OWEN S. BAKER AND LITTLE BABY
Dec 1920

An exceedingly sad and heart-rending death came to another dear loved child at about eleven o'clock Sunday night, when Mrs. Owen S. Baker passed from this life in the Leopoldus County Hospital at Waterloo, N. J., where she was taken that morning for professional care.

During Saturday evening Mrs. Baker had given birth to a baby boy, but the little one died before morning. Complications in the mother's condition developed and on Sunday she was hurried taken to the hospital where she was placed in charge of two nurses who had been called from Chicago and although all that love, tender care and medical skill could do was done for her, all was to no avail; at about eight her away at the time already stated. Her remains were brought back Monday to her late happy home on east Graham street, and from here taken on Tuesday morning, together with the body of her little first-born, to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shevick, at Waukegan, Ind., where the funeral was held at ten o'clock Tuesday morning, when a requiem Mass was offered at the Sacred Heart Catholic church in Waukegan, and interment was made in the cemetery of that parish.

Mrs. Baker, whose maiden name was Bertha Shevick, was a daughter of Joseph and Veronika Shevick, and was born December 2, 1865, in Waukegan where she lived with her parents all her life, until her marriage. She was a graduate from the Waukegan High School and had a two year's course of study at Valparaiso University. She was married to Owen S. Baker, at Waukegan on January 31, 1910, and the next day came with him to Keokuk, where they established their home and lived happily and cozily therein until a source of anguish, suffering and separation by death came upon them. Mrs. Baker was an amiable and lovable young woman, and though, in her so brief period of residence here, she had gained no very extensive acquaintance among our people, those who did come to know her valued and esteemed her to the utmost.

MRS. VIRGINIA C. BRUNNER PASSES TO LIFE BEYOND

Mrs. Virginia C. Brunner, a resident of Keokuk the past sixteen years, passed away Thursday night of last week, following a protracted illness. Funeral services were conducted from Trinity Church Saturday afternoon by the Rev. C. L. Harper, and burial was made in Fairlawn cemetery.

Virginia C. Brunner, daughter of William H. and Mary E. Walker, was born in Montgomery county, Maryland, Nov. 18, 1853, and passed away at her home in Keokuk, Ind., Dec. 14, 1920, aged 67 years and 28 days.

Her girlhood was spent near Frederick, Md., and on Nov. 22, 1880, she was married to George H. Brunner. To this union were born four children, James, now deceased, William of Wolcott, Mrs. J. M. Stocke of Hoosierden, Ind., and Harry of Brook. The husband and father died in 1908 leaving the mother to rear her family alone.

In 1908 she moved to Keokuk, so that she might be near her sons, who had previously come to this section. The mother was willing to sacrifice the idea of her old friends and home to further the advantages of her children. Throughout her life they were her first thought and they will ever cherish the memory of mother who labored close in rear them.

Her illness dated back to early summer and her death came as a result of a persistent trouble of the throat. Specialists in Lafayette and Chicago were consulted but nothing gave any permanent relief.

Throughout her illness she showed a courage and faith that was characteristic of her life and through this strength was able to bear the last to be shared among her family and friends.

In early life, she united with the M. E. Church and has been a true Christian woman. The ability to make friends was a strong point in her character, and while none were lost to her, yet she loved her work in the church activities and took an active part in anything to help others.

Besides her children and grand children, she leaves three sisters, Mrs. Chas. Zimmerman of Frederick, Maryland; Mrs. Nettie Kemp and Mrs. W. L. Remsburg, at Keokuk, besides many other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

MESSINGER OF DEATH CALLS OF OUR DEAR ONES

August 19, 1920

FLAVIAN JOSEPH MULLIGAN

Flavian Joseph Mulligan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Mulligan, passed away at their country home, east of Kentland, at 6:10 o'clock Sunday morning, after about nine days' severe illness with scarlet fever. Where he contracted the disease is not known; he had worked with the threshers' crew at the Charles True farm during Friday, the 7th inst., and after returning home that evening complained of not feeling well; a high fever soon developed and upon professional examination he was found to have scarlet fever. From the very first he was intensely ill and when the household was quarantined assistance was difficult to get to them. Two professional nurses were procured for the patient and all that medical skill and tender care could do was given him, but all in so avail except possibly the prolongation of life for a few hours.

Flavian was born on the farm near Kentland, March 3, 1907, and passed from this life at the age of 13 years, five months and 12 days. Private funeral services, consisting of prayer and blessing of the remains, were conducted from the family home at three o'clock Sunday afternoon. MRS. EMMA GEIZELMANN PASSED AWAY EARLY TUESDAY MORNING.

August 16, 1920

Mrs. Emma Geizelman, relict of the late Alexander L. Geizelman, calmly passed away at the family residence on Carroll street early Tuesday morning. On July 26th, 1920, she suffered a severe stroke of cerebral hemorrhage from the immediate effects of which she never recovered and though at times her suffering was intense she bore the same with that Christian fortitude characteristic of her age. She was generally peaceful from the first that she and was near, and with an abiding faith in Him whom she worshipped and trusted she cast her burdens on the Lord readily and His was the sustaining power, comforted her to the last.

Ever, if any there are among us, are more faithful to the observance of sacred duties pertaining to righteous living than was the departed who never missed a church or Sunday school service when possible for her to attend; her home life was that of an ideal Christian mother, ever ready to assist those about her whenever and wherever she could be useful. Her failure is a distinct loss to the community in which she resided. The bereaved daughter, only surviving child, has the profound sympathy of all who knew them. Her's was the ideal mother whose companionship, counsel and advice was sought at and cheerfully given at all times, and their associations were mutually delightful.

Emma E., daughter of John and Elizabeth Sell, was born near Canton, Ohio, August 12th, 1855, and passed away in Kentland, August 17th, 1920, aged 67 years and five days.

In 1898, accident came with her parents to Newton county where she resided for 22 years continuously. On September 20th, 1873, she was united in marriage with Alexander Geizelman, now deceased, and to this union were born five children, four of whom died in infancy, the survivor being Mrs. Jennie Ayers, wife of her fellow townsman, William J. Ayers, one sister Mrs. Julia A. Knott, residing at Yow's Creek, Alabama, is the only other immediate survivor.

In her early youth she went with the church of her fathers, the German Reformed, and later with her husband became members of the M. E. Church in Kentland, where she devoutly worshipped the Lord and Saviour, who was to comfort her in her dying moments. Bless be the God that binds.

DEATH AND BURIAL OF D. S. FLETCHER

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD SATURDAY FROM TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

Funeral services for David S. Fletcher, whose death last Thursday morning, was announced in our last issue, were conducted from Trinity Methodist Church Saturday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock. Rev. Martin C. Bishop, local pastor, was in charge. The Masonic order, of which the deceased was a member, exemplified the ritualistic services, following which the funeral cortege departed for Lafayette where interment was made in Spring Vale cemetery, in the Huntington mansions.

Mr. Fletcher's death, taken by a cold, was hastened by a stroke of paralysis by which the deceased had developed a ruptured constitution, and during his years, numbering more than three-score and ten, he was a young man physically, until a year ago. At that time his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Fletcher passed away. Following the occurrence of this event, Mr. Fletcher aged rapidly. His companion with whom he had fought life's battles, removed from the scene, left little in life for him, and he often expressed the desire to be with her.

Mr. Fletcher was born near Huntington, Indiana, November 23, 1856, and came to Kenland at the age of 11. He and his family spent two years in Kansas, and for six years lived in Lafayette, moving back to Huntington about six years ago.

The deceased was quite active in lodge affairs, and held membership in both local Masonic and Knights of Pythias orders. In Masonry he was also a member of the Scottish Rite and Mystic Shrine at Indianapolis. He was a charter member of the local Pythian lodge and was active in its work until only a few days ago. He was a member of the Trinity Methodist Church and served as a member of the board of trustees at the time the present edifice was erected. He also gave of his time to collect funds with which to furnish the present bell that hangs in the belfry, it being his desire to place a sweet-toned bell in the new structure to call its members to worship. In his everyday life Mr. Fletcher was truly a Christian character and until ill health intervened, was a regular attendant at the service for residence.

He was buried in the cemetery at 1:00 p. m. Tuesday from an army camp in Nebraska for a 10-day furlough with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbin.

He leaves his three daughters, Mrs. Myrtle Downey and Mrs. Gertrude Wellington, of Lafayette; and Mrs. Greta Gully of Chicago. He is also survived by a brother Henry, of Kalamazoo, and a sister, Mrs. Charlotte Schmitz, near Huntington. There are seven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Out of town relatives who attended the funeral were Mrs. Charlotte Gehlert and daughter of Huntington, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Wellington and children of Lafayette; Mrs. Greta Gully and daughter of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Clary Taylor of Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Williams of Huntington, and Henry Weston of Brook.

Those who attended the burial service from Kenland were Roy, and Mrs. M. C. Bishop, Mrs. T. H. Dixon, Mrs. Ira Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Powell, Mrs. T. S. Hamer, Mrs. C. W. McClain, Mrs. H. A. Crain, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hester, Mrs. W. G. Corbin, Mrs. M. H. Hester, George Van Kirk, William Brock, Robert Huestad, A. C. Cast, Roy Ross, E. P. Griffin and Omer Taylor.

DARWIN S. HATCH IS PNEUMONIA VICTIM

PASSED AWAY AT HOME IN CHICAGO AT MIDNIGHT TUESDAY.

Jan 1920

Darwin S. Hatch, a former well known Kenland young man and son of Mrs. J. A. Hatch, passed away at his home in Chicago at midnight Tuesday of pneumonia. The announcement of his death came as a great surprise to his friends and acquaintances here. His mother received word Monday that he was sick with pneumonia, though his condition was not considered serious. Mrs. Hatch went to Chicago Tuesday morning and the death of her only son followed a few hours after her arrival.

Mr. Hatch was in New York the week previous attending an automobile show, and came home sick, pneumonia developing.

According to present plans the remains will be brought to Kenland tomorrow morning at 10:15 and funeral services will be conducted immediately following from the Presbyterian Church, and interment in the family lot in Fairlawn.

The death of Darwin Hatch closes a life that was winning success. After graduating from the Kenland High School, and taking a college course, Darwin went to Chicago and through energy and ability had achieved the citizenship of Illinois. He possessed a technical mind and was regarded as an expert in this field.

He was about thirty-two years of age, and is survived by a wife and three children. A noble and a public-spirited man.

DEATH RESULTS FROM ADVANCED AGE AND INJURIES RE-CEIVED IN FALL

Mrs. E. L. Presher, for sixty-four years a resident of Kentland and recently, passed away Monday shortly before noon at the family home on Washington street, after a four weeks illness, resulting from the infirmities of advanced age and injuries received in a fall sustained in late June Sunday, May 26th. During the period she was confined to her bed, she received the best of medical care and was attended by the tender ministrations of loved ones, but at her advanced age, nature no longer provided the strength necessary for recovery.

Mrs. Presher was a woman of sterling qualities, a housewife first of all and sincerely devoted to her husband and their comfort and welfare. She greatly enjoyed the companionship of her neighbors and friends and was of a very cheerful and genial disposition. Her death is sincerely mourned throughout the community where she has spent so much of her lifetime.

Funeral services were held from the family home yesterday afternoon at 2 p. m. Rev. Wendell Poole, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of South congregation the deceased was a faithful member, officiated. Burial was made at Fairlawn cemetery.

Mrs. E. L. Presher was born in Kingsley, Windham county, Conn., on January 14, 1845. She departed this life on June 24, 1929, at the age of 84 years five months and eight days.

She was the fifth child of Joseph Watson and Eliza Ann Watson.

While very young she came to Illinois with her parents, settling in a farm near Mendota, Ill. in the Spring of 1864. There she resided until she acquired her education in the Mendota schools.

In the year of 1866 on the 8th day of December she was united in marriage to Edgar L. Presher in Ottawa, Ill. They resided around Mendota until September, 1868, when they moved to Kentland, living in town two years and then moving out on their farm southwest of town. There they resided for 24 years, after which they moved back to Kentland, where she has resided until her death. Her husband preceded her in death in 1901.

To this union were born two sons Joseph and Myra both married and residing in Kentland. She leaves to mourn her death her two sons, their wives and one granddaughter, Mrs. Catherine Simpson, a half sister, residing in Mendota. Mrs. W. L. Watson a sister-in-law of Goodland, besides numerous nephews and nieces and a host of friends.

OLD RESIDENT-MERCHANT LAID TO REST SUNDAY
Feb. 1930

The funeral of Christian Kettinger—of whose passing from this life, at his late home on Seymour street, during Thursday night of last fall profit, and thereby always enjoyed a steady volume of business, having many customers who shared their patronage with him through long periods of years. He was a good, loyal citizen and possessed the confidence, good will and respect of all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss, one daughter, one son, three grandsons, three nephews, was briefly reported in our last issue—was conducted from Trinity M. E. Church at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. Charles L. Harper, and attended by a large number of neighbors and friends. The song service was rendered by the choir, and interment was made in Fairlawn.

Christian Kettinger was a son of John and Katherine Kettinger and was born in Baden, Germany, March 24, 1839, and lived to the venerable age of 81 year—less one month and four days. The first fourteen years of his life he lived in Baden, and then, in 1853, with his mother and brother, he came to America, settling in Columbus, Ohio. While there he learned the shoemakers' trade and later he moved to Lafayette, Ind., where he worked at his trade until in the year 1861 when he came to Kentland, opened a shoemakers' shop—wherein he, for a time, employed a gang of five helpers. Soon after his coming to Kentland he also built his late home, on Seymour street, and resided therein continuously until his death.

In 1864 he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Cawyer, of Monticello. To this union were born two children, Mrs. Maude Garrett and Guy Kettinger, both of Kentland. Mr. Kettinger departed this life in 1920, and in 1928 Mr. Kettinger was again married, to Mrs. Hattie Vance-Keefe, of Huntington, Ind., who died in 1926.

Mr. Kettinger had been in failing health for the last five or six years, but was able to be at his place of business until stricken down by his last illness about two weeks before his death—to which he passed peacefully, and in readiness and willingness to go.

Mr. Kettinger was baptized, in his infancy, in the Lutheran Church in Baden (Germany), was confirmed at the age of 14 years, and remained a member of that faith until in 1870 when he united with Trinity Church in Kentland and lived in that faith until death. In his continuous local business career for nearly sixty years he was ever honest in his dealings and sought only a large circle of friends. Those from a distance at the funeral were: Louis Keefer, of Michigan City; Leslie Moore, of Purdue; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stricker and son, of Sheldon; and Mr. and Mrs. E. Childress, of Earl Park.

BURIAL OF MRS. BURTO

Remains Taken to Lake Village Feb
Dec. 13, 1926.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Henry Burton who died at Kansas City, Missouri, Monday of last week were held at Trinity Church Saturday morning at ten o'clock by the Rev. J. E. McCool, and burial was made in the cemetery at Lake Village by the side of her late husband.

Septia Stricks was born Nov. 25, 1870, and departed this life December 13, 1926, at the age of fifty-six years and fifteen days.

She was united in marriage with William Henry Burton February 21, 1893, and to this union were born five children, all of whom survive except Bonnie, who passed to the world before in infancy.

The subject of this obituary moved to Kentland when her husband became Recorder of Newton county, and made this her home until her translation.

Until about one year ago Mrs. Burton seemed to enjoy good health, although the last analysis of her condition showed that her trouble had been growing for many years, although she kept the secret of it to herself, even if she knew anything about it. For the last year she has been a sufferer, and her condition was almost beyond that of medical skill to determine. About two months ago, in company with her sister, she went to Kansas City, Mo., to visit her daughter, and take treatment. A few days ago she went to Kansas City hospital and underwent a major operation. All was done that medical skill and loving hands could do, but she did not have the strength to rally from her condition, so passed away Monday morning.

Mrs. Burton was a member of Trinity Methodist Church, and as long as health permitted was a faithful attendant. She was one of those quiet, unassuming women whose chief interest was in her home, yet she had a kindness for all humanity.

In her going the community has lost a good citizen, the children a devoted mother, and the Church a faithful member.

She is survived by four children: Mrs. Beulah Ham, of Eugene, Oregon; Mrs. Ora Carrothers, of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Ocell Rights of Winston-Salem, N. Carolina; and Calvin Burros, of Gilboa. One stepson, Nell W. Burton, of Williston, N. Dakota; also four grandchildren. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Edith Dear of Kentland, three brothers, Edward of Keweenaw; August of Chatham, Ontario; and Louis of Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. In addition to those named, a host of friends will ever remember kindly the friendship of the deceased.

KILLED AS CAR P. 80 IS DEMOLISHED BY LOCOMOTIVE

Colored Chauffeur for Lee Dixwiddle Failed to See Swift Approach of Train Tuesday Noon

Apparently failing to see or hear a speeding Big Four passenger train shortly after noon Tuesday, John G. Boyd, 37 years old, colored resident of Indianapolis, was instantly killed at the Fifth Street crossing of the Big Four, as the Buick coupe he was driving was struck by the locomotive.

Boyd had been employed for several weeks as chauffeur for Lee Dixwiddle, and was driving the latter's car when the accident happened. He had been to the home of William Penick for dinner and was on his way back to the business section when killed. Several persons witnessed the accident, and all state that Boyd was driving at a very slow rate of speed as he approached the crossing. Meanwhile, the train—which is a through passenger do, here at 12:09 o'clock—was coming from the north at a speed of over 60 miles per hour.

Boyd had little opportunity to see the approaching train as the track runs at a different angle there. Furthermore, his view was obstructed by some coal sheds and some box cars on siding. Probably he never knew what struck him. The tender of the engine caught the car just about midways of the car and flung it forty or fifty feet southeast. The front end of the Buick came to rest there, but the rear part of the car was thrown much farther, probably a hundred and fifty feet. The auto was thrown into a switch post which guards the spur of track leading to the Big Four freight depot, and the post was flattened out, but the switch did not open and the train remained on the tracks.

The body of the unfortunate chauffeur was thrown into the air a distance estimated by witnesses to be thirty feet. It struck the ground about forty feet from the crossing, but did not come to rest until it reached a point about 120 feet from where the car was struck. Among the witnesses who saw the wreck take place were Dick Hansen, who was at the depot looking up the tracks; Claude Wright, who was looking out the window of his filling station, and who thought for a minute that the wreckage of the car was going to come right through the window; Miss Ruby Furr, who was passing at the time; and Harvey Hires of the state police department, who was driving by.

The body of the chauffeur was taken to the Costley funeral parlors, where an inquest was held later in the afternoon by Coroner H. H. Hubbard. It was found that Boyd had received a crushed chest, a broken collar bone on each side, a very badly mangled left leg and a broken neck. According to Harry Costley, Boyd was the worst mangled man, in any respect, that he had ever handled and yet not a drop of blood was lost and there was not a cut to be found on the body.

When the car was struck the gaso-line tank exploded and the wreckage was instantly a mass of flames. The fire department was called to put out the blaze, which was accomplished with the use of chemicals. Most of those who viewed the tangled remains of the car commented that it was the worst seen up automobile they had ever see.

The arrival of Fowler Tuesday took charge of the body, and arrangements were made to hold the services at Indianapolis today. Boyd leaves a father, mother, three brothers and two sisters. He had been married, but later divorced.

MRS. PAUL WEISHAAR

May 7 — 1932
A report that came to us for mention in our last issue was of the sudden death of Mrs. Paul Weishaar, at the family home in Brook on an early hour Saturday morning, May 7th. Mrs. Weishaar had been in poor health for some time but her condition was not thought to be critical. A Mrs. Hall employed in the Weishaar home, was in Mrs. Weishaar's room early that morning when she found her feeling as well as usual, but when she called again a little later she found that she had passed away, death being attributed to heart failure.

Mrs. Weishaar, who was sixty years of age, had lived nearly all her life in Joqueos township, highly esteemed by all who knew her. She always took great interest in church work and until her health prohibited she was one of the most active members of the M. E. Ladies Aid. She was one of the Gold Star mothers of the World War. Caroline Alice Reed, daughter of Lander and Mary Reed, was born at Buck Creek, Tippecanoe county, Indiana, April 22nd, 1867, and died at her home in Brook, May 7th, at the age of 69 years and 15 days.

When a child four years of age she came with her parents to Newton county, where she grew to womanhood. On May 20th, 1886 she was united in marriage to Paul Weishaar. Their home was established on the farm three miles south of Brook, where they lived until 1917, when they moved to Kentland where they resided for two years, during Mr. Weishaar's term of office as county treasurer. In 1919 they moved to Brook, where they have since made their home. To them were born five children: Mabel, who died in infancy; Myrtle Viola, now Mrs. Charles Russell of Foreman; Arthur, of Brook; Leslie C., who gave his life in the service of his country and died at Camp Taylor in 1918 and Ivan P., now of Decatur, Illinois.

In early girlhood she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which she remained a faithful and consistent member to the end of her life. She took delight in the various church activities with which she was connected, and the Christian hope and faith fortified and strengthened her throughout her busy life and during the days of her long illness.

Although her first interest was in her family and her home, she found time for community activities, and in her long residence here had made a large place for herself in the community.

She was a devoted wife and mother, the prime interest of her life being always centered about her family. Her devotion to her family was untiring and the standards of life which she maintained for them were ever of the highest.

Besides her husband, her children and grandchildren she leaves two brothers, C. A. Reed of Goodland, Indiana and W. P. Reed of Loup City, Nebraska, other relatives and a large circle of friends, who will ever cherish the memory of her loyal Christian life.

PASSING UP ONE OF KENT
LAND'S LOVED YOUNG MEN

June 18, 1921.

"Roy Dixon is dead."

Such was the heartrending message that was passed from one to another throughout and beyond this community Saturday, spreading a pall of sorrow over all. All—for all had for days known of Roy's critical illness, and his countless friends and acquaintances had continuously thought of and at every opportunity inquired as to his condition; fervently hoping for the better, and from Wednesday until Friday evening word in that regard was such as to give encouragement, for, though yet in alarming, with high fevers, attacks of chills and sinking spells, the faith was in that he was enduring the tests and growing brighter and able to retain nourishment, but during Friday evening a turn for the worse came and continued unrelentingly throughout the night, with the result of his yielding to the Angel of Death at six o'clock Saturday morning.

Roy's sickness began on June 5th, with an attack of tonsillitis, from which diphtheria developed, and then infections pervaded his system, that rendered his condition critical and alarming. Skilled physicians and nurses were called in, and all that they and loving wife, parents and friends could do, was done for his relief and to stay, if possible, his call for going from among us, but it is apparent that it was God's will that it be otherwise; that Roy, in so brief span of life, had served so well as to merit now his reward in the world beyond.

Roy being a member of the Ors Hedrick Post, American Legion, comrades in that honored order were immediately detailed, by Post Commander Earl B. Gardner, and a military guard established at the stricken home, on Iroquois Drive, and such watch maintained until 10:30 o'clock Monday forenoon, when the funeral services, with full military honors, were held.

The funeral services, which were held at the home, were of the most stately and touching, and marked by, perhaps, the largest attendance, of any funeral ever held in Kentland. Roy was loved and honored by all who knew him, and hence, when the hour for paying of last tribute came, all layed aside their daily avocations (all business houses closing during the funeral hour) and came to pay their last respects to his memory. They came with hearts heavy in sorrow over the loss of a friend, a highly prized citizen, a gallant, brave de-

Thomas LeRoy Dixon was born at Ambia, Indiana, Mar 18, 1898. He died at his home in Kentland, Indiana, Saturday, June 18, 1921, at 6 o'clock a.m.

He came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Dixon, to Kentland, Indiana, in 1904. He attended the public schools and was graduated from High School with the class of 1913. In September, 1913, he entered DePauw University, at Greencastle, Indiana, and completed the four-year course, being graduated with the class of 1917.

While at the University he became a member of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and was active in its councils during his college career. In his senior year he had two distinguished college honors conferred on him. He was elected by his fraternity as its representative on Kappa Tau Kappa, an honorary senior organization having as its mission the welfare of all fraternity organization work. Roy was also elected Student Athletic Manager, and in that capacity had general charge of all athletic events. This duty he discharged faithfully and to the satisfaction of his fellow students.

When the United States entered the war in 1917, among the first to respond to the call of his country was Roy Dixon. He abandoned his college work and entered the Officer's Training camp at Fort Benning, Georgia, on May 13, 1917. On August 20, 1917, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant. He was permitted to return to college from the training camp and he was graduated with his class. After further training at Fortres Monroe, he sailed for France on January 15, 1918. He served with the Railroad Artillery reserve while overseas. His fidelity and application to the work in hand caused his promotion to First Lieutenant. He saw all the rigors of the hard campaign which ended in the winning of the war. It was to the type of young men like Thomas LeRoy Dixon that America depended upon, and the world knows the result. He took his examination for a captaincy just as the war closed. After the signing of the Armistice, his duties kept him in France and Germany until July, 1919, when he returned to take up the responsibilities of civilian life. He arrived home July 4, and was discharged from service July 15, 1919. Since his return home, he has been actively engaged with his father in the management of the Kentland telephone exchange.

While at college, he met Miss Glyde Brown, then in her freshman year. Miss Brown completed her studies at the University of Michigan. When Roy returned from the war, the acquaintance of former years was renewed, they became sweethearts, and on December 28, 1919, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, in St. Joseph, Michigan.

Roy was baptized in infancy and received into the Methodist church when 12 years of age. He was a member of Ors Hedrick Post, of the American Legion, the Masonic Lodge of Kentland, and the Harelden Country Club.

At college, the subject of this sketch was known as "Dick" Dixon. The word "Dick" to them meant loyalty. And as we review his all too brief life, we find that characteristic predominate. He was loyal to his parents, loyal to his home friends, loyal to his college chums, loyal to home ties, and loyal to his country.

He leaves us in the prime of life. Every heart is saddened as we pay the last meed of respect. It has been said "It is not how long you live, but how well." Could anyone have given more to the highest type of American citizenship than Thomas LeRoy Dixon did in the 23 years and 1 month which he was permitted to be with us?

fender of our country's flag; they stood with beared head, in devotion and impressive. The Rev. Clark S. Wheeler, of St. Joseph, Michigan, by whom the decedant and his loving young wife were married less than six months ago, offered the opening prayer and read a hymn; Rev. Harper read the scripture text; Dr. George W. Switzer, now pastor of the Epworth Memorial Church in Cleveland, Ohio, but formerly of Lafayette when he was superintendent of this district of the Northwestern Indiana M. E. Conference and for many years an intimate friend of the Dixon family, read the obituary which we present elsewhere; Commander Gardner read the opening chapter of the Legion ritualist service, followed by a most beautifully worded prayer by the Rev. J. A. Lord, of Hebron, state Chaplain of the Indiana Department of the Legion; the sermon—an able and richly deserved tender tribute to the noble and noted young life of the decedant

The Legion, under leadership of Commander Gardner and Sergeant-at-Arms Chester Dickson, came in double column procession from their Post rooms and during the services stood at ease in rank formation along the approach from street to porch steps.

was delivered by the Rev. Wheeler, followed by a song by a choir of members of the Beta Theta Pi, of DePauw University, of which Roy was an honored and very popular member; at Greencastle, Ind., and a prayer by Rev. Harper concluded the service.

Two sections of Legion members then advanced to the home entrance and became bearers of the floral pieces, possibly fifty in number, and returned to their places in open order extending from the funeral car to the porch steps. Commander Gardner and Chaplain Lord leading, and followed by the Revs. Wheeler, Switzer and Harper, the casket—six members of the Beta Theta Pi: U. Ray Colson, of Paris, Ill.; Mack Wylie, Chicago; Lloyd Cline, Elkhart, Ind.; Roscoe Thibert, Marion, Ind.; Webster Donaldson, Indianapolis, and George F. Sammons, of Kentland, serving as pallbearers—was borne to the funeral car. As Commander and Chaplain entered the lines they exchanged salute with the Sergeant-at-Arms, and members of Legion came to attention, holding floral pieces and forming a beautiful avenue along which the casket was carried, while the following squad came to present arms.

Upon placement of casket into the funeral car and command to break rank the Legion took awaiting car and drove in escort of the procession to the grave in Fairlawn cemetery where, in advance of arrival of the cortege, the flowers were gorgeously arranged about the vault. At the entrance of Legion members, standing in rank formation, the hearse was halted and from there the casket was borne to and placed into this bank of flowers. Chaplain Lord conducted the committal service, the firing squad fired three volleys over the grave, Bugler Fred Gott sounded taps, and Roy's loved ones, comrades and friends were permitted to come away—leaving his mortal remains in the floral repository, later to be lowered, enclosed in a steel vault, into the grave.

After the foregoing relation of evidences of respect for the life departed and the solemnity of the services in his honor, any effort by the writer here to portray to those of our readers who knew him so well, as to what noble and exemplary young man Roy Dixon was, would be superfluous; Roy's life was almost wholly spent here and our people all knew him well, and what we knew of him was all of the best and most favorable. That he was one of the best and most highly valued of Kentland's young men, is unanimously agreed, and that fact must be a grand consolation to his good parents and devoted young wife in their remembrance of him.

who were in attendance at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Brown, mother of Mrs. Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Peasley, and Miss Margaret Brown (the two ladies being sisters to Mrs. Dixon) of St. Joseph, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Pollock and Will Dixon, of Ambia, Ind.; Frank Dixon, Chicago; Guy

Dixon, of Idaho; John Dixon and family, of Lovington, Ill.; Harold Burr, Crown Point; and members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity were: Mack Wylie, Chicago; Webster Donaldson and Robert Smith, Indianapolis; Roscoe Thibert, Marion; Robert Irvin, Oxford; U. Ray Colson and Richard Lusk, Paris, Ill.; Lloyd Cline and Roger Swain, of Bluffton; Howard Adams, Wabash; Lyle Benton and Harold Adair, Hoopston, Ill.; and George F. Sammons, Fred Gott, Vincent O'Neill, and Harry Schmidt, of Kentland.

UNRATED BULL.
KILLS C. E. HATCH
Aug. 22, 1934
FUNERAL SERVICES CONDUCTED FROM FAMILY HOME SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Death Coroner Fowler Says

Coroner Virgil Fowler Monday rendered a verdict of accidental death in connection with his investigation of the fatal automobile accident on the "T" road early Saturday evening in which Curtis Correll of Friendship lost his life, and two other men, Harry Center, 50, and Harrison Center, 20, were injured. The elder Center, resident in Portsmouth General Hospital with a badly broken nose, Harrison Center was injured only slightly.

Correll was driving his motorcycle west on the "T" road and Harrison Center was driving a Ford touring car towards the city when the two met head-on. Correll sustained a fracture which extended across the base of the skull, his right leg was torn as badly below the knee that it would had been to have been amputated had he survived and his right wrist was fractured. The skull did not survive at the hospital. In addition, he sustained multiple scalp wounds and lacerations about the face. A number of stitches were necessary to close the scalp cuts.

News of the tragic death of Curtis Correll came as a distinct shock to his many friends. He was born in Portsmouth, Ohio, June 12, 1896, and was a son of the late Thomas Correll, who resided here to the home beyond in 1910.

He was educated in the common schools and was affiliated with the Methodist church of Friendship. Although employed of the Irving Dore Blue Company of this city, he made his home at Friendship for some years. On May 22nd, 1917, he was married to Mrs. Anna O'Neil, who, with the following relatives are left to mourn his death, two small sons, Kenneth, age 6 and Thomas, age 3, his mother, Mrs. Martha Correll, two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Hall and Mrs. Elsie Correll and three brothers, Carl and Stephen, at home, and Clayton, of Friendship. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Friendship Methodist church. Interment being at the cemetery there.

Curtis Correll was well and favorable known throughout the county. He had an affable nature and his passing through life in serving the interests of many. He was a great lover of music and though his violin is still from his amateur knowledge here, the thought of his skill shall remain as a pleasant memory to those who were as fortunate as to have heard him.

Servicely Ill
 Mrs. Mary A. Ricker, 82, is seriously ill at her home near Newdale. She is well known here and is the mother of Dr. Stewart R. E. Ricker of this street.

Charles E. Hatch, 78, passed away Thursday morning at nine o'clock following injuries received the day before when he was gored by a bull in an orchard at the farm home of his daughter, Mrs. Lillian Holley. Mr. Hatch had been lifting up brush in the orchard northeast of the house when the bull approached and tore down a pile of brush. Mr. Hatch threw a stone at the animal, then turned around and walked away. The infuriated animal charged him, striking him down and plowed him into insensibility. Allen English, attendant of the Lincoln filling station just across Highway 41, ran to assist Mr. Hatch and chased the angry bull away. The aged man suffered several of the fractures, a broken arm and internal injuries which proved fatal.

Charles E. Hatch, the son of Freeman and Julia Elizabeth Caldwell Hatch, was born at Green Mountain, Pennsylvania, on October 24, 1858, and departed this life at his home near Kentland, Indiana, August 20, 1934, at the age of 75 years, 18 months and six days.

When he was about 18 months old, his parents moved to Frankfort, Illinois, where they resided until young Charles had attained the age of nine years, when they moved to Indiana and settled near Kentland. From that time on his life was spent, for the most part, in this community—a brief residence in Hart Park being the exception.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1873, he was united in marriage to Plover Kenner. To this union were born four children, one son and three daughters, all of whom survive. When about 15 years of age, in 1886, he united with the Mt. Zion United Brethren Church, where his membership has since remained.

He is survived by his wife; four children: Mrs. Nellie Woodruff, of Terre Haute; Chestney Hatch of Irroquois, Illinois; Mrs. Mildred Mendenhall of Sheldon, Illinois; and Mrs. Lillian Holley of Crown Point; one brother, Robert Hatch, of Coldwater, Kansas; one sister, Mrs. Eva Votha, of Paces City, Oklahoma; 12 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted from the home, north of town Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. A. B. McKala of the Mt. Zion Church officiated. Interment was made in Fairlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Hatch was widely known as a leading farmer and breeder of fine stock. He has many friends here who feel keenly his untimely passing.

ROBERT WINTERSTEEN VICTIM OF FATAL TRUCK-TRAIN WRECK NEAR GRANT PARK, ILL.

P. 86

Nov. 1935
CRUSHED TO DEATH AND BODY
BADLY CHARRIED BY FIRE
WHEN TRUCK CRASHED INTO TRAIN

Funeral services for Robert Wintersteen, 23, victim of the tragic accident on a railway crossing three miles south-east of Grant Park, Ill., at 11:50 o'clock last Thursday night, were held from the Comley funeral home here Sunday afternoon with Rev. Lohan in charge and burial was in the Fowler cemetery.

Bernard Belach, 25, owner of the ill-fated truck that crashed into the freight train, who escaped death by leaping from the cab of the truck, is reported to be getting along nicely. He suffered a fracture of the left pelvis bone.

Belach was first moved from the scene of the wreck to St. Mary's hospital, Kankakee, and Tuesday, he was removed from Kankakee to the Home Hospital at LaSalle in Harry Comley's ambulance. The attending surgeon says he will probably be unable to work for at least four months.

Wintersteen and Belach were enroute from Dayton, Ohio to Chicago with a ton-ton load of paint when the big International tractor-trailer crashed into the side of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul (Walsh Road) freight train twelve miles southwest of Schneider. The unexpected crossing is on Illinois road No. 17 about eight miles west of U. S. highway 41, and has been the scene of seven fatal accidents during the past three years.

Wintersteen, who relieved Belach as driver at Schneider, did not see the big car until about a minute before the crash, within about two hundred feet of the crossing and, when he realized the danger, he shouted a warning to Belach, asleep in the cab, who leaped out. Wintersteen failed to escape and was instantly killed when the truck struck the side of an empty coal car, which, with four others, was derailed.

The unfortunate man was pinned under the wrecked freight cars and his body was badly charred by fire that broke out immediately after the crash when the gasoline tank on the truck exploded and set fire to the load of paint and freight cars. The body was not recovered from the wreckage until six o'clock Friday morning.

The cab of the truck was reduced to a mass of splinters and the motor was found alongside the tracks about one hundred feet south of the crossing. The trailer landed in a twenty-foot ditch to the south of the highway and other parts of the truck were found scattered a distance of two hundred feet or more down the railway tracks.

It is believed that Wintersteen attempted to avoid hitting the train by swerving to the right, and that the front part of the truck struck the freight car a glancing blow and derailed it.

The first car derailed was the sixth from the caboose and the conductor and track brakemen were the first persons to reach the crossing. They found Belach lying on the pavement about fifty feet from the railway tracks. He was taken to a nearby farm house and later, was removed to the Kankakee hospital by Harry Comley, who had been summoned.

About 3 o'clock Friday morning, Link Wintersteen, a brother of Robert's, came up to the wreck while enroute to Chicago in another truck and when he inquired of a highway policeman where the wrecked truck was from, he learned that the victim was his own brother. The sad news was a great shock to him and he was escorted to Kentland by two Indiana state police from the Hammond district.

CLYDE CARLSON IN FATAL ACCIDENT

DIES FROM INJURIES INFLICTED
WHEN AUTOMOBILE STRIKES
FAST FREIGHT
Feb. 15, 1934

Clyde Carlson, son of Mrs. Hannah Carlson, was fatally injured Sunday evening at 7:40 o'clock at Sheldon, Illinois, when the Oldsmobile coupe he was driving collided with the fast northbound Big Four freight train, No. 63, at the McCleod crossing. The car was completely demolished.

The injured youth was taken to Dr. Sever's office where he passed away an hour later, death resulting from severe chest injuries.

The unfortunate young man was born August 14, 1910, on a farm north of Kentland. He attended the Kentland public schools and graduated from the Kentland high school with the class of 1929. Following his graduation, he was employed for a time in Chicago and South Bend. At the time of his demise he was employed at the Standard Oil filling station at the corner of Main street and Highway 34.

Throughout his school career Clyde participated in athletics and was a good athlete. He was possessed of a jovial nature, and a sense of sincerity that made and held many friends. His tragic end came as a distinct shock to his family and a host of friends.

He was recently initiated into the local order of Knights of Pythias. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Hannah Carlson, three brothers and two sisters; Arvid, who is stationed at San Diego, California, with the U. S. Navy; Sherwood and Ronben, and Mrs. Beryl Alm and Miss Madona Carlson, of Kentland.

Funeral services were conducted from the Kentland Christian Church yesterday afternoon at 2:09 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. John S. VanOrman in charge. Interment was made in Beaver Cemetery, near Donovan, Illinois, beside the remains of his father, who preceded him to death December 15, 1917.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the grief-stricken mother and sorrowing brothers and sisters, in their dark hour of sorrow.

Wintersteen disclosed that his skull was fractured and that death was instantaneous. Reports that he had succumbed to death are erroneous. The body was lying between the two rails with the trucks of one freight-car resting upon it and it was necessary to raise the trucks with jackscrews before it could be removed. Three of the five cars derailed were consumed by the fire. One hundred and fifteen of the 116 car train, were empty coal cars.

Robert Stanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wintersteen, was born at Chazy, Pa., Ohio on May 21, 1912. Departed this life on Nov. 21, 1933. Age 23 years and 6 months.

"Bob" as he was known to all his friends was loved by all for his cheery and sunny disposition and his untimely death came as a great shock to his relatives and many friends.

He leaves to mourn his death his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wintersteen, five brothers and five sisters, namely, Lincoln and Ralph at home, Ross of Fowler, George of Hoopston, Ill., Norval of Talbot, Ind., Mrs. Henry Dixon, of Winchester, Ohio, Mrs. Ed Booth of Danville, Ill., Mrs. Wm. Holstine, of Salem, Ind., Mrs. Harvey Messer of Talbot, Ind., and Mrs. Otis Kincaid of Fowler and a host of relatives and friends.

Bob will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved him.

Belach and Wintersteen stopped in Fowler Thursday evening for quite a while, eating supper here and visiting with friends and relatives before they departed for Chicago about 10 o'clock. The sad news of the tragic death of the young truck driver was a great shock to relatives and his host of friends here.

Belach, operates a fleet of two trucks for the Cushman Motor Lines and it is said his truck was covered by insurance. It is also reported that the Cushman Lines carry insurance on all of their drivers.

A temporary inquest was held at the Canada undertaking parlors at Momence Friday morning, where the remains of Wintersteen were first taken and, in the afternoon, the body was brought to the Comley funeral home here. Another inquest was held at Momence Monday afternoon at which time evidence of the train crew, and others, was taken. Among the witnesses to testify were Mr. Comley and his assistant, Edward Messer, who assisted in removing the charred remains from the wreckage.

FATAL CRASH LEAVES MASS OF TWISTED METAL

Through the courtesy of the Kankakee Republican-News, we are printing a picture of the spectacular truck-train wreck at midnight last Thursday east of Grand Park, Ill., which took the life of Robert Wintersteen, Fowler truck driver, and seriously injured Bernard Beloch, also of Fowler. The photo shows the remains of the big lure that was practically consumed by fire, and the charred wreckage of three railway cars. The above picture was taken a short distance south of the fatal crossing where Wintersteen lost his life. The trailer, loaded with ten tons of paint, broke loose from the tractor part of the truck and was dragged a few feet to the south by the train.

FOWLER MAN KILLED WHEN CARS COLLIDE ON STATE HIGHWAY

BERNARD BELSCH VICTIM OF TRAGIC ACCIDENT SATUR-DAY EVENING

Bernard A. Beloch, 38, owner and operator of the Ace Safety Coach Line, was killed instantly about 7:15 o'clock Saturday evening in a collision of two cars on highway 52, in the southeast corner limits of Fowler. Death was from a broken neck.

The unfortunate man, accompanied by Maurice (Mike) Tinschky, was enroute home from Indianapolis in the former's 1934 Plymouth coach when it was struck almost broadside by a Nash sedan, driven by Philip Kotia, 17, of Milwaukee, Wis., on the sharp curve just southeast of the state highway garage.

According to police officers and Coroner Ralph Thrush, the northbound Plymouth was apparently traveling at a high rate of speed when it skidded over the edge of the west pavement into the path of the Milwaukee car and was struck on the left side about midway of the body.

The impact caused the Fowler car to overturn and it came to a stop with all four wheels in the air on the east side, some fifty feet to the north of the spot where the vehicles collided. Beloch was thrown out of the left side door onto the lawn and his body was found lying on the grass about eight feet from the car. Twisted remains in the car said he escaped with two broken ribs, broken minor ribs and bruises.

The left front end of the southbound Milwaukee car was badly damaged but it did not overturn. Phillip Kotia, the driver, received a severe cut on the chin that required surgical stitches to close and Phillip Bernett, 17, who was riding with him in the front seat, suffered a possible fracture of the jaw and severe bruises. Adolph Holick, 50, a midwife who was chaperoning Kotia and Mike Bernett on a visit to Lafayette, was riding in the rear seat and also escaped injury.

The injured persons were taken to Dr. W. L. Turin's office for medical attention after which Tinschky was taken to his home and the Milwaukee party of three continued their journey to Lafayette in a car that came here from that city to get them.

The victim of the tragic accident was widely known throughout this section and was held in high esteem by everyone. Since 1941 he had owned and operated a bus line from Fowler to industrial plants in Lafayette and recently, he had been talking various groups on sight-seeing tours to Chicago, Nashville, Tenn., and other cities. He was considered a most competent and careful driver.

Bernard was a son of John M. and Grace (Boza) Beloch and he was born May 5, 1897 near Scottsburg, in Scott county. With his parents, he came to Benton county in 1918 and he attended school in Pine township and at Oxford. In 1923 he united with the Oxford Christian church where he had retained membership ever since. On Dec. 21, 1940 he was united in marriage to Luann German of Fowler, who survives.

Surviving besides the widow are his parents of Oxford; a sister, Mrs. Everett W. Timmons of Grand Junction, Col., and two brothers, Clayton M. and Marvin E., both of Lafayette, besides a host of friends and acquaintances.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Fowler Methodist church with interment in the Mt. Olive cemetery.

Harry R. Farrell Loses Life¹⁹³¹ Battling Fugitive in Alley,^{P. 88} But Mortally Wounds Slayer August 4, 1931

Dead Bandit Is Identified

Identification of the body of the bandit who fatally shot Patrolman Harry R. Farrell and was in turn slain by the policeman, was believed to have been effected Wednesday afternoon at the Soller funeral home.

Hubert Miller, of Chalmeta, said the body was that of Louis E. Jeffries, former Kentuckian and ex-convict, who had been living recently in Illinois. Miller said Jeffries visited the Miller home in Chalmeta last Sunday. The two men were raised together near Eastview, Hardin county, Kentucky. Miller said, and had not seen each other before for eight years. Eastview is about 50 miles south of Louisville.

According to Miller, Jeffries served two terms in the Kentucky State Prison for robbery. He said Jeffries told him Sunday he had a wife and child in Illinois, but did not name the city. Miller said that Jeffries married a Grace Johnson in Lafayette 10 years ago.

Journal and Courier marriage records revealed that the marriage was performed Saturday afternoon, June 15, 1921, at the office of Justice Thomas E. Bridges, J. M. White and Walter E. Young being the witnesses. Reference to the newspaper files of that year disclosed the following facts:

Jeffries at the time of his marriage was 25 years old, making him 36 at the time he met death. He was said to be an upholsterer by trade and resided in the residence at Lafayette. Grace Johnson, according to the 1920 city directory, lived at 428 South Fifth street. Jeffries was said to have served in Battery F, 12th heavy field artillery, United States army, having been honorably discharged. The bride was said to be the daughter of Malachi Johnson, of Charlottesville, Va. Jeffries was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jeffries, Hardin county, Kentucky.

Miller was brought to Lafayette by State Highway Policeman E. A. Yates, of Chalmeta, who had previously reported that he was certain he had seen the bandit in White county not long ago. Miller moved to Chalmeta from Illinois about a year ago. He is a laborer.

Law Guardian and Outlaw in Fatal Encounter in Darkness, Following Filling Station Hold-up—Officer Dies at Hospital, Robber's Body Found Near Scene of Shooting Be- hind Whistler Building.

Battling to arrest a bandit in a dark alley near Second and Alabama streets Tuesday evening, Harry R. Farrell, 36, patrolman on the Lafayette police force, was shot to death by the desperate fugitive, but not before he had sent bullets into the criminal which resulted in the latter's death a short time afterward. The identity of the slain bandit was believed to have been established Wednesday.

DIES AT HOSPITAL

Farrell died at St. Elizabeth hospital from a bullet wound in his abdomen, expiring about 30 minutes after the injury was inflicted. The deadly struggle in the alley was believed to have been fatal only to the policeman until three hours later when the bandit's body was found lying in a pool of blood between two houses on South Third street, approximately 500 feet from the scene of the fatal battle.

FIND BANDIT DEAD

The stranger's body was found near the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore, 154 North Third street. Mrs. Sarah Gibson, who lives in the adjoining home on the north side, said that she had heard the bandit groan. It frightened her and she closed her door. The form of the dead bandit was only about three feet from the Gibson door.

ROBS FILLING STATION

The outlaw held up and robbed Kenneth Leckard, Mid-Centennial gasoline station, attendant at Brown street, here, and North Ellsworth street, West Lafayette, at 2:15 o'clock in the evening, escaping with about $12. The police department was notified and given a description of the bandit's auto, a blue Buick coach about five years old, carrying Illinois license plates.

The auto came across Brown street levee and started south on Fourth street. When Columbia street was reached the brakes on the car suddenly jammed and the auto was disabled. The driver abandoned the car and started west on Columbia on a half run. About the same time Police Captain Albert A. Nichols and Officer Farrell came out of headquarters with the intention of going to the station that had just been robbed. They had just been notified of the holdup.

FATAL CHASE STARTS

Harold W. Voss, of Rural Route 5, who was sitting in his car on the east side of Fourth street, saw the offender come out and get in the police car. Hearing something said about a holdup, Voss ran to the policeman's car, jumped on the running board and pointed out the man running west on Columbia street. With young Voss still riding the running board, the police gave chase.

The bandit ran to Third street and turned south and when he reached Alabama he turned west, in which direction he ran for half a block and then darted into the alley. The police car approached and Captain Nichols got out at the alley. Officer Farrell drove the car into the alley about 75 feet, it is believed. Young Voss got out at the sidewalk. Captain Nichols went on west to Second street and turned south, hoping to head the bandit off there. The stranger, after entering the alley turned west and ran toward Second street along the crating and packing establishment of C. R. Whistler.

CORNERED IN ALLEY

It is believed that before he reached Second street he saw Captain Nichols and retraced his steps back into the alley, running directly into Officer Farrell. A hand-to-hand duel followed. When the killer ran along the Whistler building he suddenly struck his head on a timber and also stumbled over an old automobile seat, throwing him down. At this place, Prosecuting Attorney Raymond M. Robertson picked up a black rubber raincoat and a set white snow hat.

When the body of the slayer was found he had on a cap, which he wore during the filling station robbery. The hat and cap were of the same size, the latter having been sold at the Ed J. Hoke store in Kewanee, Wis.

SHOOTING BEGINS

The alley in which the battle to death was fought runs north and south between Second and Third streets and the exact scene of the shooting is about 75 feet south of the Alabama street entrance to the alley. The C. R. Whistler building runs back along the alley line.

The bandit evidently was crushed at the northeast corner of the building when Farrell jumped out of his car in the alley and ordered the fugitive to surrender. It is believed the bandit replied with a shot that was followed by others. Farrell probably shot at least once or twice after he had himself been shot. People in the neighborhood said they heard about eight or nine shots fired in rapid succession.

After fatally wounding Farrell the bandit, himself mortally injured, managed to stagger off west on Columbia to the alley where he found an opening in a board fence through which he made his way into the yard where he was found dead later.

SEEN IN DETROIT.
Frank Pace, of the State Department, after viewing the body of the stranger, claimed to have seen the same man working in a lunch room in Detroit, Mich., just a year ago. He was visiting a son in Detroit last year when he said he saw the young man.

CROWD ASSEMBLES
Thousands of people, hearing of the brutal killing of the policeman, were attracted to the business section of the city and the crowd did not disperse until long after the killer had been found.
When word came that the slayer himself was dead, the crowd went wild and a throng, probably numbering 1,500 followed officers to the rooms of the following office body. The curious were anxious to get a glimpse of the slayer and some said they had seen him around Lafayette recently.

The Lafayette police department and county officials were making plans Wednesday to honor their dead comrades at funeral services Friday. Police from surrounding cities are expected to attend the rites.

dent of Kentland, was found dead and lying on a counter in the Noble poolroom at about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, his death being attributed to heart failure.

For some years past Mr. Krider, who was 70 years and eight months of age, has been in failing health and somewhat afflicted with heart trouble. During this winter he has been getting his meals at the restaurant and sleeping in the Noble poolroom.
Tuesday evening he complained of pains in the chest and went to a physician and got some medicine for relief therefrom. When Mr. Noble, and son, Kenneth, closed their place for the night, they offered that one of them would stay with him throughout the night but he said that would not be necessary, as he would probably soon be better from the effects of his medicine. Mr. Krider, who was then lying on the counter, said that Kenneth might place a glass of water within his reach and that they then go home, all of which they did.

At the stated hour Wednesday morning, William Krummet entered the poolroom, by the front door which was unlocked, and found the decen-t's body lying on the counter as related.

County Coroner Allen W. Kenoyer was promptly called and an inquest held with result of a verdict that death has been caused by heart failure. The body was removed to the Hassett undertaking parlors and prepared for burial. The decedent's son, George Krider, of Peoria, Ill., and daughter, Mrs. Ida Mott, of Washington, Ill., were then notified and they came and yesterday took

DEATH OF CHILD P. 91 CAUSES SORROW

April 1929

COMMUNITY GRIEVES AT SUD-DEN TAKING OF LITTLE FOR-EST HARRINGTON.

April 1929

The many neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harrington, residing on the Oriser farm east of Keokuk, were shocked and extremely grieved to learn of the sudden death of their little five year old son, Forest Howard, last Friday evening after but a day's illness of cholera infantum. The little one was stricken on suddenly Thursday evening and every effort of tender nursing and medical attention proved of no avail.
 Death came Friday evening between ten and eleven o'clock. Funeral services in charge of the pastor, Rev.
 A. C. Kestrop, were held at Trinity
 M. E. Church, Monday, at 2 p.m.
 Burial was at Fairview.

Forest Howard Harrington, only son of Howard and Mary Oriser Harrington, was born at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E.
 Harrington, at Goodland, Ind., on September 2, 1924. He departed this life at the home of his parents, residing near Keokuk, on Sept. 4, 1929, after but a few hours sickness at the tender age of but five years and three days. Forest Howard was a very bright and attractive child, and gave every promise of growing up into strong and intelligent manhood. His mental alertness was especially noticeable and indicated an understanding beyond his years.
 He was a real companion to his parents and took a keen interest in the work of the farm and the home, and his presence will be sorely missed by the loving parents. He is survived by his parents and both his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harrington and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Oriser, and by a number of aunts, uncles and other relatives. These, together with a host of approving friends and neighbors, join in sorrow and empathy with the parents in the great bereavement that has come to them.

Among the set of town relatives and friends attending the funeral services were Mrs. Clifford Todd, Montmorenc, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs.
 William Alford and daughter, Gary;
 Mrs. H. Hamman, Logansport; Mr. and Mrs. F. Farver, Crest, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carbaugh and daughter,
 Brookston, and Mr. and Mrs. Jay
 Wildman and son of Goodland.

Mrs. Charles E. Ross
 Dec. 19 4. 1927
 The funeral services for Mrs. Charles E. Ross, of whose death at the family home at an early hour last Friday morning, after an illness of about a month's duration, announcement was made in our last issue, were conducted from the home, on West Carroll street, at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, by the Rev. J. E. McCleod, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church; interment being made in Fairlawn cemetery.

Mrs. Ross, who had lived to the venerable age of 83 years, three months and sixteen days, was one of the eldest and most generally beloved women of Kentland; she having resided in town and on the farm within two miles' distance, since 1865—a period of sixty-two years. When she and her now deceased husband came here, this was yet a sparsely settled community; the land a raw, swampy prairie, and the facilities for operating it still in the crude form, but by honest and faithful toil—blended with happiness and contentment—they amassed a few farms upon which they resided for many years and later moved to town. Mrs. Ross was a good woman in all that the word implies—a kind, loving wife and mother; a cheerful, obliging neighbor and friend. The following obituary was read during the funeral services:

Eliza Jennie Clark, daughter of John and Julia Ann Clark, was born in Hamlin, New York, October 14, 1845, and departed this life, February 4, 1927, at the age of 83 years, three months and sixteen days.

The parents came to Kane county, Illinois, by wagon, when she was only five years old, and she lived in Illinois until after her marriage, to Charles E. Ross.

They were united in marriage 16, 1862, while Mr. Ross was at home on a furlough. The husband was mustered out of service in 1865, and in 1869 they moved from Aurora, Illinois, to Kentland. From that time they made their home in Kentland, except a period of 17 years, when they lived on a farm just south of town.

To this union were born three children, Edward E. Ross, Mrs. Arthur L. Smart, and Roy A. Ross, all of this place.

Mrs. Ross gave her heart to God, and united with the Church when a little girl, and through those many years was a faithful member interested in all the work of the Church, being a member of the Sunday school, and the Ladies' Aid. As long as health permitted, she attended service of each of them. Not only was she interested in the direct work of the Church, but she was interested outside for the betterment of humanity, being a member of the W. C. T. U. organization.

Although she had passed the four score mark, she did not get old, but took an interest in her home, her flowers, and everything that helped to make life cheerful. While she enjoyed life yet she was ready for the translation to the beautiful home beyond when the time came for going. He who had been with her during her long life did not forsake her in death. She is survived by the husband and three children four grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs.

P. E. Moorehouse, of White Plains, New York. Her only brother George M. Clark, passed away but three weeks ago.

In translation of Mrs. Ross, the Church lost a faithful member, the community one of its esteemed citizens, and the family a devoted wife and mother.

DEATH AND BURIAL OF MRS. W. J. MERICA

LIFE TOOK ITS FLIGHT AS THE OLD YEAR WAS BREATHING ITS LAST.

Dec. 31, 1921

Mrs. W. J. Merica passed away at the family home on Iroquois Drive, Friday night, December 31, at 10 o'clock. The announcement of her death came as a great surprise to the people of Kentland who were under the impression that she was much improved in health. Mrs. Merica had been sick for several months, spending some time in a hospital at Lafayette where she underwent an operation for cancer of the liver. She returned home just before Christmas and her friends were happy in the improved condition of her health, but a relapse came a few days later, and she passed beyond.

The body was taken to Delphi, the family home, Sunday morning, and funeral services were conducted from the St. Joseph Catholic Church of that city at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Deceased was born at Delphi on July 15, 1837, being one of eleven children born to Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Schmitter, seven of whom, together with the parents, survive. She was married to W. J. Merica on February 23, 1867. They lived for a time at Delphi and in Bensenville, coming to Kentland about 10 years ago. A son and daughter were born to Mr. and Mrs. Merica, the former dying in infancy, and the daughter, Miss Regina, survives with the husband, to mourn a good and loving wife and mother. Mrs. Merica was devoted to her home and her church, and honored them both. She was a good neighbor and enjoyed a large friendship.

CHARLES FRANCIS FOUND DEAD IN BED, SATURDAY

Jan. 1, 1930

Charles Francis, who for years had lived alone at his late home on Allen street, was found dead in his bed at about three o'clock Saturday afternoon. He had been ill for about two weeks, with heart trouble. During his illness he was visited by neighbors, who brought in meals to him and looked after his wants generally. When last seen alive, by a number of callers during Friday afternoon and evening, he was sitting in his rocker, apparently much better, and said he thought he was getting along satisfactorily and would be able to be out again in a day or two. When Fred Flach called to see him, at about ten o'clock Saturday forenoon, he found the doors locked and window shades drawn clear down. Thinking him asleep and not wishing to disturb him, Mr. Flach left, but returned again in the afternoon to find conditions the same. He entered the house by the side entrance by both doors and found them locked or otherwise fastened. With a button-hook he managed to turn the key in one of the doors and thus obtained entrance. On opening the door he saw that the kerosene lamp (presumably lighted the evening before) was still burning. The fire to the stove had burned out and the kindling he had made the evening before not used, all of which would indicate that Mr. Francis had never arisen after having retired for the night. On looking to his bed, Mr. Flach found Mr. Francis lying in a natural position, his head resting on his right hand and the bed clothes neatly about him—indicating he had passed away with out a struggle.

Mr. Flach immediately called in other neighbors and a physician who pronounced life as having been extinct for several hours. The body was then taken to Herberman & Harry undertaking parlor and

MRS. ANDREW HALL PASSED AWAY SATURDAY AFTERNOON AT AGE OF EIGHTY-THREE.

July 10 1920

Mrs. Andrew Hall, for many years a resident of Kentland, died Saturday afternoon and was buried in Fairlawn cemetery on Monday. Her death occurred three days before her eighty-third birthday. She had been in excellent health and only a few days before had returned from a short motor trip to Logansport.

On her return, with her daughter, Miss Margaret Hall, she went to the home of her son, Charles H. Hall, on Popoan Drive, for a short stay. On Thursday she remarked that she had made her feet a little weak but did not seem to be much depressed. In the early afternoon she wrote some letters. Mrs. Charles Hall, who happened to be the only other person in the house at the time, heard her go to her bed and lie down. A few minutes later, going into the bedroom, she thought her mother appeared to be sleeping more quietly than she usually did. She called her husband who is the most there had come in. They tried to rouse their mother but failing, called physicians. Both Drs. VanDyke and Mathews arrived shortly afterwards and found Mrs. Hall unconscious from cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Hall's daughter, Mrs. Winifred Heald, and her husband, Dr. Fred Heald, were visiting in Orisco, Ontario. They were summoned by telegraph as was also Raymond Hall, a son living in New Rochelle, N. Y. Dr. and Mrs. Heald arrived Saturday at noon. Mrs. Hall, who was unconscious except for a brief period Thursday night, died about half past two o'clock Saturday afternoon. Raymond Hall arrived about an hour afterwards.

The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Hall home, 77 Graham street, Rox. N. Y. 425 years of the First Presbyterian Church of which Mrs. Hall was a member, conducted the services.

Mrs. N. V. Andrews, Mrs. W. O. Scharlach, Miss Lucile McCray, Mrs. George Boose, Mr. Boose and Jay C. Bell furnished the music, singing two of the stately old songs of which Mrs. Hall had been fond.

Mr. Ira Gray, a nephew of Monon, and Mr. Edward Strubbe, a nephew of Goodland, with Mrs. Strubbe, attended the funeral.

Mrs. Hall's life was spent largely in this community. For more than fifty years she had lived in Kentland. She resented when her fortune was so she was to be able to keep in such close contact with her children. She was active in the work of her church and took a keen interest in the affairs of the community.

Her life was guided by a sturdy, simple faith that marked a generous and unselfish devotion to her family and her friends; that gave her confidence in times of trouble, a thoughtful focus towards duty and that reached out its quiet influence to the heart of those who knew and loved her.

Emily Allen Hall was the daughter of Johnson and Julia Thompson, born July 15, 1827. Her first years were spent in the various communities in the state to which her father—a miller—was led by his business interests. When she was twenty years of age she entered Oberlin College, graduating with the class of 1853.

She became a teacher for a time, going finally to the Rushville, Ind., schools. From on May 23, 1865, she married Andrew Hall.

With her husband she moved to Newton county in 1868, living for a short time in Goodland, later going on a farm near there and coming to Kentland in 1871, where she has lived ever since. Here her husband died on May 1, 1897, and her own death occurred July 10, 1920, at the age of 93 years, 11 months and 27 days.

Mrs. Hall was the youngest and the last survivor of a family of six girls and two boys. Two of her sisters, Mrs. Rebecca Allen Finney and Miss Nancy Allen resided for many years in her Kentland home.

She is survived by two daughters Margaret May Hall and Winifred Hall Heald, by two sons, Charles H. and Raymond L. Hall, and two grandchildren.

REMAINS BROUGHT TO KENTLAND AND LAID TO REST IN FAIRLAWN CEMETERY.

Nancy Jane Kenoyer passed away Thursday at Logansport Hospital Logansport, where she had been an inmate for many years. The remains were brought to Kentland and laid to rest in Fairlawn cemetery Tuesday afternoon, funeral services being conducted from the Christian Church by Rev. Dunlap at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Kenoyer was a native of Indiana and was born February 25, 1845. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stator, came to Newton county in an early day, and about 1865 the subject of this sketch was married to James Kenoyer. They resided on a farm northwest of Kentland for a number of years, and were the parents of nine children, all of whom, with the father, survive. The sons and daughters are: John Kenoyer, Chetopa, Kan.; Mrs. Ella Corbin, Parsons, Kan.; Mrs. Clara Presser, San Diego, Cal.; Samuel A. Kenoyer, Miami, Ok.; Mrs. Lillian Holman, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Bell Brown, Niangua, Ok.; Mrs. Addie Hoffman, Kentland; Mrs. Pearl Ebermann, Chicago; and Mrs. Mabel Morris, Kansas City, Mo. The father resided with Mrs. Candice in Kansas. Two brothers, L. W. and G. M. Stator also survive and reside in Oklahoma.

The announcement of Mrs. Kenoyer's death was forwarded to her son, Samuel Kenoyer, who at the time was visiting at Winipeg, Canada, and he came forthwith to Kentland to make arrangements for the funeral.

After giving birth to her large family of children, Mrs. Kenoyer became afflicted and has since been in the state institution. During the years of her health and strength she was a good woman, a member of the church, and was kindly regarded by

SUDDEN DEATH OF DR. McCAIN SUNDAY

Oct. 10, 1924
WAS PLEASURE RIDING WITH HIS
CAME.

Oct. 10, 1924

The sudden death of Dr. R. C. McCain Sunday afternoon came as a terrible shock to this community. He passed away suddenly with an attack of heart trouble while out riding with his family.

Dr. McCain had planned a business trip to Indianapolis, but missing the train suggested to Mrs. McCain that they take a ride, and in company with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Neher, and their children, drove to the north part of the county. Nature appeared strongly to Mrs. McCain, and seeing a road that was little traveled suggested that as the route. The road was quite heavy and at times the occupants of the car were required to walk. They stopped on a bridge three miles west and one mile north of Morocco and got out for a drive. The Doctor was entertaining one of his grandchildren by pointing out minnows as they swam past under the bridge. They were there about 15 minutes, and as Mrs. McCain started to get in the car she saw her husband slip back to the foot of the bridge, and without a word death claimed one of the oldest and best known citizens of the county.

Few people travel this road and Mr. Neher was obliged to go nearly a mile for help. The body was taken to Morocco and later brought to Kentland to the family home which he left so happily a few hours previous.

Mrs. McCain and the children were naturally prostrated, and the home relatives and friends could scarcely believe the word.

Funeral services were conducted from the home yesterday afternoon at 2:16 p. m. by the Rev. N. V. Andrews of the Presbyterian Church and burial was made in Fairview with Masonic honors. Dr. McCain was popular in Masonic circles and there was a large delegation in attendance. Members of the medical fraternity acted as pall bearers. The business of the town was suspended during the hour of the funeral, which was one of the largest ever held in Kentland, testified to the high standing of the deceased.

Richard C. McCain was born in Grandy county, Missouri, on July 10, 1852, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Cordeus McCain. After completing his common school education he entered Hanover College from which he later graduated. He then took up the study of medicine in the Louisville Medical College, and after graduation there took a post course at Ann Arbor. His practicing for about one year at Burlington, Ind., and then came to Kentland, in 1874. During the nearly half century following, excepting a residence of a few months in Chattanooga in the early 80's, he has lived in Kentland, and was an honored, useful and influential citizen.

For a number of years after locating here Dr. McCain gave all his time to the practice of medicine, then purchased a drug store and continued in business until it was turned over to his sons about a year ago.

On January 25, 1882, he was united in marriage to Miss Gertrude Test, and to them were born a family of twelve children. Three preceded their father in death, and the remainder contributed in making the McCain home a happy and loving one, and the Dr. found his keenest delights within its four walls.

As a professional man Dr. McCain stood high, and in his active days enjoyed a large practice. He was also a successful business man, holding the confidence of the public in all his acts and dealings. Dr. McCain was a staunch and loyal supporter of his home town, and gave liberality of his time and talents to the schools, churches, and all public activities. He was a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Presbyterian church. Politically, Dr. McCain was an uncompromising Republican and took an active part in the party's campaign. He served in the State Senate from 1886 to 1890, served several terms on the local school board, and two terms as postmaster.

Mr. McCain made good and retained strong friendships. He liked people and their association, was fond of children, and took particular delight in visiting with and discussing political, business and other subjects with his friends. He had a strong following of intimate friends to whom he not only gave professional but personal advice and counsel.

Personally he was a man of few words, and in his passing the community suffered a great loss, and sincerely extends to the family the most heartfelt sympathy.

DEATH OF MRS. WORSHAM
Feb. 15, 1924
Remains Brought From Chicago for Interment in Fairview.

Mrs. J. D. Worsham, who had been sick and confined to her bed for some time past, was operated on last Friday, Feb. 15th, at 4 o'clock p. m., for appendicitis. She did not recover from the effects of the anesthetic, but quietly breathed her last at 11 o'clock that night.

Mrs. Worsham was operated on by Dr. A. R. Johnston of the Lake Side Hospital, of Chicago, assisted by Drs. Near of Waterloo, and Gibson of Sheldon. These skilled and earnest surgeons thought they left their patient with good chance of recovery, but quickly and unexpectedly the golden bowl was broken, and the lamp of life went out; while the husband and his eight year old Loris were brought face to face with the black shadows of a strange, deep, sorrow.

Mrs. Worsham (nee, Lottie Gertrude Clark) was born in Benton county, Indiana, Sept. 28th, 1855; and died in this world 28 years, 4 months, and 17 days. She was united in the bonds of holy matrimony with J. D. Worsham on the 22nd day of August, 1881, at the old farm home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Clark, a few miles north of Kentland.

It was a happy home, those young people were brought together, he in his school, teaching, and she, in her home teaching. On the 12th of August 1885, their home was brightened and blessed by heaven by the birth of a little daughter whom they called Loris Bertha. Mrs. Worsham was a good home keeper, a devoted wife, and tender mother.

After living for a while during their early married life in Indianapolis, Mr. Worsham was employed for a time by the East Grain Company, at Kentland. Later he was in the employ of the Western Grain Company, of Decatur, Ill. Finally, in 1912, he moved with his family to Sheldon, where he has since had charge of the increasing business of the Sheldon Elevator Company. Here, he and Mrs. Worsham lived and labored, and made their labor a labor of love, for the upbuilding of church, home, school and community.

Mrs. Worsham at the age of thirteen married with the Baptist Church at Goodland, but for many years she had been a loyal member of the Methodist Episcopal Church; interested in all departments of service: Ladies' Aid, missions, Sunday school, also an active member of the Women's Bible Class. She was loved by many, and will be greatly missed in the services and gatherings of the Sheldon church. Besides husband, and daughter, she leaves for father and mother, two sisters and four brothers, as follows: Mrs. Ardis Burns, of Ioville; Mrs. Maud E. Kimball, of Effner; John L. Clark, of Goodland; Samuel E. Clark, of Columbia City, Ind.; Ernest L. Clark, of Goodland; and Robert G. Clark, of Kentland, besides many other relatives, and numerous friends, to whom her early departure.

Two funeral services were held: one in Sheldon, and the other at Kentland. Because of Mr. Worsham's official relation to the public schools of Sheldon, they were closed for the afternoon. Many of the teachers and pupils attending the service. A large concourse of friends and sympathetic people came. The Sheldon Methodist Church, at 1:15 p. m., Monday, Feb. 16th, thereby giving expression to their high appreciation of the life of the deceased. Ferra, carolinas, roses and lilies were there in great profusion; each telling their own fragment story of some personal friendship with the Worshams. The following eight young women served as flower bearers: Miss Marie S. Lema, Miss Marie R. Boardley, Miss Serena Brown, Miss Edna Brown, Miss Lorene Pratt, Miss Lena Brubaker, Miss Daise Clark, and Miss Edna Warner.

These are the names of the men who served as pall bearers: J. A. Vankirk, A. V. Lockhart, Will Richardson, A. B. Klauer, Geo. W. Hahnway, and John Eisenberg.

The services were in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Wm. Riley Jeffrey, Jr., assisted by the Rev. F. L. Lewis of Monticello, Ind., who offered prayer. We have no space in which to report the sermons; but will only add, that Mr. Jeffrey chose as his text the following scriptures: "Thou hast loved Jesus" (Gen. 49:21, and the words of Jesus from the New Testament, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." The preacher stated that the first text carried the sob of the world's "eternal sorrow, while the second carried the divine light of unquenched hope. All hearts were touched, helped and strengthened by this tender yet vital sermons.

Very appropriate music was beautifully rendered by the following quartet: Mrs. Will Richardson, soprano; Mrs. John Shenbarger, alto; B. J. Jones, tenor; and Walter Smith, bass.

Following these services the funeral cortège came direct to Kentland. The Methodist Church at this place was filled with a large body of people. The services were in charge of the Rev. F. L. Hovis of Monticello a former pastor of the Kentland Church, and also of the Wortham Rev. Hovis was assisted by the present pastor, Rev. C. L. Harper, and also by the Rev. Jeffrey of Ellettsville.

The solo singers, flower bearers, and pall bearers, that served in the first service also served here. Rev. Hovis spoke appreciatively, and fondly of the life of the deceased, as he and Mrs. Hovis had known it, enjoyed it, and had been ministered to by it, while pastor of the Kentland Church. Rev. Hovis also spoke of the mystery of life; the mystery of sorrow; and the mystery of death; but now all open mysteries through the light of Christ.

Mrs. Wortham was a member of the Pythian Sisters of Kentland; and as the casket was borne from the church down the lines of the waiting sisterhood, each woman tenderly deposited upon the coffin a sprig of green, their emblem of eternity, whence love shall live to know its own.

Rev. Jeffrey, assisted by Rev. Harper had charge of the committal service at Patriana cemetery, where the body was tenderly laid to rest underneath earth's dust, and a covering of flowers, to await the resurrection mornning.

Those from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Wortham, Covington, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dykes, Whiteland, Ind.; Mrs. Rose Solman, Burgessville, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. NED BARKER, NOTED PIONEER HUNTER AND TRAPPER DIES IN KANKAKEE HOSPITAL

Famous For His Historical Lore of the Kankakee Region

A'mender L. (Ned) Barker, known as the last of the pioneer hunters and trappers of the Kankakee region, passed away at a Kankakee hospital on last Thursday due to an attack of pneumonia, at the age of 78.

He grew up in Newton county and few if any of today knew the habits and haunts of wild game as did Ned Barker. He made his living by hunting and trapping. He kept a pack of hunting dogs. When the time arrived he would produce enough Fox and Wolf traps to eat him a neat sum. Of the early history and lore of the river and marshlands, some knew better than he. In the past few years he was in demand in the schools and in conservation meetings to give the history and habits of the wild life that used to be, and which they are trying to restore.

He was settled in the famous Joppy county Linn hunt and many months ago, even at that time he had begun to feel physically. He reached the stage where it was necessary to take him to a hospital, where he developed pneumonia, and quickly passed away.

He was born in Jackson township, Newton county, on December 2nd, 1859, and spent most of his life near Mt. Air and Morocco. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Estella Scates of South Bend, and two sons, Le Vest and Martin, both of Lake Village.

He was a member of the North Star Church and was buried in the North Star cemetery.

Public Official and Prominent Business Man For Years

Robert P. Hiestand died at his home in Kentland on Sunday morning after an illness that lasted for over a year. He was a public official for many years and prominent in the real estate business. In his public relations he was courteous, genial and affable. He carried his plans in the esteem of men by his ability, and willingness to serve. Lawyers and business men trusted him with business over the telephone, rather than visit the office to look at the records. His private life was as clean and well kept as the records he was proud of. At 44 years, still in the prime of life, he leaves many friends and business acquaintances who regret the passing of a friend, and the loss of one who was capable of doing so much in the world, and doing it well.

Robert P. Hiestand came to Kentland in 1915, and has resided here almost continuously since that time. He enlisted for service in the World War on December 17, 1917, and within a short time was sent overseas with the 40th Aerial Squadron. He was honorably discharged in December, 1918, and immediately returned home. Shortly thereafter he and his older brother, Edward, formed a business partnership and engaged in the law and real estate field. From a modest beginning this partnership grew into a very successful and widely known enterprise. In order to better prepare himself, Robert spent some time at Tulare State University where he studied Commerce and Law.

In 1924 he was elected to the office of Clerk of the Newton Circuit Court, which office he filled with usual ability for eight years. His influence was felt not only in the business life of Kentland and Newton County, but in church, civic, and fraternal circles as well. He was Commander of the Oran Hedrick Post of the American Legion at the time of his death. He was a member of and filled many important offices of the Blue Lodge, Council, and Royal Arch Masons; was also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star. He took an active part in the affairs of the Kentland Chamber of Commerce; the Newton County Bar Association; and the Alton W. Kraxeyer Commerce Club. He became a member of the Methodist Church when a young man, and gave freely of his time and ability in promoting its welfare. He was Secretary of the Official Board at the time of his death.

Thrown upon his own resources in early boyhood through the death of his father, Robert overcame hardships that would have overwhelmed one less courageous. He sought his way past obstacles with quiet determination and perseverance, and earned for himself an enviable position through his ability, tenacity, and integrity.

Robert P. Hiestand, six of seven children of Editha Hiestand was born November 15, 1894 in Grant township, Newton county. He was married December 29, 1920 to Ruby Duran who died July 8, 1926. On February 5, 1927 he married Mabel Smith of Nash, who survives, together with his mother, Mrs. Editha Hiestand; three sisters, Mrs. Goldie Hesteren, Mrs. Doris Henderson, Mrs. Mary Childress; and three brothers, Howard E. and Joseph of Kentland, and Edward of near Brook. One sister, Mrs. Editha Zemar, is deceased.

Ben H. Ladd, one of the judges of the Benton County Magistrate's Court, and one of Benton County's best-known citizens, passed away at his home on Third Street at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning after having been seriously ill for several days. He had been in failing health for a number of years, suffering from diabetes.

A resident of Fowler for the greater part of his life, Mr. Ladd was best known as justice of the peace here for many years. About 15 months ago, after the state legislature had passed a bill enabling the establishment of county magistrate's courts, Mr. Ladd was appointed by Judge Elmore Starvo as county magistrate. He and his associate judge, Mrs. Mae Johnson, were the first magistrates to be appointed in the state of In-

The couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on May 24 of this year.

Active in politics throughout his life, and an ardent Republican, Mr. Ladd was the party's nominee for circuit clerk of Benton County in 1910, losing the election by 28 votes. Later he was elected justice of the peace of Center Township and served in that capacity for 30 years. He was the proprietor of the original dry cleaning plant in Fowler many years ago and the present Fowler Laundry, of which his son, Glenn T. Ladd, is the proprietor, is an outgrowth of the original enterprise.

The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian Church and was a charter member of the local chapter of the Knights of Pythias, entering the order 52 years ago, and having held many offices in the organization. The Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters joined in helping Mr. and Mrs. Ladd celebrate their golden wedding anniversary by holding an open house reception at the lodge rooms last spring.

GEORGE H. HART IS CALLED BY DEATH

DECEASED EARL PARK MAN DIED SUNDAY FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

George H. Hart, one of Benton county's most prominent and widely known citizens, passed away at 8:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon at his home in Earl Park. He had been ill for many weeks and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Hart was one of Benton county's wealthy land owners and for many years he owned and operated the Newton County Stone Company quarry, three miles east of Kentland.

The obituary following gives an extended account of his long and active life.

George Hart of Earl Park is dead—a courtly gentleman, a magnificent friend, and a man of profound worth in his community. He was always of the most stainless conduct, honest and trustworthy, of indefatigable energy. What more may be said? He leaves behind him Mrs. Rose Gunn of Kennington, his sister—Mrs. Frank Hart of Anderson, a brother, a number of nieces and nephews, and a host of friends.

George Hart was born near Kankakee, Illinois, and when he died was the owner of nine hundred acres of land in Benton County, and about one thousand acres in White and other counties. He was also the sole owner and manager of the Newton County Stone Quarry, an immense industry which he had fostered to the highest point of development.

When a young man Mr. Hart had been an agent and employee of the Adams Express Company—later he was the owner of drug stores at Morocco, and Kentland—still later he was a successful operator of several thousand acres of good farm land in Benton and adjoining counties, and one of the officers and directors in the Earl Park State Bank.

In the year 1891, Mr. Hart was united in marriage with Abigail Hawkins, the granddaughter of Abigail Sumner. While this union was not blessed with children, their lives were most pleasurable and companionable. Their tastes were congenial, and both took a deep and abiding interest in their many business affairs, the social and the moral advancement of the community, and the maintenance and support of the local schools and churches. Mr. Hart always found time to indulge his wife's liking for the trees, the flowers, and the delights of the great outdoors, to all of which she became more and more deeply attached as the years passed by.

Several years after Mrs. Hart's death, Mrs. Stuart, the daughter of Adams Earl, devised what is known as the "Park," a beautiful grove of some twenty-six or twenty-seven acres of timber land just north of the town for the purpose of providing recreation and playgrounds for the children of the community. There seemed for a time to be some hesitation on the part of the public authorities in accepting this gift. At but death, one-third is left in fee simple to the five children of the donor, mentioned above, and the balance of the remaining four-fifths of the 438 acres is left to Abigail Flinn, Martha Gagnon, Sumner Ditton and James Hawkins and upon the death of any of the above, the one-fifth so held by him or her goes to the living issue of said life tenant. In case said life tenant, at time of death, leaves no heirs, the share so held by him or her, is bequeathed in fee simple to the living issues of the remaining life tenants, shares and shares alike.

One paragraph in the will sets out that the lands mentioned came to Mr. Hart's deceased wife by inheritance from her mother, the late Jane Hawkins and that it was an expressed desire of Mr. Hart's wife that the farm lands should go back to the descendants of the late Jane Hawkins.

Mention is made of a pending suit against Mr. Hart, former president of the defunct Earl Park State Bank, and its directors, in which it is alleged that the officers negligently loaned money and failed to collect same from Charles and Martha Jewell, Abigail and William Flinn, John Bond and James Ditton. Should this money, amount unknown to the Review, have to be paid, the will provides that enough of the farm land be sold to pay same.

Florence U. Sherman, his secretary, is entitled his automobile, right of occupancy and use of home in Earl Park. A provision is also made that she be paid $150 a month as long as she acts as executor of the estate but this is not to be considered as payment for her services as an executor. The court is requested to pay her in full for such services, in addition to the $150 a month allowance.

One of the closing paragraphs says: "All of the rest and residue of my property not heretofore disposed of, real or personal, I devise and bequeath to Florence U. Sherman in fee simple. "She is authorized to take full possession of said property and to have full management, including the operation of stone quarry, resting lands, collecting rents, etc." Mrs. Sherman is authorized to operate stone quarry until same can be sold at a fair price.

Individual bequests are as follows: Donald and Willard Hart, $500 each; Clarence O. Riggs, $500; Pearl 438 acres to Martha Jewell and at this juncture Mr. Hart made an eloquent plea before the Board—urged that its acceptance would not only be a tribute to the usefulness and public-spirited action of Mrs. Stuart, but would be of untold benefit not only to the present generation but to the generations to come. This gift is now a proper adjunct of the town.

We must mention here a distinguishing goodness of Mr. Hart, and one for which he was justly celebrated in all the neighborhoods in which he was active. Being exceedingly industrious and attentive to business at all times, he surrounded himself with a great number of employees and tenants who operated his lands and worked in the great stone quarries at Kentland. If he found a man who was willing to work, to give attention to duty, he gave this man the most earnest support, both financially and morally, thus gradually surrounding himself with a group of individuals who were not only loyal to their employer, but zealous in the promotion of his enterprises. He was particularly the friend of the young, those whom he termed as "self made"—was wholly and unselfishly interested in their advancement, both moral, social and economic. He had no use for the dissipation or the dissipation abstained all his life from the use of stimulants.

In the development of the Newton County Stone Quarry at Kentland, he embarked upon a venture which he pursued diligently and unceasingly until the hour of his death.

He drove everywhere, made bids, entered into contracts with counties, towns and municipalities in every direction. His relations with all of the public authorities were always cor-without a hint of dishonesty or guile. He furnished a high class city of limestone for the roads and for the public road. These exertions finally overtaxed his strength and led to his final dissolution.

The life of such a man as this—honest, temperate, industrious at all times—public spirited and of exemplary habit—is an example worthy of emulation by all alike, the young and the old.

The author of this article was for many years an adviser and confidant of Mr. Hart. One of his characteristics was particularly noteworthy. He demanded at all times a close application to, and a prompt dispatch of business—tolerated no unnecessary delay—moved forward promptly and at once to the accomplishment of the task, the execution of the duty, that came to hand. At all times he was a model of industry and of executive diligence.

Mr. Hart's constant efforts finally wore him out. He took to bed on the 7th day of December, 1938, and died at his home in Earl Park on the 28th day of January, 1939. He was buried by the side of his wife at Lafayette.

Funeral services were held from the family home in Earl Park, Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with Rev. Pontius of Kentland, and Rev. Peter Swadish, of Fowler, officiating. Interment was in Springdale cemetery, Lafayette.

DEATH CLAIMS YOUNG WADLOW, ALTON "GIANT"

Leg Infection Proves Fatal to World Famed Illinois Youth Who Towered 8 Feet 9 1/2 Inches

MANITOWISH, Mich., July 15.—(AP)—Robert Wadlow, the 22-year-old Alton, Ill., "giant" who was 8 feet 9 1/2 inches tall and was known as the "world's tallest man" died here early today from complications following a foot infection.

Wadlow, who was making a professional appearance as the "world's tallest man" at the national foot festival here, suffered an infection in his left ankle less than a fortnight ago.

The youthful giant's condition grew steadily worse, and physicians gave him a blood transfusion yesterday and performed a wide operation on his foot last night. His temperature all of yesterday was reported as "never lower than 106". He died at 1:40 a. m. (U. S. C. & T.).

Funeral arrangements were held in abeyance today pending the arrival of Cecil Wadlow, of Lincoln, Neb., an uncle. It was expected the body would be taken to Alton, Ill., for the funeral.

Under the management of his father, Harold F. Wadlow, the young man was sponsored on his appearance here by a shoe company.

NORMAL AT BIRTH
A child of normal size at birth, Wadlow weighed 401 pounds while making his last public appearance. Medical men said his great height resulted from over-activity of the pituitary gland.

Wadlow suffered his injury July 4. A brace worn on his ankle rotted and infection set in. He was confined in his hotel rather than a hospital. His condition had

ROBERT WADLOW

Headworker—and grand of R. ALTON, Ill., Feb. 23—Robert Wadlow, who was 28 years old, 8 feet 9 1/2 inches tall and 455 pounds heavy today, has developed an unusual hobby.

It's needless to say his father, Arnold F. Wadlow, told reporters here for the "big boy's" birthday celebration: "Robert makes custom covers and table runners. He takes great pride in his work."

Robert appears to be nearing the end of his remarkable growth. The youth, said to be the tallest human of whom there is authentic record, grew only 1 1/2 inches during the past year, his father declares.

H. C. LUST FATALLY WOUNDED WHEN CAR CRASHES INTO BUS AT OXFORD

July 1936

Prominent Fowler Attorney and Candidate For Judge, Died Last Night in Lafayette Hospital; Funeral Friday Afternoon

H. C. Lust, 61, one of Benton county's most prominent citizens, and Democratic candidate for Judge of the Benton circuit court, was fatally injured in a tragic accident at Oxford yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock, his death occurring five hours later in the Home hospital, Lafayette.

Mr. Lust's injuries that terminated in death, were received when his

H. C. Lust

Mark sedan crashed head-on into a south-bound Greyhound bus on the Lafayette-Oxford road in the north part of Oxford.

Reports from the Lafayette hospital last evening stated that, although critically injured, hopes were held that he would recover and when news was flashed here that he had died about 9:30 o'clock, the entire community was shocked and grieved at his passing.

The fatal accident was at the intersection of the street and the road that leads from the pavement at Alkinson to Oxford. Mr. Lust, who was alone, had driven to Oxford to look after some printing being done at the Canale office, and in view of Charles Shaffer, president of the Benton County Farm Bureau.

He was traveling east on the street and had just made the turn to the north on the black-top road when his car and the speeding south-bound bus crashed almost squarely head-on. The impact was terrific, the front end of the lighter vehicle being wedged under and against the front axle of the big bus and it was dragged a distance of about seventy-five feet to the south before the bus came to a stop.

Lyle Crow, who was among the first to reach the scene, assisted in removing Mr. Lust from his wrecked car. He was slumped over unconscious and bleeding freely from a bad cut on his forehead and nose.

Drs. E. E. Parker and Virgil Scheuchert, were hurriedly summoned and a preliminary examination revealed that Mr. Lust was critically injured, his left leg being broken between the hip and knee, his chest crushed and a possible fracture of a skull.

It said he applied the air brakes and that the big bus skidded about fifty feet before it struck the lighter car that was in the south lane of travel when he hit.

Funeral services for Mr. Lust will be held from the Soller and Baker funeral home, Fourth and Alabama Street, Lafayette, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in the Turner cemetery there. The body was removed directly from the hospital to the funeral home.

Besides the widow, three daughters and one son, as follows, survive: Mrs. Eleanor Lust Living, New York, Harbert, Jr. B. Adeline, 8, and Barbara, 7, all at home.

The death of Mr. Lust removes from Benton county one of its most highly respected and influential citizens who, during his twenty years residence here, was prominently identified with civic and county affairs.

He was born in New York in 1885 and came with his family to Chicago in 1902. He was educated at the University of Chicago and Yale university of Law school. For many years he was one of the leading lawyers of Chicago, specializing in estate litigation for more than twenty years. His publications, Digest of Decisions under the Interstate Commerce Act, are recognized as authorities and more than a million dollars worth of these publications have been sold.

While practicing law in Chicago, he was counsel in many of the important cases tried in the courts there. He also served as special Assistant State Attorney of Cook county and made an enviable record in his scientific methods in prosecuting criminal cases.

Mr. Lust first came to Benton county in 1916 when the publishing of his law books was taken over by the Benton Review Shop. From then on he spent most of his time here and in 1921 he purchased a home on Sixth street and moved his family here for residence.

Four years ago Mr. Lust began the general practice of law in this county and during the depression he was active in saving farmers from having their lands foreclosed by mortgage companies. Many of these cases were carried to the higher courts by Mr. Lust. In fact, practically all of his time for the past three years was spent in the interest of the farmers of this locality. His activities practically stopped foreclosure in Northern Indiana.

Mr. Lust was a staunch supporter of the Frazer-Lemke Moralistic Act which he briefed and argued in the Supreme Court of the United States. Since the organization of the William Lemke, local of the National Farmers' Union, he had been its most loyal member and supporter and he was in demand as a speaker at meetings held all over the state.

While practicing in Chicago, Mr. Lust was endorsed by the Municipal Voters League, one of the most prominent civic organizations in that city. In its report of February 21, 1933, among other things, in speaking of Mr. Lust, said: "Has been in considerable public litigation, always on the side of the public, Excellent personal and professional reputation."

During his twenty years residence in Fowler, Mr. Lust always took an active interest in all community affairs, both financially and otherwise. He was chairman of the committee that staged the successful Fourth of July celebration 12 years ago that was the finest event of its kind ever held in this section of the state. He was a democrat in politics and was the party's candidate for Judge of the Benton circuit court. He had just finished making arrangements to open his campaign when he met with the tragic accident.

The injured man was removed to the hospital in the Shippo Bros. ambulance, accompanied by Dr. Parker. Just before reaching Lafayette, Mr. Lust regained consciousness and complained of suffering great pain in the injured leg and it is said he was conscious up until a short time before he died. He carried on a brief conversation with his wife at the hospital.

Death was caused by the injury to his chest that was badly crushed when he was thrown against the steering wheel of his car that was broken into small pieces.

None of the six passengers on the bus were seriously hurt and their injuries were treated by Dr. Scheuchert after which they were able to be taken to Lafayette where they caught another bus for their destinations. Miss Marjorie Hooper, of the "Moris Enterters", stage and radio entertainers, was one of the passengers. She received a severe bump on one cheek but was able to continue on her way to her home at Continental, Ohio. Joseph Flynn, of Indianapolis, was the bus driver and he was unhurt. It

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR VICTIMS OF TRUCK CRASH

July 1936

REMAINS OF GEORGE WINNER AND MARCUS PARK LAID TO REST MONDAY; 3RD VICTIM IDENTIFIED

Funeral services were held Monday for George T. Winner, 35, and Marcus Park, 36, both of Earl Park, who met death in the tragic truck collision on state road 53, two miles south east of Ottoburn Saturday morning about 2 o'clock.

The funeral of George Winner was held at 9 o'clock in the morning from St. John's Catholic church, Earl Park with Rev. A. J. Coppella, officiating and burial was in the Catholic cemetery there. The widow, formerly Miss Irene Pettit, and three children survive.

Funeral services of Marcus Park were conducted Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from the H. A. Conley funeral home here with Rev. William Lichau, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial was in the Fowler cemetery.

James Marcus Park, son of James and Anna Park, was born December 25, 1906 at Marysville, Indiana and departed this life July 4, 1936, at the age of 30 years, 6 months and 18 days.

The family moved to Benton County in 1914, where he has since resided. For the past two years he has been engaged in the trucking business in which he met his death. "Mace" as he was known to his friends was of a happy and cheerful disposition and was well liked by all.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father and mother, four brothers, Herbert, Britton, Iris and Thomas and four sisters, Mrs. Virginia Herbert, Mrs. Kila Nora Webberston, Mrs. Amelia Plante and Louise at home, besides a host of relatives and friends.

The body of the third man who was hurled to death in the collision of the two heavily-loaded trucks, has been identified as being that of Lawrence Kidenour, 34, of Ottoburn, Tenn. The identification was made by Kidenour's sister, Mrs. Ora Lemen, of Earl Park.

Kidenour was well known in the vicinity of Earl Park where he was formerly employed as a farm hand by Samter Dillon. His brother Lee is now employed by Mr. Dillon. Kidenour was on his way to visit his brother over the Fourth of July and he was riding in the cab of the west bound truck with Winner and Park when the fatal accident occurred. He was picked up at Lafayette when the Earl Park men stopped to take on a supply of fuel.

The catastrophe was the worst of its kind in the history of this section and the bodies of Park and Kidenour were hurled to 100 yds in the wreckage when 150 gallons of gasoline in two tanks of the big Cushman line semi-trailer exploded when it collided head-on with an east bound truck driven by Alton Needham, 35, of Indianapolis, who was severely burned but will recover, according to reports from the St. Elizabeth hospital, Lafayette, where he was removed following the accident.

Winner, who with Park, owned the west-bound truck that was carrying a ten-ton load of merchandise, was thrown out of the cab and was found in a ditch on the opposite side of the highway with his clothing burned off and his body badly scathed. He was conscious when found but died three hours later in a Lafayette hospital. It is said he was driving the truck at the time of the crash.

The location of the trucks after the crash made it appear that the east-bound truck had crossed the center line of the highway and struck the westbound vehicle in charge of the Earl Park men. There was specu-

was in the center of the highway. It was reported the truck driven by Needham had been weaving from side to side a short time before the crash, but whether scuffed or lost control as his car shot over into the west-bound lane in front of the Cushman, in which three perished, Winner, driving the Cushman truck, apparently did everything possible to avoid a collision.

Questioned at the hospital Sunday by state police, Needham denied that he was to blame for the accident and asserted the Cushman truck was weaving from side to side of the roadway just before the crash.

Arthur Pfaffer of Indianapolis, driver for the Daimler freight line, was the first to reach the scene. He was driving toward Lafayette and witnessed the crash. He said the flames shot 75 feet into the air. Robert Howell, who lives about 200 feet west of the scene, heard the crash and he and his farm hand, Charles Abel, hurried out. The three heard the frantic cries of the men who were being burned alive and Howell used a fire extinguisher he brought from his home, but was not able to subdue the flames to any degree on account of the intense heat.

They succeeded Needham from his truck but were not able to reach Park and Kidenour until the flames had subsided.

Both of the big trucks and cargoes, were completely consumed and traffic was detoured around the wreckage until the debris was removed. The east bound truck, owned by the Indianapolis Forwarding company, was hauling bathroom fixtures, paints, window sash and other merchandise.

The remains of Kidenour were taken to Lafayette and shipped over the Big Four railroad to Bethel, Tenn. for burial. He was 34 years old and single. The body of Winner was brought to the Lee Worland funeral home here to be prepared for burial and later, removed to his home in Earl Park. Before engaging in trucking, he was in charge of a truck that delivered ice in Fowler and other towns in this vicinity.

MOROCCO MAN DIES SUDDENLY IN CAR

HEART ATTACK BELIEVED TO HAVE CAUSED DEATH OF REXFORD L. RUST

Apparently stricken by a heart attack as he was driving his automobile in Morocco, Rexford L. Rust, 37, popular young man of that place and formerly employed as a barber in Ottoburn, died a short time later at his home there. Death occurred at 12:30 a. m. Wednesday.

The young man had entered his car only a few minutes before the fatal attack. While driving, his car suddenly left the highway and went into a ditch. At first it was thought he had suffered injuries, but later developments indicated a heart attack that was responsible for his death. No injuries were discovered.

Surviving are the parents, Mrs. Treva Rust, who operates a beauty shop in the Loughridge Barber Shop here and Elmer Rust of Markinton, Ill. Also a grandmother, Mrs. Annie Rust of Morocco.

Funeral services were held from the Baptist church in Morocco Friday at 2 p. m. Burial in the Stake field cemetery.

LINDA RATHBUN FOUND IN RIVER; FUNERAL TODAY

June 1945

Linda Rathbun, who disappeared twelve days ago from their farm home north east of Kentland, was found at about 10:00 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Iroquois river. The child was found caught in the drift along the south bank just west of the bridge, near the Rathbun home.

Linda, two and a half year old adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rathbun, was last seen by members of the family just a few minutes before her disappearance. When she didn't answer a call from her parents, a frantic search was made in the vicinity and in the river. When no trace of the child could be found an organized search was made by authorities and neighbors and friends all to no avail. The search had gone on continuously until Wednesday morning when Linda was found.

Funeral services will be held at the family home northwest of town at 5:00 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon, with Rev. V. R. Service officiating. Burial in the Fairlawn Cemetery. The sympathy of everyone in this vicinity is extended to Linda's folks. Words cannot express the feeling of grief felt by the entire community that so great a tragedy has come to this young couple.

The citizens of Newton county generally and members of the bar of the Newton circuit court particularly, were greatly shocked by the announcement of the death of Attorney Milton E. Graves, at his home in Morocco on June six o'clock Tuesday evening. KYLE McCARTNEY HELD FOR MURDER

FATAL SHOOTING NEAR CROWN

OF LAST WEEK

Oct. 1928

Kyle McCartney, of Kenosha, is held in the Lake County jail at Crown Point charged with the murder of Marie Mahler of Lowell, Ind. Saturday night last, the fatal shooting occurred near a road house about two miles from Crown Point, and was the result of an altercation between the two men. So many reports and versions of the affair have been received that this paper deems it advisable to await developments at the preliminary hearing which will be held today, before attempting to give an accurate account of what actually happened.

The following account appeared in the Tuesday evening edition of the Lafayette Journal-Courier:

Kyle McCartney, deputy sheriff of Newton county and janitor of the court house here, is in jail at Crown Point charged with murder, the result of a fatal shooting early Sunday morning at a report at the death of Marie Mahler, 43, after an argument over a woman. According to Oliver Stone, prosecutor of Lake county, McCartney will have a preliminary hearing at Crown Point Thursday.

According to witnesses, McCartney became drunk while Mahler, a widow, returned to her village near at Cedar Lake and tried to persuade Mrs. Mahler to play for a beer party being given near by. Mahler also was said to have asked several other girls at the place to attend the dance. McCartney had been talking with Mrs. Mahler and took offense at McCartney's behavior.

McCartney ordered Mahler to leave the building, and followed him outside the place where the argument continued. Mahler got in his car, but started to get out when McCartney became abusive. It is alleged that the janitor McCartney is said to have pulled a .33 caliber revolver from his pocket and fired twice at Mahler, both bullets hitting their mark, one piercing the heart of the victim.

Mahler was rushed to Crown Point, but died before he could be taken to a doctor. Meanwhile McCartney fled southward in his automobile, with Deputy Sheriff Tom Faust in pursuit. Four hours later he was found on a farm south of Schneider where he was attempting to get in touch with Sheriff Robert Dunbar, his employer. McCartney surrendered and was taken to Crown Point.

Mahler's body was taken to the home of his father, Paul Mahler, a bridge contractor at Lowell. Surviving him are a widow and four children.

His witnesses held after the shooting were released Sunday morning, including Mrs. Mahler, ever whom the shooting occurred. She related that McCartney and she were bound for a date on the opposite side of Cedar Lake when they met Mahler driving by in another machine. The argument was said to have started when McCartney became angered at Mahler's attempt to flirt with her and another girl.

FATHER CHARLES DHE SUMMONED BY DEATH EARLY THIS MORNING

BELOVED PRIEST AND COMMUNITY LEADER DIED AT 12:30 O'CLOCK

Father Charles Dhe, 76, beloved pastor of the Sacred Heart church for more than thirty years and an outstanding leader in community affairs, passed away at 12:30 o'clock this morning at St. Elizabeth hospital, Lafayette, and his passing is mourned by everyone.

Father Dhe had been in failing health with heart trouble for several years and last week he contracted a severe cold and became seriously ill. He was removed to the hospital Friday night in the Woodland ambulance and was apparently improving when attacked with a fatal heart attack. He was conscious to the end.

Despite failing health, Father Dhe was active in overseeing the rebuilding of the parochial school and enlarging of the church building that is in progress.

One of the crowning events of his long and useful life was the Golden Jubilee celebration of his fifteenth anniversary in the priesthood that was held here on July 8, 1907, which was attended by dignitaries of the Catholic church, leaders of other faiths and hundreds of people from Benton and surrounding counties who gathered to honor him.

Father Dhe was born on May 16th, 1853 at Vermeil, France. He was the ninth of a family of ten children, four of them, two boys and two girls consecrated their life to the service of the church. For six years, Father Dhe attended a parochial school conducted by Sisters of Charity. When ten years old, his father sent him to a public school. It was also at that time that Father Dhe started his studies in Latin and Greek under a private tutor. His father, at untold sacrifice, sent him to the seminary at Arras, where he remained for ten years until his ordination on July 15th, 1887.

Foreign missions, larger fields of action, opened to some young priests. Bishops however, are not easily convinced and Father Dhe had to remain in France for five years, before getting the authorization from his superiors to follow his craving for foreign missions. During those five years, Father Dhe exercised the ministry as assistant in two large parishes of the Diocese of Arras. Also served at the same time, as chaplain of a prison and instructor in a military academy.

Even when young, Father Dhe enjoyed traveling extensively. Before coming to America, he visited all of Europe except Russia and spent three months in the Holy Land.

In October 1892, Father Dhe came to America at the request of Archbishop of New Orleans, who had three French parishes which needed. The activities of Father Dhe in Louisiana were most pleasant but of short duration. In the summer of 1893 he almost lost his life, a victim of malarial fever, when giving a mission at Magnesian on the Mississippi River. He was convalescing at St. Edward's College, Austin, Texas, when Bishop Radmacher, then Bishop of Fort Wayne, heard about him through the priests of Notre Dame, and persuaded him to leave the South and to come to the Diocese of Fort Wayne, where priests familiar with the French and Belgian language were wanted to take care of thousands of Belgian glassworkers, scattered all over the gas belt of Indiana.

On March 6th, 1894, Father Dhe received his appointment as pastor at Hartford City with Montpelier and Dundick as missions. None of these places ever had a resident pastor. It means that everything had to be created. After twelve years of hard labor, with the cooperation of his people, mostly poor at that time, Father Dhe succeeded in building a church and a parochial residence in each of those three places, organized actually three new parishes, a parochial school and a convent in Hartford City. Not only that, he had to attend to all kinds of sick calls from Belgian glass workers all over the gas belt of Indiana, ranging on bicycles, horseback or even a mule to Mendon, Elwood, Anderson, Alexandria, Marion, Gas City and other small factory towns working day and night.

Meanwhile, as a pastime; and at the same time, Father Dhe became quite interested in the civic affairs of Hartford City—he helped bring factories to the missions, organized himself several corporations; established a strictly cooperative factory, according to plan he had seen in North France and in Belgia.

When leaving Hartford City in 1908, Father Dhe went to Seaton, a French settlement six miles East of Fort Wayne. There, for two years, he enjoyed peace and relative rest. He found his way to make some improvements in the church, the cemetery, paid off the $2000.00 remaining debt of the congregation and brought back to the fold some thirty families, which for some reasons, had left the church several years before.

In September, 1908, Father Dhe was sent to Fowler by Bishop Alving. There was 14,000 debt on the church that had been paid long ago. A large and substantial parochial has been erected at an approximate cost of $50,000.00—a splendid new rectory has also been built—a central steam heating plant has been established—all of the buildings have been financed, improved in many ways, inside and outside—a janitor's house and new play ground have been bought—all have been paid for and the rebuilding of the parochial school and enlarging the church that started last August, was nearing completion when Father Dhe was stricken.

During the war, Father Dhe was selected by his Bishop to represent the Diocese of Fort Wayne in the National Catholic War Council. Meanwhile, he was the chairman of the Council of Defense in Benton County. He worked faithfully with the conscription board; he spoke time and again in every church and school of the district—he sold many liberty bonds and stamps; he was chaplain and captain in the Liberty Guard.

The only surviving relatives in this country are Miss Claire Dubois, a niece who made her home with Father Dhe for many years, and a nephew, Edward Dubois of Clarksville, Arkansas. Other nephews and nieces live in France.

The body was first removed to the Gateway funeral home, and later to the parochial residence where it will remain until Sunday afternoon. The body then will lie in state until the hour of the funeral on Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Father Charles Dhe, 76, beloved pastor of the Sacred Heart church for more than thirty years and an outstanding leader in community affairs, passed away at 12:30 o'clock this morning at St. Elizabeth hospital, Lafayette, and his passing is mourned by everyone.

The services will begin with the chanting of the Office of the Dead, by the Clergy. The solemn Requiem Mass will be sung by Father Peter Biaggi of Schenerville, Ind., and Father Adalberto Roloff of Cincinnati will be Deacon. Father Edward Freidinger of Lafayette, will be Subdeacon and Father Charles Maloy, of Athens, and Father Wm. Hardman of Frankfurt, will be Deacons to the Bishop. Bishop John F. Noll, of Ft. Wayne will impart the final Absolution. There will be a military burial in the Sacred Heart Cemetery in charge of the local American Legion post.

Cowboys Cheer 'Iron Lung' Boy as End Comes

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (UPI)—Johnny Barron, 34, died in the "iron lung" at Bellevue hospital Saturday, a cowboy in his hands and a smile on his face.
 He died knowing that Johnny, for the past year a victim of the acute paralysis called "lockjaw," had seen, for the first time, some chest-to-chest cowboys.
 The rodeo came, as it does once every year, to Bellevue. In the arena were the cowboys put their annual show for the public. The cheering and yelling from the balcony on the balcony and at the windows came to Johnny's ears. He asked if he might not be permitted to see some cowboys.

 "No got better than he asked. The cowboys, in shape and spurs, trooped to his room. An equine trainer and some western music were thrown in.
 His head protruding from the "iron lung," Johnny's thin, pale face beamed with smiles as they performed.
 Betty Kase, the equine trainer, leaned down and kissed Johnny on the forehead. Then they walked and his Reddy Barren, Johnny's horse, bowed down on "The Grand Trail" and "I'm an Old Cowboy." Johnny asked if they would sing "The Last Roundup." These voices broke, the cowboys sang a few verses. Johnny asked for more. They sang:

 "To heaven" for the last roundup; there'll be Buffalo Bill with his long snow-white hair; there'll be old Kit Carson and Custer, warlike lords, a victim in his iron lung.
 Johnny reached out to stroke the steers. The smile was still there when Kit Carson looked in on him—but Johnny was dead.

Well Known Attorney And Civic Leader Buried Here Last Friday

This is a rather recent picture of Hume L. Sammons, local attorney and civic leader, who was buried last Friday following funeral rites held from the home on Washington and First st. The picture is made from an oil painting presented Mr. Sammons, by LeRoy H. Dorsey of the Chicago Petrait Company in Chicago. The presentation was made in 1940 during the Newton County Fair. Mr. Sammons and Mr. Dorsey have been close friends for a number of years.

In the course of the services Mr. Dorsey made the following remarks: "A man is as great as the imprint he leaves in the hearts of his fellow men, the vicinity, State, and Nation. In Newton County and throughout Indiana, we to be found the manifestations of a truly great man. Several years ago I found the folks in this section of the State spoke the language I had learned as a boy, and I felt a strong urge to endeavor to become a part of them.

It is with humility that I speak of a man who came up the hard way a Philosopher, and one with a broad knowledge of the psychology of human relationships, who put the interests of others before his own.

There is something about such a man that endures itself on every side in the lives of men and women, and the conduct of affairs. About a decade ago it was my privilege to meet him for the first time. His sincerity of purpose, range and wealth of knowledge, and understanding greatly impressed me—so much so that on the second occasion, which was about two weeks later, I purchased more than two sections of farm land without even setting foot on it.

He was a self-made man, outstanding in his profession, with a comprehensive understanding of that which is right and wrong. He served his community as a wise and dependable counsellor, helping make it one of the best and foremost in our country. We are all richer in thoughts and the worthwhile things of life from having known Hume L. Sammons."

Hume Leon Sammons was born in Morocco, Indiana, April 2, 1871, the third son of Margaret and Nicholas Sammons. His early boyhood was spent in Morocco and Lake Village, Indiana, and in Decatur, Illinois. When he was but a young man his parents moved to Milford, Illinois, and there he finished his schooling. In 1893 he established and became editor of the Kanokan Sun, at Kanokan, Illinois. It was there that he met Elizabeth Fenwick, and they were married July 4, 1897. Mr. Sammons had the privilege to report the World's Fair for his newspaper and he was always in a humor to narrate of this pleasant experience as well as the life of the nineties.

In 1905 he moved to Kentland and became a law clerk in the office of Cummings and Darrsch, lawyers, and studied and practiced law until 1906 when he entered practice for himself. In 1908 he formed a partnership with

LESTER HINTON FATALLY INJURED LAST NIGHT IN ACCIDENT NEAR KENTLAND

Dec. 11 - 1935
WIDELY KNOWN FOWLER MAN MEETS DEATH WHEN LAUNDRY TRUCK PLUNGED INTO DITCH ONE-HALF MILE NORTH OF KENTLAND ON ROAD 41

Lester Hinton, 24, one of Fowler's widely known young men, was fatally injured last night about 8 o'clock when a laundry truck he was driving, vaulted into a deep ditch at a point about one-half mile north of Kentland on state road 41. He died at 1:30 this Thursday morning at Dr. W. C. Matthews' hospital in Kentland without regaining consciousness.

The exact cause of the tragic accident will never be known as there were no eye witnesses. Hinton was returning to Fowler after collecting laundry at Brook, Morocco and other points in that vicinity when the Dodge truck failed to negotiate the curve on the highway at the cross roads near the Thomas Mulligan home.

The first guard post, just south of the east and west road, was broken off at the ground, and the truck entered on the west bank of the ditch a distance of about one hundred feet when it vaulted into the ditch and came to a stop fifty feet farther south on its left side, headed to the north in the opposite direction it was traveling.

The crash was heard by Mr. Mulligan, who was in his house at the time. He lighted a lantern and on investigating, found the car lying in the stream at the bottom of the fifteen foot ditch but he could find no trace of the driver, who, he believed, was pinned under the wreck. He then went to Kentland for assistance.

Accompanied by Sheriff Grant Hampton, Mr. Mulligan returned to the scene and they found the unfortunate man on the edge of the east bank of the ditch some sixty feet to the south of the truck, where he had been buried through the top by the impact.

Haxset's ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to the Matthews' hospital, where he died about six hours later. Death was caused from a fracture of the skull at the base of the left ear. An examination also disclosed that the left arm was mangled; ribs broken loose from the back bone on the left side; bruises on the left side of the face and on both legs.

The fact that the left front tire was down with the other three intact, leads to the belief that the tire blew out and caused the driver to lose control. Tracks on the ground at the scene indicate that the vehicle was traveling at a high rate of speed. Marks on the almost perpendicular east bank of the ditch, disclosed that the truck first vaulted the six foot stream of water before toppling over on its side. The clothes worn by Mr. Hinton were soaking wet which caused some persons to believe he was thrown into the water and crawled to the bank where he was found. This theory is impossible, on account of the nature of his injuries.

Mr. Hinton was considered a careful driver, having been employed by the Fowler Laundry for the past five years and yesterday's accident was his first and only mishap of any kind.

He was hurrying home to be present at a birthday party in honor of his wife that was to have been held at the Amel Tucker home, following the basketball game. When he failed to arrive home at planned before he left town at 11 o'clock in the morning, Mrs. Hinton became alarmed and drove to Kentland, but did not learn of the sad accident until some time after she had returned home.

Mr. Hinton and lived practically all his life in this immediate vicinity. He graduated from the Freland Park high school and his wife was formerly Miss Lois Norwood, daughter of county recorder, H. S. Norwood. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, David, 14, and one daughter, Ruth Ann, 16, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mort Hinton. He was their only child. Lester was a popular young man and his death is mourned by a host of friends.

The body was brought to the Conley funeral home and funeral services will be held from the Methodist church at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The wrecked truck was removed from the ditch by the How & Censley wrecker this Thursday morning and brought to their garage here. The load of laundry was removed from the truck last night and no damage resulted to it.

Had Mr. Mulligan not made an investigation after hearing the crash, nobody would have known of the accident until daylight the following morning as the truck was lying at the extreme bottom of the fifteen foot ditch and could not be seen by passing motorists. The injured man was also on the bank about thirty feet east of the pavement out of range of headlights.

TWO FOWLER YOUTHS LOSE LIVES IN TRUCK CRASH; ANOTHER CRITICALLY INJURED AND NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE

Two Fowler youth lost their lives, and another was critically injured and is not expected to live, in a tragic accident on state highway 55, one-half mile south of the intersection of this road with 62 at Abilene, about 10:30 o'clock Monday night.

Robert Mowery, 17, a senior in the Fowler high school and star basketball player, was killed instantly and Pvt. Edward F. Hutson, 18, of the U. S. Marines who was home on a furlough, died in the St. Elizabeth hospital, Lafayette shortly after being removed from an ambulance into the hospital.

The third Fowler boy who has never regained consciousness since the accident, is Alfred Muller, 15, a junior in the Fowler high school. Reports this Thursday morning say his condition is extremely critical. He is internally injured and received a possible fracture of the skull. Wednesday he suffered internal hemorrhages and contracted pneumonia. His mother, Mrs. C. J. Muller and other immediate members of his family have been constantly at his bedside since the accident.

The three youths were returning home from Oxford in a light passenger truck, belonging to Glenn Ladd, uncle of Mowery and owner of the Fowler Laundry, when it collided with a neighborhood flat-bed milk truck, owned by Warren Parsons, of Hanson, and driven by William Hanson, of Pine Village whose left arm was torn off at the elbow.

The two vehicles side-swiped and the light passenger truck was completely demolished. The bed of the milk truck that extended several inches beyond the chassis, literally sliced off the cab and body of the lighter truck, part of it being dropped into the ditch about fifty feet north of the scene of the crash and twenty-five feet south of where the wreckage of the vehicle came to a stop. The edge of a man fold against a telephone pole after vaulting through a window wire fence. It was right side up and headed in a southeasterly direction.

The three occupants were thrown out, the lifeless and mangled body of Mowery being found in the ditch on the east side of the pavement and the other two youths were also lying in the east ditch between the two wrecked vehicles.

Hutson and Muller were rushed to the Lafayette hospital in the Shippa Bros. and Ralph Terrell's ambulance. Dr. E. E. Parkes of Oxford, was the first physician to reach the scene, Clarence Harry A. Conley was summoned and he took charge of the body of Mowery and brought it to his undertaking parlor here. His skull was fractured, throat mutilated, neck broken, chest crushed and left leg and left arm broken and mangled.

Pvt. Hutson suffered a fracture of the skull, broken neck and crushed chest. His body was brought to the Conley funeral home to be prepared for burial.

The milk truck, loaded with empty cans, came to a stop in the west ditch about twenty-five feet southwest of where the two vehicles collided. Two other occupants of the cab, Parsons, the owner, and Roy Ekhonson of Fowler, grandson of the late William Booth, escaped with minor bruises. The severed arm of Hanson was found in the grass some twenty feet east of where the two trucks crashed.

Hanson was also rushed to the St.

Elizabeth hospital where his left arm was amputated just above the elbow and it is reported that his condition is satisfactory and his recovery is expected. It is said he was to have reported to the Warren county draft board Tuesday for induction into the army.

Mowery's wrist watch had stopped at 9:45 o'clock which is believed to have been the exact time of the crash. Both of his wristed shoes were found in the front part of the demolished laundry truck and the other on the ground near the vehicle. The left front wheel of the truck was broken off at the axle but the other three were intact with the tires still inflated.

The tragedy cast a gloom over the entire community and high school was dismissed Tuesday and the senior class of which Mowery was a member, was also dismissed on Wednesday with the entire school dismissed this Thursday, the day of his funeral.

Robert Mowery was a son of William E. Mowery, of Hammond, and Mrs. Maude Mowery of Lafayette. He grew home at Kankakee, but many years of his life were spent in Abilene. For the past four years he had made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Glenn Ladd in Fowler. He played in the high school band and was outstanding in athletics.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock this Thursday afternoon from the Fowler Presbyterian church with Rev. Peter Soudak officiating and interment was in the Goodland cemetery.

Pvt. Edward Hutson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hutson and one of Fowler's most popular and highly respected young men, was home on a 10-day furlough from the marine base at Parris Island, S. C. whose tragic death occurred. He graduated from high school last spring and had been the student body president at Pomona University before joining the Marines, where in high school he played in the band and was popular among the student body.

Besides his parents he leaves a sister, Lucile, of home, and a brother, M. Sgt. William Hutson, USMCR, San Diego, Calif. No funeral arrangements had been made when the Bureau went to press, pending word from the commanding officer at Parris Island.

LIFE CLOSES AT BROOK AFTER COMA LASTING SEVERAL DAYS

Passing of Illustrious Purdue Benefactor, Humorist and Playwright Casts Gloom Over Nation — Left Alma Mater to Be Newspaper Man, Rose to Eminence. His Books, Plays Part of Country's Literature—Funeral at Hazelden Friday Afternoon.

BROOK, May 17.—George Ade, 78, world famous Hoosier author, playwright and devoted alumnus of Purdue university, who once said that his father sent him to an engineering school to prepare him for a literary career, died here at 11:10 o'clock last night, his death bringing gloom to the community, as well as to state and nation.

His younger brother, cartoonist John T. McCutcheon, who said their salaries "could never quite catch up with our debts, although our only credit was to spend 25 cents for a chrysanthemum when Purdue came up to play football with Chicago."

The explosion of a lake steamer in Chicago harbor in 1887 gave Ade the assignment that established him as a newspaperman. He went to work for the Chicago Record, where his folksy-Indian character sketches on "Artie," "Pink Marsh" and "Doc Horne" began appearing in 1895. Ade and McCutcheon also won fame with their "Society of the Greeks and Town" appearing in the Record. McCutcheon doing the illustrations.

"FABLES IN SLANG"

Ade was perhaps best known for his satirical "Fables in Slang," the first of which appeared in 1897, while he was with the Chicago Record, ten years after his graduation from Purdue, where Rose-Ade stadium bears his name.

He wrote his first successful play, "The Sultan of Solon," in 1892 in a hall bedroom he occupied with John T. McCutcheon.

The play grossed him a fortune, and he bought 1,500 acres of land near here, 11 miles from his birthplace, and developed his Hazelden Farms estate. Later years, he spent his summers at Hazelden and wintered at Miami Beach, Fla. He followed with numerous successful plays, among them "Peggy From Paris" in 1903; "The Sho-Gun" and "The College Widow" in 1904, and, in subsequent years, "The County Chairman," "The Fair Code" and others.

For the screen he wrote "Our Leading Citizen" and for his friend, Thomas Meighan, "Back Home and Broke."

LOYALTY TO PURDUE

Mr. Ade's associations with Purdue university and Sigma Chi fraternity were among the choicest of his entire life and he retained his ardent interest in both up to his last illness. He was a member of the board of trustees of Purdue from 1908 to 1918 and had served as grand counsel (national head) of Sigma Chi. During the first world war he was active in the Indiana council of defense. In 1908 he was a delegate to the republican national convention. Not only did he contribute liberally with the late David E. Ross to the building of the Rose-Ade stadium, but he was the principal founder of the Sigma Chi fraternity house and made many other gifts to Purdue. He spoke there many times and some of the best remembered addresses in Fowler Hall's history came from his lips.

He had been in a coma since Saturday when he suffered a third heart attack within a week. Ade had been ill since a stroke caused him temporary loss of the use of an arm and leg about a year ago. The illness forced him to remain in Indiana through the winter for the first time in 25 years. He usually went to Miami Beach, Florida.

"There is no climate here," he said of Indiana; "just an assortment of unexpected weather."

Prolific in everything but gloom, the celebrated wit had played on the world's funnybone for more than three decades in half a dozen mediums—newspapers, magazines, books, plays, movies and casual conversation.

BORN IN KENTLAND

Ade began his career like hosts of other writers and newspapermen who emerged from the mid-west around the turn of the century, bringing with them the homogenous ethnicity and color which so aptly portrayed American life and ideals.

He was born Feb. 8, 1868, in Kentland, where his father, John Ade, was a country banker. After graduating from Purdue university he first joined the staff of the "Lafayette Independent."

But soon Ade became the heart of the big town. He joined the staff of the Chicago Morning News with his Sigma Chi friends.

NEVER MARRIED

Ade never married. He was a member of the Chicago club, the Lamb Chicago Athletic club, the Lamb and Authors clubs of New York, and maintained a swimming pool, a dance pavilion and a nine-hole golf course—all open to members of his community—on his Indiana estate.

He had entertained as many as 20,000 persons at picnics, and on July 4, 1918, at a soldier's and officer's homecoming celebration, an actual count showed 23,000 automobiles parked in his pasture and on roads leading to Hazelden farms.

HAZELDEN SHOWPLACE

Ade's country home, Hazelden, seat of Brook, has long been a show place and mecca for leading lights of the stage, screen, politics, sports and for writers. Among frequent visitors there were Tom Meighan and Blanche Buesel, of the movies. For a number of years he gave seasonal picnics, veritable circuses, for children of the acquaintances, for children of the nation surrounding Hazelden. Large numbers of youngsters came to enjoy the varied entertainment he had arranged for them, and to compete in many contests and to receive hundreds of prizes he offered. His home was filled with trophies gathered in many corners of the world, and with mementoes from many famous persons, aged, attesting to the esteem in which he was held and to the wide field in which he had made friends.

GEORGE ADE

Purdue university, along with the local community, the state and nation, was thrown into deep gloom Wednesday by the death of George Ade, eminent author, playwright and university benefactor, which occurred late Tuesday night at Brook, where he had been in a critical condition for several days. The 78-year-old Hoosier celebrity's passing was a blow to his multitude of admirers all over the nation.

TASTY JERILEE

William Howard Taft opened his presidential campaign in 1908 with an address at Ade's estate before a crowd of 20,000.

"These big parties," he once told a friend, "are a little hard on the lawn and shrubbery, but they are a great thing for the community." Ade traveled extensively after royalties from his plays began to come in. He went around the world twice, made several trips to Europe, the Orient and the West Indies.

He once explained his bachelorhood by saying that at the marrying age he was leading a nomadic existence.

One of his closest associates was John T. McCutcheon, cartoonist. They and Booth Tarkington were all fraternity brothers at Purdue. "Artie" had to go to Princeton but Ade and McCutcheon went to Chicago and roomed together in a hall room while they were getting started in newspaper work.

SISTER NARRATES

Mr. Ade died, not at his country estate, but at the home here of Harry Hershman, an old friend of the Ade family, who, with his family, has been in California. Ade moved last fall from Hazelton to the Hershman home, three miles from here, because his furnace, with its oil burner and limited fuel supply, was too hard to heat.

With him at the time of his death was James D. Rathbun, Purdue graduate and for 25 years manager of the Ade estate. Mr. Rathbun married a niece of Mr. Ade. Surviving are Ade's sister, Mrs. Warren T. McCray, widow of a former Indiana governor; and several nieces and nephews. They are Rolland Ade, Mrs. Willie Rathbun, Lucile McCray and George McCray, all of Kentland; Mrs. Ada Pluggs and Mrs. Ardis Kurfess, Washington, and George Ade Davis, Oklahoma City, Okla.

FUNERAL FRIDAY

Tentative funeral arrangements were announced by Mr. Rathbun as follows: Body at Harty-Crane funeral home, Kentland. Services at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Hazelton home, ceremony in concept of brief tributes by three of his closest friends; President Edward C. Elliott of Purdue university; John T. McCutcheon, college chum, now chancellor of the Chicago Tribune, and Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. A local pastor will conduct a prayer service after which the body will be buried in the family lot in the Kentland cemetery.

A group from Purdue university from which school Mr. Ade graduated in 1897 were, besides Dr. Elliott, Dr. Frank C. Hodson, executive dean; Dean A. A. Potter of the school of engineering; Guy Mackay, athletic director; B. B. Baugh, alumni secretary; P. S. Eberick, band director; T. R. Johnston, director of publicity and Miss Blanche Miller of the literary staff. Others attending were, Henry W. Marshall, publisher of the Lafayette Journal-Courier and H. G. Reiser of Lafayette, a Purdue graduate of 1903.

The Services

The Rev. V. B. Service, of the Kentland Methodist church, opened the services with prayer after which John T. McCutcheon spoke of Mr. Ade as his friend. In part he said: "It was in the fall of 1893 that I met George Ade and learned to know him better the next year.

He was an editor of the Sigma Chi fraternal journal of the college paper, of which took turns and an unusual ability. He was one of the early contributors to college papers. . . . In June, 1897, he graduated from the university and was the orator for the class. . . . In 1898 he came to Chicago at my suggestion. I knew well he would make good, because he had a wonderful memory and was well equipped to do the job. He made $12 per week as a crib reporter on a Chicago newspaper, and was assigned to weather reporting, a job he did well with his humor and knowledge of business men. While the regular reporters were out he was assigned to write about a steam boiler exploding, and he did it so well that he was made a regular reporter. During the World's Fair of that day he did a two column feature each day and continued for seven years. In 1905 he and C. C. Keel and I went to Europe and it was about that time that he wrote "Fables in Slang" . . . He remembered what he heard . . . made a thousand friends and lost none."

Judge Landis Talks

Judge K. M. Landis, a long time friend of Mr. Ade, was next to make expressions about the author and playwright in part he said: "For what we all have in our heart he could put on paper. He was one of those country boys who came to the city . . . but he came back here to retire and he with the people he knew best. . . . John and George helped to form the Indiana Club, they were real saks of that society. Ade liked to reminisce about the early days of this territory. His father had a store and he put these letters on the front, 'The Bank Of North America'. We Will this man."

Dr. E. C. Elliott

"The last scene has been played and the curtain must come down". He wanted no tears, no sorrows, we rejoice for having had him in our midst. He was the only one to be made, never to be duplicated. George Ade was called a realist and he dealt with substance not mockery. He made the English language jump through the hoop of realism. George Ade was a 20th century school boy who stood for the virtues of strength which make people great. He was proud of Purdue and its accomplishments, and jealous of his praise. He told me of the tornado of June, 1925, and the disaster and felt the loss of a great tree in front of his house and cried over its loss. He said, "I don't count but hate to think of that tree being taken away".

A Life Which Has Been Honored Through Long Years of Service.

Our Has Ended 1945

People throughout Newton county were shocked when the news spread that Reuben Hess had passed away at his late home on Lincoln street in Kentland, Sunday afternoon, August 13, 1945. Only close friends know he had been seriously ill until the sad announcement was made.

Mr. Hess always had the happy faculty of making friends and keeping their good will throughout the years. He was born on a farm near Monroeville, Illinois, August 26, 1865, a son of William Henry and Catherine (Riska) Hess. He grew to manhood in Kankakee County, Illinois, attending public school in Monroeville and vicinity. He later taught school in the neighborhood and in Lake township, Newton county, in the meantime he worked his way through college. He had the distinction of holding three diplomas from Northern Indiana Normal School, now Valparaiso University. He first graduated from the scientific course, then from the commercial, and lastly from the law course. After completing his law studies in 1901, he located in Monroeville, where he began the practice of his profession in partnership with A. E. Chisum. In 1904 he was elected clerk of the Newton County Circuit Court and served two terms.

One of the happiest moments of his life occurred while he was serving as clerk, when he issued a license to himself to wed Miss Love Deardurff of Monroeville. The wedding took place at the bride's home on February 15, 1904. The happy couple established their residence in Kentland where they have since resided.

After he had served the legal maximum years as clerk, he was elected treasurer of the town of Kentland which position he resigned after one year to assume the duties of prosecuting attorney to which he was elected in November 1914. About four years later he was appointed postmaster in Kentland. He served this position for more than twelve years, after which he resumed his law and insurance business which he continued until his death.

The name of Reuben Hess has thus been identified with the history of Kentland and Newton County for the past 40 years. It has become honored and respected through long years of public service, business integrity, and moral character.

Mr. Hess loved the great outdoors. He spent his vacation periods along the rivers and lakes, where he found many reasons for adoring the country north of the Tennessees. He spent much time rowing up and down the placid waters, fishing here and there, and at other times just enjoying the beauties of God's open spaces.

He was an active elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Kentland. He served his Church and Church School in many faithful ways. He was a member of Newton Lodge F. & A. M., No. 261, and all the York Rite Masonic bodies and the Eastern Star. He believed in Masonic principles and practiced them. In politics he was a loyal Republican but not to the extent of barring those of other political faiths from his circle of friends.

He loved his home. It was there where he was supremely happy with his good wife who survives. The following lines which were selected by the deceased and dedicated to "Our Life", best express this happiness:

We've topped the great divide, Old Pal
And now we're facing West;
Into life's golden sunset glow,
Through days of all the best.
A score of years we've partners been,
And met life's cares together;
Each burden thus has lighter grown,
No matter what the weather.

It's pleasant to remember joys
We shared in days gone by;
The castles that we used to build,
Beneath the moonlit sky;
Some of the dreams we cherished then,

As time has swiftly sped,
Have blossomed forth to full blown fact,
While others now have fled.

Through all this span of lovely years
We've always closer grown;
To find the good of comradeship
And claim it as our own.
So, as we start the homeward trek,
Out toward the twilight vale,
We still shall travel hand in hand,
And love will point the trail.

In Reuben Hess we have seen a gentleman who needeth not be ashamed

Rev. Veris B. Service, Pastor of the Kentland M. E. Church, was in charge of the funeral rites which were held Wednesday afternoon, in the First Presbyterian Church. He was assisted by members of the Masonic orders.
The body rests in beautiful Fairview.

SURROUNDED WITH NATIVE trees, shrubs and flowers, Hazelden, near Brook, country home of George Ade, is probably one of the most restful nooks and beautiful spots in northwestern Indiana. Its tranquility is conducive to creative writing, and it is here the author has retired to court the muses for some of his famous works.

SIX WEEKS

Funeral services were conducted at the St. Joseph Catholic church Wednesday at 9 a.m. for Mrs. Catherine Largent, 79, who died at her home here on Geas street, Sunday, November 25. Burial was made in the St. Joseph cemetery.

She had been ill for the past six weeks and was the youngest of four children, all of whom preceded her in death. Mrs. Largent was the daughter of Thomas and Catherine (McCornick) Burke and was born in Darlington on September 3, 1866. She was married to William M. Largent in St. Louis, Mo., on October 15, 1900. He preceded her in death in September 1928.

Survivors are two daughters, Kathryn, wife of J. H. and Mary E. Largent, U. S. Coast Guard Women's Reserve, stationed at Norfolk, Va.; two sons, Walter W. Largent of Kansas City, Mo., and Charles J. Largent of Kentland.

The Rosary devotion service was held at the residence at 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

Final rites were conducted from the Huffy-Crane funeral home Sunday at 2 p. m. for Henry Fletcher, age 89, who died at the Iroquois county hospital June 25, at 7:30 p. m. He was seriously ill but five days, but had suffered for some time with cancer.

Mr. Fletcher was born at Peru on Sept. 22, 1853, and came here when he was 19 years of age to work for the late A. J. Kent. Later he took up the builders trade and worked many years as a helper for Mathew Bruck. He made his home with his brother, David Fletcher, and in 1935 moved to the county infirmary. He was quiet of nature and had many friends in this community.

He was never married and had no survivors. Rev. J. E. McCloud was in charge of the services and burial was made in the Fairlawn cemetery near here.

FIRE AND DEATH STRIKE SAME DAY

MRS. VIRGINIA SHEPARD FARM HOME BURNS; ONLY SISTER
DIES SUDDENLY IN WEST

Fire and death both struck the Mrs. Virginia Shepard home in Goodland last Sunday. At 3 p. m. the modern eight-room dwelling on her farm north of town burned to the ground. Then when she returned to her town home received word that her only sister, Miss Marjorie Sell had died suddenly in Salem, Oregon.

The farm was tenanted by her brother-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bilingworth. The fire is reported to have started in the attic. Most of the household furnishings on the first floor were saved by volunteer firemen, but nothing was saved from the upstairs. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Her sister, Marjorie, 25, was a former student in the Alexander J. Kent high school and with her parents moved to Salem, Oregon, about 1940. She later attended a school of higher learning in the western state and taught in the public schools. She spent most of last summer with Mrs. Shepard. She is survived besides the sister by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay C. Sell of Salem; two brothers, Lt. Robert J. of Ft. Monmouth, N.J.; and Donald Sell of Salem. No word could be learned about funeral arrangements.

Workers Removing Debris at the Kentland Cafe After Truck Hits Wall

P120

This is the way the Kentland Cafe here looked a few hours after truck from the Levy & Sons company plowed through front wall. The truck had parked in front of the building, but as it started to roll backwards, the driver became confused and stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake, and the one and one half ton machine drove into the building with enough force to completely demolish the plate glass window and casing. The necessary repairs have been made and business is going on as usual. Those visible in the picture are A. Strode and Joseph Hiestand with their backs to the camera and Krull, owner of the Cafe.

that I made a covenant. I am telling you those things that you may tell others, for, though it is late, the startling may be effective in sav-

WARD'S ARTILLERYMEN IN REAL BATTLE PRACTICE

FIRE! Like partridges ready to ing are Col. Phil R. Ward's boys firing the first shot on the new field gun.
Every minute is vibrant, every sense advanced for the first big moment in their training. "Boom," roars the gun.
"A bulleye," marks the score as the boys reload.

AIM! Now they are getting ready for the second shot, aiming the piece and crouching behind the protection from "enemy" fire. This photo gives a clear sight of the new field guns with which the boys Robinson, at Sparta, Wis., have been provided.

BRINGING THE GUN FORWARD—Strenuous work on a hot Summer day! But the men don't mind. They are too intent upon their exciting adventure—the first day with the field pieces. Besides that hill Rockford took off every ounce of flesh and put them in shape for strenuous tasks.

WHEN WILL THEY SEND US ACROSS?—That's what the boys of the 332d artillery are asking as they ride back from the range. Very soon, they hope. They would like to be with Gen. Pershing's cavalry and Gen. Foch's reserves fighting in the defense of Paris right now.
